MIGs THREATEN U. N. AIR CONTROL

Truce-By-Christmas Hopes Grow Brighter

Allies Ready To Accept Counter-Proposal Provided Reds Clarify When Fighting Halts

MUNSAN, Korea, Thursday, Nov. 22 (AP)—Agreement looked near this Thanksgiving Day on a buffer zone plan designed to bring a Korean truce by Christmas.

The United Nations command apparently was willing to accept a new Communist counter-proposal provided the Reds would agree to clarify—in writing—precisely when the fighting would stop.

The Red proposal, submitted during a two-hour subcommittee session Wednesday, resembled in most respects an Allied formula for truce by Christmas proposed last Saturday.

While the Reds agree verbally not to demand a pullback of troops until the final truce was signed, sealed and delivered, the U. N. command wanted that assurance down in black and white.

U. N. To Propose Revision

The U. N. negotiators promised to bring what they called "necessary revisions of the Communist proposal to today's subcommittee session at Panmunjom, scheduled for 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Wednesday, EST).

There were two revisions sought by the Allies:

1. Clarification of when troops should be withdrawn from the buffer zone. Asked Wednesday when the Reds would have troops pulled back, North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Song Ho said "after the agreement is signed."

Lee was not asked whether he meant the full armistice agreement or simply an agreement on the buffer zone issue, item two on the agenda. The U. S. wanted this cleared up.

2. The Allies also were expected to insist on more specific deference to continuation of the fighting until the full armistice agreement is signed and sealed.

Dislike Red Vagueness

The Red proposal merely says "in view of the fact that hostilities will continue until the signing . . ." In the U. N. version of the buffer plan, agreement on the principle of continuing hostilities was put at the top of the program.

Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chief of the two-man U. N. sub-delegation, said Wednesday he didn't care if this were at the top or the bottom of the compromise proposal. The Allies, however, did not like the vagueness of the Red statement.

Barkley In Japan For Information

TOKYO, Thursday, Nov. 22 (AP)—Vice President Alben Barkley arrived by plane today on a surprise visit to Japan.

On hand to greet him were Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme United Nations commander, Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan, Ambassador William Sebald and other dignitaries.

Barkley, accompanied by his wife, arrived in a special Constellation plane of the Military Air Transport Service.

"This trip is not remotely connected with politics," Barkley told reporters at the airport.

"I want to get all the information I can about Korea and the whole situation over there and to contact as many troops as possible."

Relative Quiet Settles Across Battlefront

SEOUL, Korea, Thursday, Nov. 22 (AP)—Relative quiet settled across the Korean battlefront today as the Thanksgiving holiday brought Allied forces a bite of turkey and thoughts of home.

The U. S. Eighth Army communique Wednesday night noted a slowdown in fighting. It reported largely patrol actions on the western, central and eastern fronts.

In the air Allied jet pilots swept "MIG Alley" over Northwest Korea Wednesday but failed to find a single Communist jet. Other U. N. fliers smashed Red supply targets and claimed more than 200 Red troops killed or wounded in attacks along the front.

John W. Blodgett, Intimate Of GOP Presidents, Dies

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 21 (AP) — John Wood Blodgett, multi-millionaire lumberman and philanthropist, died today at his palatial estate here today at the age of 91. He had been an intimate of six Republican presidents.

In good health until a few weeks ago, he was stricken with a heart ailment from which he never rallied.

A Republican stalwart and a power in state and national party politics for half a century, Blodgett fell a year short of what he hoped would be fulfillment of a cherished dream—the election of a GOP president next year. He believed 1952 would see the Republican nominee win.

Tentative Naval Accord Reached By Pact Nations

Set To Adopt Garand As Standard Rifle

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP) — The North Atlantic Allies were reported set tonight to create a five-nation naval fire brigade to guard English Channel ports and bases along the British and European coasts.

Western military chiefs simultaneously cleared the way for appointment of an American admiral to organize Allied navies to be committed to defense of the Atlantic.

A third question reported settled after months of international wrangling was on the standardization of arms. Informants said the Allies are ready to adopt the United States .30-caliber M-1 Garand as the standard army rifle.

A changed British attitude apparently made possible these tentative agreements. They were reached by the military committee of the 12 Atlantic Allies, meeting at the Foro Italico which once was known as Mussolini's Forum.

Qualified officials gave this picture of the naval fire brigade which the Allies are planning as a separate new English Channel command.

France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Denmark will work under British leadership to keep the waters of the English Channel and the North Sea safe in wartime.

The command as a whole will be responsible to Eisenhower's SHAPE. Minesweepers, coastal command aircraft, motor torpedo boats and E-boats will cooperate to insure that Allied ships carrying food and supplies get to and from the great ports.

The military committee is made up of chiefs of staff of 11 nations and a civilian representive of Iceland, which has no army. It is preparing recommendations for a joint session of the foreign, defense and finance ministers of the pact partners opening Saturday.

It was presented to U. S. Charge D'Affaires Hugh S. Cumming, Jr., by Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, in Moscow earlier today. Cumming transmited th note to Washington.

War In Korea 4th Costliest In U. S. History

American Casualty Toll Passes 100,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The American casualty toll in 16 months of battle in Korea passed the 100,000 mark today, establishing the limited Asian conflict as the fourth costliest war in U. S. history.

A new Defense Department summary added 950 killed, wounded and missing since last week, for a total of 100,176 individual casualties reported to American families through last Friday.

The actual battle toll today stands higher than this figure, as the official announcements generally run about two weeks behind the combat action.

Not until the campaign is over will all the Korean casualties be known in this country. Military regulations forbid publication of the number of Americans stricken by disease or who have died from non-battle causes.

16,972 Yanks Killed

The new total included 16,972 deaths and 10,871 currently missing in addition to more than 72,000 wounded.

The figures for deaths and missing may be radically altered should sufficient evidence be produced to confirm Gen. Matthew Ridgway's estimate that some 6,000 American prisoners of war may have been killed by Chinese and North Korean Reds.

The battle losses sustained in Korea are greater than those suffered during some of the bitterest campaigns of World War II.

In the 12 months during which American troops were closely engaged in the hard fought campaigns of Sicily and Italy in the last war the total combat casualties were 80,500.

The 83 days of the fight-to-the-finish campaign on Okinawa caused 49,151 U. S. battle casualties. The savage battle on Iwo Jima took a toll of 20,845 American killed and wounded.

World War II Rate Higher

Total battle losses for the entire war in the Southwest Pacific reached 113,991. Of this total only 84,200 were killed or wounded. The large remainder included more than 33,000 Americans who were captured, interned or reported missing during the early months of the war in the Philippines and the islands of the Western Pacific.

Despite the intensity of the conflict in Korea, the rate at which casualties have been suffered has not equalled the record of World War I. In the 14 months in which Americans fought in France, their battle losses totalled nearly 258,000.

In World War II the 100,000 casualty mark was not passed until some time in 1943. By the end of World War II, total U. S. combat losses stood at 1,110,115.

In the Civil War, the Union and Confederate Army deaths totalled some 500,000, but this included great numbers who died of disease.

Missing U. S. Plane Violated Frontiers, Red Satellites Charge

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21 (AP) — Hungary and Romania charged today their frontiers were violated by a U. S. military plane which vanished Monday after reporting it had been fired upon by border guards of the Soviet satellites.

The charges were the first acknowledgment by the two governments that they knew anything about the incident.

Fog over the craggy mountains and woods of the Yugoslav-Italian border region today hampered the air search for the C-47 transport carrying diplomatic cargo to Belgade, which is believed to have made a crash landing in the area.

The U. S. embassy said a Yugoslav government check of its border stations and other authorities indicated the plane got lost and mistook the Drava River, which runs along the Hungarian frontier and close to the Romanian, for the Sava, which marks an air corridor to Belgrade.

Czechoslovakia Assails Western Arms Proposals

Small Nations See Hope For Agreement

PARIS, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia insisted today the British-French-American disarmament plan would result in a "vicious circle" without ending the East-West deadlock over atomic weapons.

Prague's chief delegate to the U. N. session, Dr. Gertruda Sekaninova-Carrtova, listed Czechoslovakia's objections in a speech to the 60-nation Political Committee. The committee is awaiting the official Moscow reaction to be laid down by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, perhaps Friday.

Delegates of some small countries called the first reaction from a Soviet bloc nation surprisingly mild, and expressed hope the Czech speech indicated some plan could be worked out acceptable to both sides.

Committee Session Cancelled

The Political Committee cancelled its afternoon session because of a lack of speakers. Delegates of East and West obviously were waiting each other out before making definite declarations.

Some observers speculated that Vishinsky had gone too far in picturing himself as convulsed with laughter over the West's disarmament proposals and, after getting adverse reaction, decided to be more cautious in approaching the subject this time.

Dr. Sekaninova-Carrtova said the West's proposals for inspection and verification of any arms census would result in a vicious circle in which there would be a disarmament commission, then a disarmament conference and then an international control commission. All of this, she said, would leave the atomic issue still a stalemate.

Canada Defends Proposals

She insisted that the countries agree on a declaration outlawing the atomic bomb immediately. She also objected that the Western resolution gave no clear answer on the issue of military bases. The Russians have been objecting to U. S. bases around the globe.

Lester B. Pearson of Canada defended the Western proposals. The Canadian external affairs minister, apparently anticipating a Vishinsky blast at the North Atlantic pact meeting in Rome, told the committee the Atlantic alliance is purely defensive and plans no aggression.

Internal Revenue Probe Group Clears Chairman

Rumors Of Tax Case Intervention Are Spiked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — A House investigating group today cleared its chairman, Rep. King (D-Calif), of rumors that he intervened improperly in three Southern California tax cases.

After two days of hearings behind closed doors, Rep. Combs (D-Tex), acting chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee, issued a report stating:

'The subcommittee has unanimously concluded that the rumors concerning actual or attempted intervention by Rep. King in these matters are completely without foundation."

King's committee is in the midst of a sensational probe of the nation's txa collecting system.

King himself asked for an investigation of reports concerning his activities. He called them "malicious and false," and indicated that he did not feel free to direct the main inquiry until they were run to earth. He yielded the chair to Combs while what Combs called "the diversionary inquiry" was in progress.

Combs declined to disclose the source of the rumors, but he said some light would be thrown on this aspect of the case when a transcript of testimony taken at the closed hearings is released in a week or so. The committee's report continued:

"Not one scrap of evidence and, in fact, not even a single allegation, has been presented to the subcommittee in the course of these hearings that Rep. King, or persons purporting to act for him, has participated in or been connected with the disposition of these cases.

"On the contrary, the testimony of every witness has included an affirmative statement that no intervention or attempt to influence the outcome of the cases was made by Mr. King or anybody acting for him. The witnesses who have been heard have included every official of the Department of Justice or the Bureau of Internal Revenue who has had any significant part or responsibility in the handling of these cases."

"Double" Scored By Deer Hunter—Shoots Man, Wife

ANTIGO, Wis., Nov. 21 (AP)—A deer hunter scored a "double" here this week—shotting a man and wife, in succession.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryland Stevens, Jr., were shot, one by one, at a range of about 150 yards. Mrs. Stevens was struck in the upper thigh by a bullet that coursed through her body, narrowly missing her spine. Stevens was hit a moment later in the hand.

A hunter told authorities he thought he was shooting at deer.

Weds Dancer Monday

CAIRO, Nov. 21 (AP) — Samia Gamal said today she and Sheppard W. King III, Texas oil heir, will be marriied in Cario on Monday.

The beautiful Egyptian dancer named the date as King was on his way here by plane.

King has taken up the Moslem religion in order to marry Samia, who said the wedding will be "a very simple affair" at the U. S. consulate on Monday morning. In the evening a Moslom priest will officiate at a religious ceremony in her apartment.

Truman Back In Florida

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP)—President Truman returned to Florida today with Fred M. Vinson, chief justice of the United States, who has been mentioned frequently as his choice for president if he does not seek reelection.

"Ike" Welcomes Reinforcements

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 21 (AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower personally welcomed the vanguards of Pennsylvania's 28th Infantry Division and Canada's 27th Brigade today as reinforcements for his European defense command.

These and other troops still to come in the next six weeks will build up his forces arrayed in West Germany to 14 divisions. They will exceed 400,000 men. This compares with Soviet forces in East Germany estimated by Allied intelligence to range from 325,000 to 380,000 men.

The supreme Allied commander flew first to Rotterdam, the Netherlands, to watch the landing of Canada's red-bereted First Infantry Battalion in a drizzling rain. The battalion, part of the 6,000-man strong 27th Brigade, is the first Canadian army unit committed to Europe under the North Atlantic pact.

Then he flew to Bremerhaven, where 2,200 soldiers of the 28th Division—a Pennsylvania National Guard outfit—had just marched off the U. S. Army transport General Butner.

Probers Say Spy Allowed To Stay 2 Years In U. S.

Czech Agent Trained In "Silent Killing"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Senate internal security investigators said tonight a Czechoslovakian diplomat trained in spying and "silent killing" has been permitted to remain in this country for more than two years.

They identified him as Jiri Stary.

Trained In Moscow

Sen. O'Conor (D-Md), chairman of an Internal Security subcommittee unit that held secret hearings on Stary's activities, said that prior to his entrance into the United States Stary was trained in Moscow "in espionage and assassination."

"For about six months he was given special training in Czechoslovakia in methods of silent killing and political activity," the senator added. He said it was noteworthy that Stary joined the Czech foreign office only a short time before being sent here.

Sworn testimony, O'Conor said, was that Stary's mission in the United States was to direct a Czech espionage network and "to maintain discipline over the Czechoslovakian personnel in the United Nations and in the Czechoslovakian consulate."

O'Conor Calls For Action

O'Conor reported that the State and Justice Departments have refused to commit themselves on whether the Czech and his wife will be readmitted to the United States.

In his statement, O'Conor said he could not urge too strongly that immediate action be taken by the government to prevent the Starys from reentering this country.

Hot Dog And Sausage Price Hikes Approved

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Sausage-makers got a go-ahead from the government today to raise prices of hot dogs, bologna and pork sausage.

In some cases the increase will be 3½ to 4 cents a pound. They go into effect next Monday and may be passed along to housewives.

The Office of Price Stabilization said the increases are being allowed to reflect (1) higher wholesale prices of beef used in making sausage, and (2) higher prices for sheep casings in which some sausages are packed.

Vandenberg Says Foe Has 1,500 Planes

USAF Chief Notes "Sinister" Change

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The chief of the United States Air Force spelled out today the "sobering lesson" of swiftly expanding Soviet air power as revealed in Korea, where American control of the air is being "seriously challenged" by Russian-made planes flown by Russian-speaking pilots.

In a remarkably detailed and frank news conference based on his recent visit to Korea, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg read a 4,000-word formal statement and answered a barrage of questions. Of the air situation there, he said there had been a significant and "even sinister change." He cited these points:

Reds Have 1,500 Planes

1. The Chinese Communist air force has deployed in North China and Manchuria about 1,500 planes, approximately one-half of which are MIG-115 jet fighters. The MIG "in many respects can outperform our own F-86"; it has out-climbed the best airplanes that have been tested against it and performed in combat at altitudes approaching 50,000 feet.

2. The MIG —can fly "at speeds in excess of the speed of sound"—761 miles per hour at sea level. Thus it is apparent the Soviets "already have large numbers of military aircraft capable of supersonic flight."

3. "Overnight China has become one of the major air powers of the world." Vandenberg explained that while Red China lacks industrial and technical resources she is the "direct beneficiary of another power" which possesses those resources. He was referring to Russia.

Reds Push Airfield Program

4. The Communists are trying to push their airfield building program southward toward the place where the ground armies are locked in battle. By continuous bombing effort, the USAF has managed to keep three new enemy fields of this type inoperational.

5. While the U.N. air force at present still retains superiority over the Communist air force, its activities are limited by the "ground rules." It can not get at the takeoff points of enemy fighters, destroy them in great numbers and gain actual air "supremacy" (which means the enemy becomes incapable of effective interference).

Vandenberg, obviously referring to the ban on U. N. attacks on Red air bases across the Yalu River in Manchuria, spoke of the "unusual and indeed unique limitation governing the scope of the air war." He said that "under the ground rules established at the outset of the Korean war, it is impossible for us to gain air supremacy.

Warren "Good" After Operation

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21 (AP) — Gov. Earl Warren underwent an operation at the University of California Hospital today for removal of his appendix and a number of abdominal adhesions, the governor's office reported. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

Dr. Junius B. Harris, Sacramento, in a bulletin at 11:45 a. m., said the condition of the 60-year-old chief executive was good.

Warren was ordered to the UC hospital in San Francisco last Friday for what Dr. Harris termed an acute intestinol distubance. Examinations concluded last night, he said, led to the decision to operate.

The governor's illness came just after he had announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination last Wednesday.

Actually, he had been troubled for three weeks or so before that time, but it became serious enough to prompt Warren to cancel all his engagements and go to the university hospital.

Gloria Swanson Pans Show But Will Continue In Cast

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP)—Gloria Swanson doesn't want to, but she is going to remain in the cast of the French comedy, "Nina," which opens on Broadway December 5.

Brandon Brent, Miss Swanson's press agent, said she sought to be released from her contract, feeling that her "lines are not good."

But, Brent added, the producer of the show, John C. Wilson, insisted that Miss Swanson honor her contract and continue in her role.

Wilson would say only that he had Miss Swanson's "assurance—and her contract" that she will complete her engagement in Philadelphia and open at the Royal Theater in New York as scheduled.

The stage and screen star had told a reporter for the Journal American in New York:

"I feel that an actress is only as good as her lines and the lines I have are not good. I feel it would be dishonest to come into New York feeling as I do about the play."

Brent said that advance sales on the show have been encouraging, despite a poor press in Philadelphia. Advance sales for a two-week engagement here totaled $20,000, he said.

Big Expansion Of Newsprint Industry Approved By DPA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The government today approved an almost 50 per cent expansion of domestic newsprint production facilities. But officials said it may be some time before necessary materials can be made available.

The Defense Production Administration, although approving the expansion, said that "more urgent defense projects" will have to get needed steel, copper and aluminum supplies before the newsprint plants can get their materials.

The DPA's Office of Program and Requirements approved an expansion program that would add 490,000 tons to the yearly production of newsprint.

This compares with total present U. S. newsprint production of about 1,100,000 tons. The U. S. imports 5,000,000 tons a year from Canada.

Nation Marks Thanksgiving With Thoughts Of Fighting Men

[By The Associated Press]

Like the Pilgrim fathers of 1621, Americans pause to savor the hard-won bounties of freedom in a troubled world on this Thanksgiving Day today.

Half at war, striving for peace, the nation plans to observe the holiday with the traditional brown-roasted turkey and all the trimmin's. Sparkling cold, clear weather is forecast generally, with snow in some areas.

Even on the far-off Korean battlefront, many American combat troops could heap their mess kits with Turkey Day fare calculated to make the eyes of their rice-fed Communist enemies pop out. At one frontline post, the mess sergeant prepared a menu ranging from stuffed celery hearts, olives and shrimp cocktail to hot mince pie.

And there was hope, too, that the guns might soon fall silent as American officers expressed cautious optimism for a cease-fire in the bitter fighting that began almost 17 months ago.

The latest casualty list, announced by the Pentagon yesterday, showed just over 100,000 Americans killed, wounded or missing in action. Officials say enemy losses have been at least ten-fold heavier.

At Key West, President and Mrs. Truman planned to observe the day with a small family dinner. The President resumed his Florida vacation after a quick round-trip flight to make a political speech in Washington.

In formally proclaiming the day of Thanksgiving, Mr. Truman had called upon his fellow Americans to "pause in their autumn labors and give thanks to almighty God."

Open-air football fans and stay-at-home TV viewers had a heavy menu of games today and over the weekend as the gridiron season entered the homestretch amid the usual controversy over post-season bowl games.

The Weather Bureau reported the coldest weather ever recorded so early in the season in the East and Southeast, but said it should warm up for Thanksgiving Day in the eastern half of the country. Snow was forecast for some western areas.

Total battle losses for the entire war in the Southwest Pacific reached 113,991. Of this total only 84,200 were killed or wounded. The large remainder included more than 33,000 Americans who were captured, interned or reported missing during the early months of the war in the Philippines and the islands of the Western Pacific.

Despite the intensity of the conflict in Korea, the rate at which casualties have been suffered has not equalled the record of World War I. In the 14 months in which Americans fought in France, their battle losses totalled nearly 258,000.

In World War II the 100,000 casualty mark was not passed until some time in 1943. By the end of World War II, total U. S. combat losses stood at 1,110,115.

In the Civil War, the Union and Confederate Army deaths totalled some 500,000, but this included great numbers who died of disease.

Missing U. S. Plane Violated Frontiers, Red Satellites Charge

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21 (AP) — Hungary and Romania charged today their frontiers were violated by a U. S. military plane which vanished Monday after reporting it had been fired upon by border guards of the Soviet satellites.

The charges were the first acknowledgment by the two governments that they knew anything about the incident.

Fog over the craggy mountains and woods of the Yugoslav-Italian border region today hampered the air search for the C-47 transport carrying diplomatic cargo to Belgade, which is believed to have made a crash landing in the area.

The U. S. embassy said a Yugoslav government check of its border stations and other authorities indicated the plane got lost and mistook the Drava River, which runs along the Hungarian frontier and close to the Romanian, for the Sava, which marks an air corridor to Belgrade.

Czechoslovakia Assails Western Arms Proposals

Small Nations See Hope For Agreement

PARIS, Nov. 21 (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia insisted today the British-French-American disarmament plan would result in a "vicious circle" without ending the East-West deadlock over atomic weapons.

Prague's chief delegate to the U. N. session, Dr. Gertruda Sekaninova-Carrtova, listed Czechoslovakia's objections in a speech to the 60-nation Political Committee. The committee is awaiting the official Moscow reaction to be laid down by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, perhaps Friday.

Delegates of some small countries called the first reaction from a Soviet bloc nation surprisingly mild, and expressed hope the Czech speech indicated some plan could be worked out acceptable to both sides.

Committee Session Cancelled

The Political Committee cancelled its afternoon session because of a lack of speakers. Delegates of East and West obviously were waiting each other out before making definite declarations.

Some observers speculated that Vishinsky had gone too far in picturing himself as convulsed with laughter over the West's disarmament proposals and, after getting adverse reaction, decided to be more cautious in approaching the subject this time.

Dr. Sekaninova-Carrtova said the West's proposals for inspection and verification of any arms census would result in a vicious circle in which there would be a disarmament commission, then a disarmament conference and then an international control commission. All of this, she said, would leave the atomic issue still a stalemate.

Canada Defends Proposals

She insisted that the countries agree on a declaration outlawing the atomic bomb immediately. She also objected that the Western resolution gave no clear answer on the issue of military bases. The Russians have been objecting to U. S. bases around the globe.

Lester B. Pearson of Canada defended the Western proposals. The Canadian external affairs minister, apparently anticipating a Vishinsky blast at the North Atlantic pact meeting in Rome, told the committee the Atlantic alliance is purely defensive and plans no aggression.

Internal Revenue Probe Group Clears Chairman

Rumors Of Tax Case Intervention Are Spiked

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — A House investigating group today cleared its chairman, Rep. King (D-Calif), of rumors that he intervened improperly in three Southern California tax cases.

After two days of hearings behind closed doors, Rep. Combs (D-Tex), acting chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee, issued a report stating:

'The subcommittee has unanimously concluded that the rumors concerning actual or attempted intervention by Rep. King in these matters are completely without foundation."

King's committee is in the midst of a sensational probe of the nation's txa collecting system.

King himself asked for an investigation of reports concerning his activities. He called them "malicious and false," and indicated that he did not feel free to direct the main inquiry until they were run to earth. He yielded the chair to Combs while what Combs called "the diversionary inquiry" was in progress.

Combs declined to disclose the source of the rumors, but he said some light would be thrown on this aspect of the case when a transcript of testimony taken at the closed hearings is released in a week or so. The committee's report continued:

"Not one scrap of evidence and, in fact, not even a single allegation, has been presented to the subcommittee in the course of these hearings that Rep. King, or persons purporting to act for him, has participated in or been connected with the disposition of these cases.

"On the contrary, the testimony of every witness has included an affirmative statement that no intervention or attempt to influence the outcome of the cases was made by Mr. King or anybody acting for him. The witnesses who have been heard have included every official of the Department of Justice or the Bureau of Internal Revenue who has had any significant part or responsibility in the handling of these cases."

"Double" Scored By Deer Hunter—Shoots Man, Wife

ANTIGO, Wis., Nov. 21 (AP)—A deer hunter scored a "double" here this week—shotting a man and wife, in succession.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryland Stevens, Jr., were shot, one by one, at a range of about 150 yards. Mrs. Stevens was struck in the upper thigh by a bullet that coursed through her body, narrowly missing her spine. Stevens was hit a moment later in the hand.

A hunter told authorities he thought he was shooting at deer.

Weds Dancer Monday

CAIRO, Nov. 21 (AP) — Samia Gamal said today she and Sheppard W. King III, Texas oil heir, will be marriied in Cario on Monday.

The beautiful Egyptian dancer named the date as King was on his way here by plane.

King has taken up the Moslem religion in order to marry Samia, who said the wedding will be "a very simple affair" at the U. S. consulate on Monday morning. In the evening a Moslom priest will officiate at a religious ceremony in her apartment.

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 21 (AP)—President Truman returned to Florida today with Fred M. Vinson, chief justice of the United States, who has been mentioned frequently as his choice for president if he does not seek reelection.

"Ike" Welcomes Reinforcements

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 21 (AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower personally welcomed the vanguards of Pennsylvania's 28th Infantry Division and Canada's 27th Brigade today as reinforcements for his European defense command.

These and other troops still to come in the next six weeks will build up his forces arrayed in West Germany to 14 divisions. They will exceed 400,000 men. This compares with Soviet forces in East Germany estimated by Allied intelligence to range from 325,000 to 380,000 men.

The supreme Allied commander flew first to Rotterdam, the Netherlands, to watch the landing of Canada's red-bereted First Infantry Battalion in a drizzling rain. The battalion, part of the 6,000-man strong 27th Brigade, is the first Canadian army unit committed to Europe under the North Atlantic pact.

Then he flew to Bremerhaven, where 2,200 soldiers of the 28th Division—a Pennsylvania National Guard outfit—had just marched off the U. S. Army transport General Butner.

Probers Say Spy Allowed To Stay 2 Years In U. S.

Czech Agent Trained In "Silent Killing"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Senate internal security investigators said tonight a Czechoslovakian diplomat trained in spying and "silent killing" has been permitted to remain in this country for more than two years.

They identified him as Jiri Stary.

Trained In Moscow

Sen. O'Conor (D-Md), chairman of an Internal Security subcommittee unit that held secret hearings on Stary's activities, said that prior to his entrance into the United States Stary was trained in Moscow "in espionage and assassination."

"For about six months he was given special training in Czechoslovakia in methods of silent killing and political activity," the senator added. He said it was noteworthy that Stary joined the Czech foreign office only a short time before being sent here.

Sworn testimony, O'Conor said, was that Stary's mission in the United States was to direct a Czech espionage network and "to maintain discipline over the Czechoslovakian personnel in the United Nations and in the Czechoslovakian consulate."

O'Conor Calls For Action

O'Conor reported that the State and Justice Departments have refused to commit themselves on whether the Czech and his wife will be readmitted to the United States.

In his statement, O'Conor said he could not urge too strongly that immediate action be taken by the government to prevent the Starys from reentering this country.

Hot Dog And Sausage Price Hikes Approved

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Sausage-makers got a go-ahead from the government today to raise prices of hot dogs, bologna and pork sausage.

In some cases the increase will be 3½ to 4 cents a pound. They go into effect next Monday and may be passed along to housewives.

The Office of Price Stabilization said the increases are being allowed to reflect (1) higher wholesale prices of beef used in making sausage, and (2) higher prices for sheep casings in which some sausages are packed.

Vandenberg Says Foe Has 1,500 Planes

USAF Chief Notes "Sinister" Change

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — The chief of the United States Air Force spelled out today the "sobering lesson" of swiftly expanding Soviet air power as revealed in Korea, where American control of the air is being "seriously challenged" by Russian-made planes flown by Russian-speaking pilots.

In a remarkably detailed and frank news conference based on his recent visit to Korea, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg read a 4,000-word formal statement and answered a barrage of questions. Of the air situation there, he said there had been a significant and "even sinister change." He cited these points:

Reds Have 1,500 Planes

1. The Chinese Communist air force has deployed in North China and Manchuria about 1,500 planes, approximately one-half of which are MIG-115 jet fighters. The MIG "in many respects can outperform our own F-86"; it has out-climbed the best airplanes that have been tested against it and performed in combat at altitudes approaching 50,000 feet.

2. The MIG —can fly "at speeds in excess of the speed of sound"—761 miles per hour at sea level. Thus it is apparent the Soviets "already have large numbers of military aircraft capable of supersonic flight."

3. "Overnight China has become one of the major air powers of the world." Vandenberg explained that while Red China lacks industrial and technical resources she is the "direct beneficiary of another power" which possesses those resources. He was referring to Russia.

Reds Push Airfield Program

4. The Communists are trying to push their airfield building program southward toward the place where the ground armies are locked in battle. By continuous bombing effort, the USAF has managed to keep three new enemy fields of this type inoperational.

5. While the U.N. air force at present still retains superiority over the Communist air force, its activities are limited by the "ground rules." It can not get at the takeoff points of enemy fighters, destroy them in great numbers and gain actual air "supremacy" (which means the enemy becomes incapable of effective interference).

Vandenberg, obviously referring to the ban on U. N. attacks on Red air bases across the Yalu River in Manchuria, spoke of the "unusual and indeed unique limitation governing the scope of the air war." He said that "under the ground rules established at the outset of the Korean war, it is impossible for us to gain air supremacy.

Warren "Good" After Operation

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21 (AP) — Gov. Earl Warren underwent an operation at the University of California Hospital today for removal of his appendix and a number of abdominal adhesions, the governor's office reported. He is a candidate for the Republican nomination for president.

Dr. Junius B. Harris, Sacramento, in a bulletin at 11:45 a. m., said the condition of the 60-year-old chief executive was good.

Warren was ordered to the UC hospital in San Francisco last Friday for what Dr. Harris termed an acute intestinol distubance. Examinations concluded last night, he said, led to the decision to operate.

The governor's illness came just after he had announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination last Wednesday.

Actually, he had been troubled for three weeks or so before that time, but it became serious enough to prompt Warren to cancel all his engagements and go to the university hospital.

Big Expansion Of Newsprint Industry Approved By DPA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The government today approved an almost 50 per cent expansion of domestic newsprint production facilities. But officials said it may be some time before necessary materials can be made available.

The Defense Production Administration, although approving the expansion, said that "more urgent defense projects" will have to get needed steel, copper and aluminum supplies before the newsprint plants can get their materials.

The DPA's Office of Program and Requirements approved an expansion program that would add 490,000 tons to the yearly production of newsprint.

This compares with total present U. S. newsprint production of about 1,100,000 tons. The U. S. imports 5,000,000 tons a year from Canada.

Nation Marks Thanksgiving With Thoughts Of Fighting Men

[By The Associated Press]

Like the Pilgrim fathers of 1621, Americans pause to savor the hard-won bounties of freedom in a troubled world on this Thanksgiving Day today.

Half at war, striving for peace, the nation plans to observe the holiday with the traditional brown-roasted turkey and all the trimmin's. Sparkling cold, clear weather is forecast generally, with snow in some areas.

Even on the far-off Korean battlefront, many American combat troops could heap their mess kits with Turkey Day fare calculated to make the eyes of their rice-fed Communist enemies pop out. At one frontline post, the mess sergeant prepared a menu ranging from stuffed celery hearts, olives and shrimp cocktail to hot mince pie.

And there was hope, too, that the guns might soon fall silent as American officers expressed cautious optimism for a cease-fire in the bitter fighting that began almost 17 months ago.

The latest casualty list, announced by the Pentagon yesterday, showed just over 100,000 Americans killed, wounded or missing in action. Officials say enemy losses have been at least ten-fold heavier.

In formally proclaiming the day of Thanksgiving, Mr. Truman had called upon his fellow Americans to "pause in their autumn labors and give thanks to almighty God."

Open-air football fans and stay-at-home TV viewers had a heavy menu of games today and over the weekend as the gridiron season entered the homestretch amid the usual controversy over post-season bowl games.

The Weather Bureau reported the coldest weather ever recorded so early in the season in the East and Southeast, but said it should warm up for Thanksgiving Day in the eastern half of the country. Snow was forecast for some western areas.

Gloria Swanson Pans Show But Will Continue In Cast

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP)—Gloria Swanson doesn't want to, but she is going to remain in the cast of the French comedy, "Nina," which opens on Broadway December 5.

Brandon Brent, Miss Swanson's press agent, said she sought to be released from her contract, feeling that her "lines are not good."

But, Brent added, the producer of the show, John C. Wilson, insisted that Miss Swanson honor her contract and continue in her role.

Wilson would say only that he had Miss Swanson's "assurance—and her contract" that she will complete her engagement in Philadelphia and open at the Royal Theater in New York as scheduled.

The stage and screen star had told a reporter for the Journal American in New York:

"I feel that an actress is only as good as her lines and the lines I have are not good. I feel it would be dishonest to come into New York feeling as I do about the play."

Brent said that advance sales on the show have been encouraging, despite a poor press in Philadelphia. Advance sales for a two-week engagement here totaled $20,000, he said.

Claim Of Scrip Owners To Oil Lands Is Denied

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The government refused today to turn over 4,000 acres of undersea oil fields to the owners of government land scrip issued as early as 1855.

A claim to the rich properties by E. L. Cord, one-time manufacturer of the Cord automobile, and 10 associates was turned down by Secretary of the Interior Chapman.

The oil lands are off the coasts of Texas, California and Louisiana.

Cord and the others claimed them in exchange for scrip, or land certificates, issued by the government between 1855 and 1907. These certificates allowed early settlers and Indians to take unoccupied public land of their choice in exchange for lands taken from them.

Some scrip also was given as bonuses to Civil War and other veterans.

Cord, 56, now living in Beverly Hills, Calif., and his associates bought up unused certificates for a reported total of $1,000,000. Then they laid claim to the submerged oil land. The Supreme Court has held the federal government has a "paramount interest" in this land.

Rejecting the applications, Chapman said the properties involved were outside the category of public lands and in several other ways did not fulfill the requirements for lands that could be exchanged for scrip.

The interior secretary made public an opinion by the department's solicitor, Mastin White, which said many of the claimed regions already are producing oil and thus could not be considered unoccupied.

Cord and his associates still can press their claim in the courts.

Fire Trucks Called Out For Barbara

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Fire engines were called out for Barbara Hutton at London airport tonight.

The 39-year-old heiress refused to leave the strato-clipper on which she was traveling from Frankfurt, Germany, to New York. British regulations prohibit passengers remaining aboard planes while they are refueled — unless fire-fighting equipment is standing by.

The other passengers on the plane quickly filed into the airport lounge for the [illegible]-minute refuelling stop, but Miss Hutton picked up a magazine and started reading.

"I would rather stay on board," she announced determinedly.

Oats-Stuffed Turkeys Seized In New York

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration said today it has seized 10,800 pounds of Thanksgiving turkey at New York City on charges that the craws were stuffed with dry oats.

The agency said in a news release that as much as one and one fourth pounds of oats were found in each bird. The birds were being sold as "New York dressed" which meant that only the heads and feet were removed. The agency said the consumer would have had to pay the market price for turkey for the worthless oats.

Parachuting Santa Sought In London

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Daring parachutist required for private continental mission in December, said the classified advertisement in the London Times today.

Experience essential in night drops, small target area, it cautioned.

The advertiser, the Times said, was giving a Christmas Eve party in Switzerland and wanted a modern-day Santa to drop in.

Garner To Celebrate 83rd Birthday Today

UVALDE, Tex., Nov. 22 (AP)—Spry and chipper John Nance Garner came to the eve of his 83rd birthday today still not talking partisan politics.

Garner and his long-time hunting partner, Garageman Ross Brumfield, took their rifles and shotguns to a ranch in the rugged canyon country north of here. They will celebrate his birthday tomorrow hunting deer and turkey.

The former vice-president steered clear of such questions as the Eisenhower presidential boom, holding to his rule of no quotes on politics.

Garner relaxed it enough to rap voter apathy and suggest that Texans get behind a campaign for a new state constitution.

Lowest recorded temperature is 90 degrees below zero, registered at Verkhoyansk, Siberia, U. S. S. R., Feb. 5 and 7, 1892.

State Education Board Vice President Dies

Parachuting Santa Sought In London

LONDON, Nov. 21 (AP) — Daring parachutist required for private continental mission in December, said the classified advertisement in the London Times today.

Experience essential in night drops, small target area, it cautioned.

But the Times took some of its news page space to announce there was no cloak-and-dagger plot in the making.

The advertiser, the Times said, was giving a Christmas Eve party in Switzerland and wanted a modern-day Santa to drop in.

Garner To Celebrate 83rd Birthday Today

UVALDE, Tex., Nov. 22 (AP)—Spry and chipper John Nance Garner came to the eve of his 83rd birthday today still not talking partisan politics.

Garner and his long-time hunting partner, Garageman Ross Brumfield, took their rifles and shotguns to a ranch in the rugged canyon country north of here. They will celebrate his birthday tomorrow hunting deer and turkey.

The former vice-president steered clear of such questions as the Eisenhower presidential boom, holding to his rule of no quotes on politics.

Garner relaxed it enough to rap voter apathy and suggest that Texans get behind a campaign for a new state constitution.

Lowest recorded temperature is 90 degrees below zero, registered at Verkhoyansk, Siberia, U. S. S. R., Feb. 5 and 7, 1892.

State Education Board Vice President Dies

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—Nicholas Orem, Sr., 74, vice president of the Maryland State Board of Education, died today after nine weeks illness.

Orem became a member of the board in 1943. Prior to that he had served as Prince Georges County superintendent of schools since 1921.

A native of St. Michaels, Talbot County, Orem held his first teaching job at Wye Mills, just after service in the Spanish-American War.

Who gets the Drumsticks?...

At our house, isn't this the all-important decision that must be made each year at Thanksgiving dinner? And whether Father's an expert carver or not, there's just never enough drumsticks to go around!

We're looking forward to the day when someone will breed a Turkey with four or five drumsticks. Why not? American ingenuity and industry have exceeded feats even more than a five-legged bird.

Haven't we here, in America produced the chemical fibres and plastics? Haven't we created dolls that walked, talked, that cry tears, and even dolls that say their prayers? Haven't we solved the mystery of atomic energy? Haven't we turned the living room into a million-dollar theatre through the medium of television?

And, Day in, and day out, doesn't our American enterprise provide 150,000,000 people with more of the clothing, food, furnishings, and goods they need for a happier . . . healthier . . . richer . . . and fuller life?

And, aren't we coming closer and closer to the day when there'll be enough of everything to go around—including drumsticks!

Let Us Give Thanks!

Australia's Foreign Minister Says Early Peace In Korea Is Unlikely

Will there be peace in Korea this winter? Is the United Nations in danger of completely falling apart? Why is the free world arming in the Middle East?

Richard Gardiner Casey, Australia's minister for external affairs, answere these questions in the following article written expressly for International News Service.

By RICHARD GARDINER CASEY
Australian Minister for External Affairs

PARIS (INS)—No one can contemplate the possibility of another war with anything but horror—yet the tragic fact is that today, right now, we are living in fear of that pissibility.

Indeed, it is a situation in which we might be plunged into a new war.

The reason is that, increasingly over the past few years, the Soviet Union has used every form of pressure and propaganda to intimidate, undermine and dominate other countries.

Korea increased the tension even more, until there was no alternative left for the democratic nations but to group together to protect their lives, homeland and heritage.

I recently visited Korea. It is impossible to promise that we will soon have peace there—at least during the next three months, the period when the current United Nations General Assembly will be in session in Paris.

I discussed the peace negotiations underway with U. S. Adm. Turner Joy and it was my impression that a cease-fire will not come about if Communist abuse continues, and their sarcasm is to be taken at face value.

Here in Paris, the prime cause of weakness in the UN has been and continues to be Soviet policies and activities. The deliberate expansionist pressure of the USSR has forced others to rearm as quickly as possible or to run the risk, and indeed almost the certainty, of losing our freedom.

If the Soviet Union is anxious to avoid a new world conflict, it should not press the free world beyond the point of no return. But it should act in time and with clarity to demonstrate that it desires peace.

I listened with horror, and I was greatly depressed, at Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky's attacak on Western democracies.

He shrattered all foundations that might be common to democracy and international communism. You cannot hope for peace unless a common talking ground is found. The UN will not flourish, it will wither away and die, if some confidence and trust cannot be engendered.

The Soviet attitude in continuing vitrolic and sarcastic attacks on democracy's attempt to find a common ground is threatening the value of the UN as machinery for maintaining world peace.

Millions of humble people the world over who are yearning for peace must surely be appalled by such cynicism.

Soviet policy has now forced us to seek to extend to the Middle East the same preparations for collective security that we have built in Korea.

One of the key nations in that area is Egypt. Her position seems to be that she will not cooperate with the Middle East command proposed by the U.S., Britain, France and Turkey until what Egypt calls the "British occupation" of Egypt ends.

We hope this General Assembly session will end the existing impasse for the general situation in the Middle East is such that in case of war individual countries could not possibly defend the region as a whole, or themselves alone, without broadening present bilateral agreements.

The Egyptian dispute arises because of her unilateral attempt to avoid a clear undertaking. Peace depends on the meticulous recognition of international obligations, such as the one Egypt undertook in her 1936 treaty with Britain.

Cornpicker Can Bite

The revolution in the cornfield has not, unfortunately, been a bloodless one. A modern cornpicker sometimes bears more than a profile resemblance to a carnivorous dinosaur. This is the season when reports of gunning accidents are varied by reports of arms being caught in the mouths of cornpickers.

Makers of these machines are very safety-conscious. They plaster their new machines with warnings, supplemented by guards and other safety devices. But to be effective a cornpicker must be equipped with gear for rending and tearing. A hand and an arm can be inserted where a stalk of corn can go.

Accidents with cornpickers will decline as farmers become more familiar with the mechanical monster, it is asserted. Certainly the machine is here to stay. The revolution it has wrought in the past few years is probably the most significant since Cyrus McCormick invented the reaper in 1831. Another century and more were to pass before inventive genius made any changes in the ancient American Indian method of harvesting corn.

The Indian's way of planting corn in a "hill" — fertilized by fish — is made obsolete by the cornpicker which handles corn planted by a drill in a continuous row. The white man couldn't improve much on the Indian husking peg, worn on the right hand to help in seizing the husks. Now the peg itself is becoming as obsolete as the buggy whip. Someone ought to save a few for the museums.

If the cornpicker is dangerous, so was the corn knife, a machete-like blade of delicately refined weight and balance. It, too, can be in the exhibit of passing folkways of the harvest.

Defense At Block Level

Soviet Russia ought to know that the West is not going to start another world war. But the fact remains that Russia has developed a civil defense system side by side with military power. The Russian explosion of at least two atom bombs so far—more than matched by U. S. test explosions—adds emphasis to the revelation that Russia has 20,000,000 trained civil defense workers compared to 1,000,000 in this country.

This is the estimate of Millard F. Caldwell, Jr., U. S. Civil Defense administrator. In a recent copyrighted article in U. S. News and World Report he said Russian workers are trained in "all the phases of civil defense, including volunteer police, fire, warden services, medical, nursing, ambulance services, rescue services, engineering."

So far Congress, beset by astronomical demands for money from all sides, has let the people lead in civil defense. It is almost as if Congress feels this country must be hit before action can be taken. Sweden has drafted 9,000,000 persons for civil defense. Certainly no one wants that to happen here.

War and preparation for war in this atomic age become more complicated daily. No activity, no phase of existence, remains untouched by the inexorable demands of Mars. Certainly no section of the nation would be out of bounds for bombing attacks from the air if enemy bombers could get through. Natural resources, war industries and military installations have become so diversified geographically that every state is a potential target area.

Toward Single Standard

Not too soon but neither too late a full-scale, top-level study of the ethics of college athletics is to be undertaken. A special committee of 10 college presidents has been appointed to make recommendations to the nearly 1,000 colleges and universities belonging to the American Council of Education.

Dr. Arthur S. Adams, the council president, places the question of athletic morality in its proper frame, which is the morality of higher education itself. The burden of the resolution calling for the study is that a double standard of ethics in a college is intolerable. The same principles of honor must be set for the athletic department as for the other departments.

In the resolution may be found a hint as to how the long-needed changes may be brought about. There is a recommendation for closer participation by college presidents and executives in athletic policy making.

The list of athletic conferences represented on the committee is impressive. They include the Big Ten, the Ivy League, the Big Seven, the Southwestern, the Mid-American, the Southern, the Southeastern and the Mountain States—plus Notre Dame, which does not belong to a conference.

All the colleges represented belong to that topmost if loose federation, the National Collegiate Athletic Association. For the first time there is reason to hope that high-pressure alumni will be forced to recognize a college's chief goal is teaching, not athletic superiority.

Those Rugged Germs

Many a physician predicted it, and now there's no doubt about it. Those wonder drugs, the antibiotics, aren't as effective as they used to be. Penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin, and chloromycetin all have a lot in common now with DDT, which once upon a time was a wonder insecticide.

The flies died like flies. Then it turned out that some survived, and pretty soon flies that lived to breed were extra rugged. The ruggeder they got, the less power DDT had to knock 'em.

At Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, Army doctors have run some careful experiments on a prime example of bad germ—the golden staphylococcus. In 1947 only 30 per cent of these germs could survive a dose of penicillin. Today more than 60 per cent can. The only golden staphylococci found to give in without a fight nowadays are those from Korea. The people there, unlike Americans, have not been on the receiving end of penicillin for almost any sort of infection.

Penicillin and others of the older antibiotics are not to be sneezed at yet. All are still potent safeguards of health even if they are not as potent as formerly. Yet the removal of their halo means that medical science must look hard for new germ killers—and keep looking. If anything has been learned about miracle drugs it is just this: They aren't miraculous enough to roll on forever.

How To Keep Well

Flu Treatment

Few diseases strike as fast as influenza. A man may leave his office at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and be on the verge of collapse by the time he reaches home. This explosive nature of the disease distinguishes it from other respiratory infections including the common cold.

Influenza epidemics come and go with equal rapidity; the severe visitation of 1918 lasted only comparatively few weeks. The extremely contagious nature of flue makes it spread quickly and we can be thankful for its relative inertia during the last quarter of a century. Mild epidemics have occurred every winter in some parts of the country but we have not nearly approached the 1918 pandemic.

Within 24 to 48 hours after exposure, the afflicted person is stricken suddenly with marked prostration, chills, and fever. The head pounds and there is intolerable aching in the back, arms, and legs. Few conditions leave the victim feeling so miserable; even the eyeballs hurt. In a short time the mouth becomes dry, the throat raspy, and a troublesome dry cough appears. Occasionally the sputum is pink and frothy; in others, it is sticky and tenacious and difficult to expel.

Most sufferers feel better within a day or two and the outcome usually is good. This is in contrast to what happens in the presence of a pandemic. The disease is severe and one out of every three cases stands a possibility of not surviving. According to Cecil, who wrote of his experience during the 1918 outbreak. "It was not so much the upper respiratory symptoms such as cough, sore throat, and coryza as it was the high fever, intense muscular aching, and extreme prostration which were conspicuous. (There was) the tendency in a good many cases for the virus to go straight to the lungs, producing the so-called pneumonia, form of influenza .... quite similar in pathology to present day virus pneumonia except for the intense hemorrhage and (cronchial) edema which accompanied it.... The fatality rate for this pandemic form of influenzal pneumonia was amazingly high, considering the fact that most of its victims were healthy young adults. It varied in different training camps from 30 per cent to 60 per cent. This was long before the days of antibiotic therapy."

Pencillin, terramycin, aureomycin, and chloromycetin will help the more severe cases when secondary invaders are present.. But the wonder drugs rarely are needed in the everyday variety of flu. The sufferer will obtain more relief by going to bed and remaining there until the temperature subsides. Wool blankets and heat from a hot water bag or a heating pad may be called for in the stage of chills and drenching perspiration. Salicylates such as aspirin or Dover's powder's will ease aching. Fruit juices supply nourishment as well as fluids and fresh air makes the patient more comfortable. More than one victim has requested a sedative in hopes of sleeping off the illness. This is of value because rest is nature's best remedy. Cough medicines are in order and now and then the strongest are required to suppress irritation.

SATURDAY: Children's arches develop slowly.

ARCH SURGERY

A. H. writes: Is there an operation that will restore the arches in flat feet?

REPLY

Yes, but operation rarely is advised unless flat feet are producing marked disability and cannot be corrected by simpler means.

FOOLISH MAN

T. S. writes: I have a dopey friend who drinks four gallons of coffee a day and smokes 50 cigarets. Do you think this is too much?

REPLY

Yes. I agree with your diagnosis: very dopey.

GRIPPING POWDER

M. J. writes: Will the everyday use of powder to keep my dentures firm affect the health in any way?

REPLY

Not if the powders are accepted as safe by dental associations.

ENLARGED NECK GLANDS

Mrs. J. H. writes: For some time the glands in my neck have been swollen. The physicians who have examined me have made blood counts and found no infection. They say not to worry but I do. Can you advise?

REPLY

Why not take the word of the physicians who have examined you? They apparently have done everything except a biopsy to determine whether the condition is innocent or serious. Removal of the glands for laboratory study is the only step that remains and your physicians will be glad to do this if you insist.

NEURITIS OF EYE

M. W. writes: What causes optic neuritis?

REPLY

The most common causes are infections, poisoning with lead or alcohol, and infectious diseases such as influenza and encephalitis. Occasionally the nerve becomes inflamed by extension of a sinus infection.

Parallels Noted Between Pilgrim Fathers And Surge For Freedom By Peoples Behind Iron Curtain; Conditions In Russia Not Unlike England 300 Years Ago

BOSTON—This column is written from within a few miles of the famous rock where the Pilgrim fathers landed and later gave thanks for being delivered into a a new land of freedom.

In continuing their precedent of giving thanks, it is important to remember the conditions under which they helped to establish a new nation, and also to draw some parallels between what happened then and what is happening today.

When the Pilgrim Fathers left England there was a new surge on the part of the common people for freedom. For the first time the people of England were learning to read and write. For the first time the Bible had begun to circulate among commoners instead of being read only in the churches. People read it avidly, were stirred by it, sought the freedom to think and worship for themselves.

There was in England at that time a system of thought-control not unlike that existing behind the Iron Curtain today. Whereas the thought-control in Russia is political, the thought-control in England was religious. People were expected to follow the religion of the monarch, who one day might be Catholic, the next day Protestant.

Eventually they rebelled. They organized a 17th Century Crusade for Freedom and established a free nation of their own.

Restlessness Behind Iron Curtain

Today one of the things we can be thankful for is that a somewhat similar surge of restlessness is reported from behind the Iron Curtain. It is too early yet to call it a surge for freedom, but it could be.

Conditions in Russia are not unlike those existing in England 300 years ago. Under the Czar only 25 percent of the people could read or write. Today perhaps 80 per cent of the Russian people are literate. Though they have been reared on the Communist doctrine, just as the Pilgrim fathers were reared on the doctrine handed down by the Crown and the Church Hierarchy, it's apparent that the Russian people also have a yearning to know more about the outside world, to establish their own standards of freedom.

This is especially true in the satellite countries which were forced, against their will, to come under the Iron Curtain.

All signs indicate that it is equally true of the people inside Russia though their struggle is more difficult.

It should never be forgotten that of the heterogeneous nationality groups welded together under the union of Socialist Soviet Republics, 55 per cent are non-Russian. They are Ukrainians, Mongols, Turkomen, Kirghiz, Armenians and White Russians, most of them hungry for their own nationalistic identity. They are like the far-flung Austro-Hungarian Empire whose different ethnic groups fell to pieces in 1918.

Destroying A Spectre

This surge for freedom inside the polyglot Russian Empire has taken several forms. There have been revolts among the peasants.

They are reported to be about 15,000,000 political prisoners in concentration camps. Unwillingness on the part of University of Moscow students to go along with the Soviet program has even been reported in the Moscow press.

Finally, refugees from behind the Iron Curtain are coming out in steady streams of about 1,000 a month, not unlike the exodus of the Pilgrim fathers seeking a new life in a new world. And if they could be guided to new areas in Africa and South America under the point 4 program, they too might become pioneers for political and religious freedom and serve as a magnet to attract others and thus break down the Iron Curtain.

In fact some observers in West Germany last summer told me that most of the Red Army in East Germany would desert their Moscow masters if given a chance to resettle on farms in Africa and South America. Once you cut the ground out from under the occupying army in East Germany, you of course destroy the thing Western Europe fears most—the dread spectre of 30 Red divisions crossing the Rhine and moving on the English channel.

Pioneers Of Friendship

In New England this Thanksgiving week, some of the descendants of the Pilgrim fathers, plus descendants of more recent Pilgrims, participated in a new Crusade for Freedom to raise money to operate Radio Free Europe and to send freedom balloons across the Iron Curtain bearing messages of hope and frinedship to the captive people on the other side.

The leaders of this New England Crusade for Freedom do not all bear names similar to those of the Pilgrim fathers. Their names range from John DelMonte, the Labor Comissioner, to Rubin Gryzmish, the cigar manufacturer; from George Swartz to Paul Clark of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company; from Mayor John Hynes to Salvator Camelio of the CIO; from Thomas Pappas and John Shea to Harold Hodgkinson of Filene's Department Store.

Yet they are all pioneers in a new realization that no matter how

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman has unfolded a bit of political strategy that may mislead the Republicans into taking the very step he seemingly doesn't want them to take— to make foreign policy the issue in the next campaign.

Mr. Truman told the Women's National Democratic Club that he hoped the Republicans wouldn't make foreign policy "a partisan political issue" in the coming presidential campaign but that, if they do, it will be met and that "it will be the best issue the Democratic party has."

What was the President's purpose in devoting so much of his speech to a warning to Republicans? It is most unusual this early in the pre-election campaign to find the head of the administration in power giving advice to political opponents on what the issues should or shouldn't be. The answer may be that the President, whether or not he is himself to be the nominee, wants to make the record clear early—he wants to be in a position to wage a vehement attack on the Republican attitude toward foreign policy because he really believes that's the best issue.

For one thing, any concentration of public attention on foreign-policy issues takes a great deal of the heat off domestic issues and controversies. There are many Republicans, too, who do not want to see foreign policy an issue, because they tend to go along with some of the major points in the administration's foreign policy. If, for example, General Eisenhower is the Republican nominee, it seems certain that he would embrace many of the foreign-policy proposals and activities of the Truman administration.

Certain Issue

But if Senator Taft is the Republican nominee, foreign policy is certain to be an issue anyway. In his much-discussed book, just out, the Ohio Senator analyzes the Truman foreign policy and minces no words in speaking out against certain acts of the administration in the international political and economic fields.

What it amounts to, therefore, is a warning to the Republicans that, if they nominate Taft and he makes foreign policy an issue, the Democrats will rejoice because they feel that on foreign policy they can split the Republican party and insure the votes of enough independents to win the election for the Democratic party nominee.

There are Republican strategists, on the other hand, who think Mr. Truman was quite right in referring in his speech to the 1920 campaign, because at that time there was such a revulsion of feeling against World War I and its irritations on the economic side that the Republicans won in a landslide with an Ohio Senator, Warren Harding, a colorless candidate, as the nominee.

In many respects the Republicans who want to make foreign policy an issue next year think that is is bound to win for them because of the unpopularity of the Korean war. They look on the high expenditures in the Far East and Europe as having resulted from what they regard as the administration's failure to keep China from falling into the hands of the Communists.

Defensive Spirit

The speech, notwithstanding its gibes at the Republican party, is on the whole defensive in spirit. The President's plaintive prediction that the Republicans will have "enormous slush funds" is intended as a sort of anticipatory rebuttal to the cry of the Republicans that it will be difficult for them "to beat 85 billions" of government spending.

Mr. Truman has tried to conceal his intentions as to his own possible candidacy. His exact words will bear examination: "I'm not going to make any announcement about who the candidate will be, although I do have some ideas on the subject."

It might be asked how anyone can "announce" who the candidate "will be" unless he is President himself and in control of the party machinery. It could mean he will dictate the choice, and it could mean that "some ideas on the subject" means he will some day come out in favor of his own selection—but the faithful officeholders here think he intends to run himself. Still the phrasing of the whole speech is more objective than any of the speeches Mr. Truman used to make prior to the 1948 contest, and his emphasis on the party and his lack of detailed defense of his own record in office, particularly on domestic issues, is significant. Politically speaking, it was a good speech for his side.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

The Island In The Sea

TEL AVIV

"You can say that again, brother."

This remark, in a strong Mid-Western accent, comes strangely to the ears on a chilly windswept northern mountaintop in this ancient land. The remark is made by a wiry, blond boy from Minnesota, in answer to a question—isn't it a tough job to cultivate this mountain soil, which seems to consist more of rocks than of soil? The Minnesotan is the accountant of a Kibbutz, or agricultural settlement, founded a couple of years ago by ninety-odd American Zionists.

On the very top of the mountain is what remains of an Arab village, now a mere rubble and jumble of yellow stones, piled higgledy-piggledy on top of each other. Just below these ruins are the sleeping quarters of the Kibbutz, long green wooden shacks, like the huts in the cheapest sort of American summer resort. The shacks are divided off into cubicles, on a simple door-window, door-window pattern. To each of these tiny, unheated cubicles a couple is assigned. These cubicles are the only private retreat of the Kibbutz members. Their children are cared for collectively, and all eat in a communal dining hall.

For two years now, the members of this collective have been living an incredibly hard life on this naked mountaintop, somehow wrestling a bare subsistence from the dry, rocky soil, slowly building permanent living quarters with their own hands, living without privacy, without money, without even clothes of their own. There is something grim yet genuinely moving in this dedicated monastic living, so utterly outside the experience of most Americans.

Amid Mouldering Ruins

Yet to the American newly-arrived here, there is something grimly moving, too, about the mouldering ruins of the Arab village. For these runs must surely serve as a constant reminder that the land now cultivated by the Kibbutz members gave a living, not long ago, to men of a different race. What happened, the Minnesota boy is asked, to the village and the Arabs who lived in it?

The Arabs, he says, ran away during the Arab-Israeli War. As for the village, it was dynamited after the Arabs ran away. This was the policy of the government, he says wryly—to "dissuade" the Arabs from returning. What does he think of this matter of the taking over of the Arab land? Does it ever worry him and the other members of the Kibbutz?

This question, the boy from Minnesota answers simply, used to trouble them all deeply, both as Americans and as Marxists (for this, like the majority of the agricultural collectives, is a left-wing Kibbutz). They would ask each other the question, and never find a really satisfactory answer. But that was only the beginning. Now, hardly anybody thinks about it any more.

This incident serves to illustrate both the strength and the weakness of the new Israeli state. On the one hand, there is the fierce idealism which has led this likeable Middle-Westerner, like hundreds of thousands of his fellow Jews from all over the world, to sacrifice everything in order to build a new life and a new nation on this inhospitable soil. This reporter has never in his travels seen anything more impressive than what is being done in this tiny state—land being reclaimed from the desert; work and food and housing found somehow for the great flood of immigrants; everywhere drive and energy and hope.

There's Weakness Too

Yet there is weakness too. It lies in the simple fact that almost 900,000 Arabs (according to the latest United Nations' head count) once lived in the houses and owned the shops and worked the land now lived in and owned and worked by hundreds of thousands of Israelis. It is with a sense of shock that one sees dozens of dynamited and dead Arab villages in the north, in the area assigned to the Arabs (because they had a great majority of the population) in the original United Nations' partition plan. It is with a sense of shock also that one visits such a city as Jaffa, a noisy, bustling, Arab city when this reporter was here four years ago, and sees virtually every Arab house and every Arab shop now occupied by the Israelis.

It is true that the Arabs started the war, and that they would have driven every last Jew into the sea if they had been able to. It is true that most of the Arabs ran away. The terrible need of the Jews for a land of their own is true. But it is also true that the founding of this nation involved taking over the property and livelihood of hundreds of thousands of people. No doubt there was no other way. Yet a nation so founded is by the very nature of things condemned to live for a very long time as an island in a sea of hate and fear.

This hate and fear, according to those who know this area best, is no simple matter of the mouthings of an occasional demogue or fanatic. It is a deep and long-lasting emotion. This is by no means to say that the United States should abandon support of this state. Indeed, for all sorts of reasons, it is in the plain American interest that the extraordinary experiment here should not fail. Even so, the passionate Arab reaction to the establishment of this state should be accepted for what it is—one of the central political factors in this whole threatened, vital area. And the Arab reaction is as understandable in its way as the desperate need and the terrible memories which drove the Jews into establishing, for the first time in 2,000 years a state of their own.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Atrocities

The Pentagon had photographic and detailed information concerning the Korean atrocities when General Douglas MacArthur was in command there. That the Chinese communists were killing American prisoners of war therefore was known to all Intelligence agencies operating in Korea. The suppression of the story was obviously political so that the Untied Nations, our British allies, and the Soviet Chinese enemy might not be embarrassed.

If this statement is doubted or challenged, there is one way of proving or disproving it. A Congressional committee can put General Douglas MacArthur, General Charles A. Willoughby, and General Walter Bedell Smith of the Central Intelligence Agency on the witness stand and have them testify under oath. I am sure that in open session, under oath, at least two of them will testify that the information Colonel James M. Hanley disclosed was sent to the Pentagon through channels. A competent investigation would traverse those channels to the highest authority who received the facts and details of the massacres and ordered their suppression.

This is a serious charge to make and I do it, only because I have traversed some areas of this problem and know that, so far as I can go, the facts are as here stated. To go further would require the power of subpoena.

There is another point to make. From 1918 to 1931, I was with Chinese armies, often being very close to their commanders in personal friendships. During that entire period, I never saw a prisoner of war camp although the Chinese were then at war against each other, killing off huge numbers. I am sure that I saw the first modern military hospital at Shanghai, operated by Drs. W. S. and W. L. New, Chinese educated in England and the United States, but I never even heard of a prisoner of war camp.

The usual method of handling defeated enemies was to disarm them and send them home or to incorporate them in the conquering army. I have witnessed both processes. As a Chinese soldier's tool is his rifle, his problem used to be to keep that instrument as a private possession. A soldier with a rifle had a better chance of getting into the conquering army than a soldier without one.

The vanquished soldiers who were disarmed and sent home usually joined some bandit band which was engaged in ravishing the country either in association with a local war-lord or against him. I have known bandits of both kinds. In North China, the role of bandit and soldier was interchangeable with startling constancy.

I have witnessed soldiers being strung on poles or their heads put on top of bridges as a symbol to frighten others. In my day in China, this was not unusual and was accepted casually.

The cost of maintaining, feeding and guarding prisoners of war is high in any country. In a low standard of living country like China, the cost is beyond the means of armies which are living off the country. Therefore when it was impossible to send disarmed soldiers home or impractical to incorporate them in the conqueror's army, the cheapest way to handle the situation was to kill them. At a matter of fact, life is so cheap in the Orient that it must be unbelievable to them that we feed our captives better than they feed their own soldiers.

This is the background that undoubtedly was known to our military authorities when they went into the Korean War. They must have known that Chinese fight to kill, that they are not merciful, that they particularly enjoy murdering their "exploiters," that is, the so-called Europeans, which includes Americans. They had the experience of the Nanking massacre in 1927 when the Communists murdered whomever they could, particularly foreigners. Before that, there was ample evidence going back to the days of the Boxer rebellion.

But even if we are to assume that nobody in the Pentagon has any background. an incorrect assumption, it is true and under the processes I recommend demonstrable that our government was informed by its own military intelligence out of Tokyo that the Chinese Communists were massacring American prisoners of war.

The data was ignored. The Pentagon was then regarding everything that General MacArthur and his staff reported with suspicion because they knew that he wanted to fight not a halting but a winning war. They preferred Acheson's dialectics to MacArthur's facts.

And now we have it—100,000 and more casualties; perhaps 20,000 dead.

Cornpicker Can Bite

The revolution in the cornfield has not, unfortunately, been a bloodless one. A modern cornpicker sometimes bears more than a profile resemblance to a carnivorous dinosaur. This is the season when reports of gunning accidents are varied by reports of arms being caught in the mouths of cornpickers.

Makers of these machines are very safety-conscious. They plaster their new machines with warnings, supplemented by guards and other safety devices. But to be effective a cornpicker must be equipped with gear for rending and tearing. A hand and an arm can be inserted where a stalk of corn can go.

Accidents with cornpickers will decline as farmers become more familiar with the mechanical monster, it is asserted. Certainly the machine is here to stay. The revolution it has wrought in the past few years is probably the most significant since Cyrus McCormick invented the reaper in 1831. Another century and more were to pass before inventive genius made any changes in the ancient American Indian method of harvesting corn.

The Indian's way of planting corn in a "hill" — fertilized by fish — is made obsolete by the cornpicker which handles corn planted by a drill in a continuous row. The white man couldn't improve much on the Indian husking peg, worn on the right hand to help in seizing the husks. Now the peg itself is becoming as obsolete as the buggy whip. Someone ought to save a few for the museums.

If the cornpicker is dangerous, so was the corn knife, a machete-like blade of delicately refined weight and balance. It, too, can be in the exhibit of passing folkways of the harvest.

Defense At Block Level

Soviet Russia ought to know that the West is not going to start another world war. But the fact remains that Russia has developed a civil defense system side by side with military power. The Russian explosion of at least two atom bombs so far—more than matched by U. S. test explosions—adds emphasis to the revelation that Russia has 20,000,000 trained civil defense workers compared to 1,000,000 in this country.

This is the estimate of Millard F. Caldwell, Jr., U. S. Civil Defense administrator. In a recent copyrighted article in U. S. News and World Report he said Russian workers are trained in "all the phases of civil defense, including volunteer police, fire, warden services, medical, nursing, ambulance services, rescue services, engineering."

So far Congress, beset by astronomical demands for money from all sides, has let the people lead in civil defense. It is almost as if Congress feels this country must be hit before action can be taken. Sweden has drafted 9,000,000 persons for civil defense. Certainly no one wants that to happen here.

War and preparation for war in this atomic age become more complicated daily. No activity, no phase of existence, remains untouched by the inexorable demands of Mars. Certainly no section of the nation would be out of bounds for bombing attacks from the air if enemy bombers could get through. Natural resources, war industries and military installations have become so diversified geographically that every state is a potential target area.

Toward Single Standard

Not too soon but neither too late a full-scale, top-level study of the ethics of college athletics is to be undertaken. A special committee of 10 college presidents has been appointed to make recommendations to the nearly 1,000 colleges and universities belonging to the American Council of Education.

Dr. Arthur S. Adams, the council president, places the question of athletic morality in its proper frame, which is the morality of higher education itself. The burden of the resolution calling for the study is that a double standard of ethics in a college is intolerable. The same principles of honor must be set for the athletic department as for the other departments.

In the resolution may be found a hint as to how the long-needed changes may be brought about. There is a recommendation for closer participation by college presidents and executives in athletic policy making.

The list of athletic conferences represented on the committee is impressive. They include the Big Ten, the Ivy League, the Big Seven, the Southwestern, the Mid-American, the Southern, the Southeastern and the Mountain States—plus Notre Dame, which does not belong to a conference.

All the colleges represented belong to that topmost if loose federation, the National Collegiate Athletic Association. For the first time there is reason to hope that high-pressure alumni will be forced to recognize a college's chief goal is teaching, not athletic superiority.

Those Rugged Germs

Many a physician predicted it, and now there's no doubt about it. Those wonder drugs, the antibiotics, aren't as effective as they used to be. Penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin, and chloromycetin all have a lot in common now with DDT, which once upon a time was a wonder insecticide.

The flies died like flies. Then it turned out that some survived, and pretty soon flies that lived to breed were extra rugged. The ruggeder they got, the less power DDT had to knock 'em.

At Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, Army doctors have run some careful experiments on a prime example of bad germ—the golden staphylococcus. In 1947 only 30 per cent of these germs could survive a dose of penicillin. Today more than 60 per cent can. The only golden staphylococci found to give in without a fight nowadays are those from Korea. The people there, unlike Americans, have not been on the receiving end of penicillin for almost any sort of infection.

Penicillin and others of the older antibiotics are not to be sneezed at yet. All are still potent safeguards of health even if they are not as potent as formerly. Yet the removal of their halo means that medical science must look hard for new germ killers—and keep looking. If anything has been learned about miracle drugs it is just this: They aren't miraculous enough to roll on forever.

How To Keep Well

Flu Treatment

Few diseases strike as fast as influenza. A man may leave his office at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and be on the verge of collapse by the time he reaches home. This explosive nature of the disease distinguishes it from other respiratory infections including the common cold.

Influenza epidemics come and go with equal rapidity; the severe visitation of 1918 lasted only comparatively few weeks. The extremely contagious nature of flue makes it spread quickly and we can be thankful for its relative inertia during the last quarter of a century. Mild epidemics have occurred every winter in some parts of the country but we have not nearly approached the 1918 pandemic.

Within 24 to 48 hours after exposure, the afflicted person is stricken suddenly with marked prostration, chills, and fever. The head pounds and there is intolerable aching in the back, arms, and legs. Few conditions leave the victim feeling so miserable; even the eyeballs hurt. In a short time the mouth becomes dry, the throat raspy, and a troublesome dry cough appears. Occasionally the sputum is pink and frothy; in others, it is sticky and tenacious and difficult to expel.

Most sufferers feel better within a day or two and the outcome usually is good. This is in contrast to what happens in the presence of a pandemic. The disease is severe and one out of every three cases stands a possibility of not surviving. According to Cecil, who wrote of his experience during the 1918 outbreak. "It was not so much the upper respiratory symptoms such as cough, sore throat, and coryza as it was the high fever, intense muscular aching, and extreme prostration which were conspicuous. (There was) the tendency in a good many cases for the virus to go straight to the lungs, producing the so-called pneumonia, form of influenza .... quite similar in pathology to present day virus pneumonia except for the intense hemorrhage and (cronchial) edema which accompanied it.... The fatality rate for this pandemic form of influenzal pneumonia was amazingly high, considering the fact that most of its victims were healthy young adults. It varied in different training camps from 30 per cent to 60 per cent. This was long before the days of antibiotic therapy."

Pencillin, terramycin, aureomycin, and chloromycetin will help the more severe cases when secondary invaders are present.. But the wonder drugs rarely are needed in the everyday variety of flu. The sufferer will obtain more relief by going to bed and remaining there until the temperature subsides. Wool blankets and heat from a hot water bag or a heating pad may be called for in the stage of chills and drenching perspiration. Salicylates such as aspirin or Dover's powder's will ease aching. Fruit juices supply nourishment as well as fluids and fresh air makes the patient more comfortable. More than one victim has requested a sedative in hopes of sleeping off the illness. This is of value because rest is nature's best remedy. Cough medicines are in order and now and then the strongest are required to suppress irritation.

SATURDAY: Children's arches develop slowly.

ARCH SURGERY

A. H. writes: Is there an operation that will restore the arches in flat feet?

REPLY

Yes, but operation rarely is advised unless flat feet are producing marked disability and cannot be corrected by simpler means.

FOOLISH MAN

T. S. writes: I have a dopey friend who drinks four gallons of coffee a day and smokes 50 cigarets. Do you think this is too much?

REPLY

Yes. I agree with your diagnosis: very dopey.

GRIPPING POWDER

M. J. writes: Will the everyday use of powder to keep my dentures firm affect the health in any way?

REPLY

Not if the powders are accepted as safe by dental associations.

ENLARGED NECK GLANDS

Mrs. J. H. writes: For some time the glands in my neck have been swollen. The physicians who have examined me have made blood counts and found no infection. They say not to worry but I do. Can you advise?

REPLY

Why not take the word of the physicians who have examined you? They apparently have done everything except a biopsy to determine whether the condition is innocent or serious. Removal of the glands for laboratory study is the only step that remains and your physicians will be glad to do this if you insist.

NEURITIS OF EYE

M. W. writes: What causes optic neuritis?

REPLY

The most common causes are infections, poisoning with lead or alcohol, and infectious diseases such as influenza and encephalitis. Occasionally the nerve becomes inflamed by extension of a sinus infection.

Parallels Noted Between Pilgrim Fathers And Surge For Freedom By Peoples Behind Iron Curtain; Conditions In Russia Not Unlike England 300 Years Ago

BOSTON—This column is written from within a few miles of the famous rock where the Pilgrim fathers landed and later gave thanks for being delivered into a a new land of freedom.

In continuing their precedent of giving thanks, it is important to remember the conditions under which they helped to establish a new nation, and also to draw some parallels between what happened then and what is happening today.

When the Pilgrim Fathers left England there was a new surge on the part of the common people for freedom. For the first time the people of England were learning to read and write. For the first time the Bible had begun to circulate among commoners instead of being read only in the churches. People read it avidly, were stirred by it, sought the freedom to think and worship for themselves.

There was in England at that time a system of thought-control not unlike that existing behind the Iron Curtain today. Whereas the thought-control in Russia is political, the thought-control in England was religious. People were expected to follow the religion of the monarch, who one day might be Catholic, the next day Protestant.

Eventually they rebelled. They organized a 17th Century Crusade for Freedom and established a free nation of their own.

Restlessness Behind Iron Curtain

Today one of the things we can be thankful for is that a somewhat similar surge of restlessness is reported from behind the Iron Curtain. It is too early yet to call it a surge for freedom, but it could be.

Conditions in Russia are not unlike those existing in England 300 years ago. Under the Czar only 25 percent of the people could read or write. Today perhaps 80 per cent of the Russian people are literate. Though they have been reared on the Communist doctrine, just as the Pilgrim fathers were reared on the doctrine handed down by the Crown and the Church Hierarchy, it's apparent that the Russian people also have a yearning to know more about the outside world, to establish their own standards of freedom.

This is especially true in the satellite countries which were forced, against their will, to come under the Iron Curtain.

All signs indicate that it is equally true of the people inside Russia though their struggle is more difficult.

It should never be forgotten that of the heterogeneous nationality groups welded together under the union of Socialist Soviet Republics, 55 per cent are non-Russian. They are Ukrainians, Mongols, Turkomen, Kirghiz, Armenians and White Russians, most of them hungry for their own nationalistic identity. They are like the far-flung Austro-Hungarian Empire whose different ethnic groups fell to pieces in 1918.

Destroying A Spectre

This surge for freedom inside the polyglot Russian Empire has taken several forms. There have been revolts among the peasants.

They are reported to be about 15,000,000 political prisoners in concentration camps. Unwillingness on the part of University of Moscow students to go along with the Soviet program has even been reported in the Moscow press.

Finally, refugees from behind the Iron Curtain are coming out in steady streams of about 1,000 a month, not unlike the exodus of the Pilgrim fathers seeking a new life in a new world. And if they could be guided to new areas in Africa and South America under the point 4 program, they too might become pioneers for political and religious freedom and serve as a magnet to attract others and thus break down the Iron Curtain.

In fact some observers in West Germany last summer told me that most of the Red Army in East Germany would desert their Moscow masters if given a chance to resettle on farms in Africa and South America. Once you cut the ground out from under the occupying army in East Germany, you of course destroy the thing Western Europe fears most—the dread spectre of 30 Red divisions crossing the Rhine and moving on the English channel.

Pioneers Of Friendship

In New England this Thanksgiving week, some of the descendants of the Pilgrim fathers, plus descendants of more recent Pilgrims, participated in a new Crusade for Freedom to raise money to operate Radio Free Europe and to send freedom balloons across the Iron Curtain bearing messages of hope and frinedship to the captive people on the other side.

The leaders of this New England Crusade for Freedom do not all bear names similar to those of the Pilgrim fathers. Their names range from John DelMonte, the Labor Comissioner, to Rubin Gryzmish, the cigar manufacturer; from George Swartz to Paul Clark of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company; from Mayor John Hynes to Salvator Camelio of the CIO; from Thomas Pappas and John Shea to Harold Hodgkinson of Filene's Department Store.

Yet they are all pioneers in a new realization that no matter how

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — President Truman has unfolded a bit of political strategy that may mislead the Republicans into taking the very step he seemingly doesn't want them to take— to make foreign policy the issue in the next campaign.

Mr. Truman told the Women's National Democratic Club that he hoped the Republicans wouldn't make foreign policy "a partisan political issue" in the coming presidential campaign but that, if they do, it will be met and that "it will be the best issue the Democratic party has."

What was the President's purpose in devoting so much of his speech to a warning to Republicans? It is most unusual this early in the pre-election campaign to find the head of the administration in power giving advice to political opponents on what the issues should or shouldn't be. The answer may be that the President, whether or not he is himself to be the nominee, wants to make the record clear early—he wants to be in a position to wage a vehement attack on the Republican attitude toward foreign policy because he really believes that's the best issue.

For one thing, any concentration of public attention on foreign-policy issues takes a great deal of the heat off domestic issues and controversies. There are many Republicans, too, who do not want to see foreign policy an issue, because they tend to go along with some of the major points in the administration's foreign policy. If, for example, General Eisenhower is the Republican nominee, it seems certain that he would embrace many of the foreign-policy proposals and activities of the Truman administration.

Certain Issue

But if Senator Taft is the Republican nominee, foreign policy is certain to be an issue anyway. In his much-discussed book, just out, the Ohio Senator analyzes the Truman foreign policy and minces no words in speaking out against certain acts of the administration in the international political and economic fields.

What it amounts to, therefore, is a warning to the Republicans that, if they nominate Taft and he makes foreign policy an issue, the Democrats will rejoice because they feel that on foreign policy they can split the Republican party and insure the votes of enough independents to win the election for the Democratic party nominee.

There are Republican strategists, on the other hand, who think Mr. Truman was quite right in referring in his speech to the 1920 campaign, because at that time there was such a revulsion of feeling against World War I and its irritations on the economic side that the Republicans won in a landslide with an Ohio Senator, Warren Harding, a colorless candidate, as the nominee.

In many respects the Republicans who want to make foreign policy an issue next year think that is is bound to win for them because of the unpopularity of the Korean war. They look on the high expenditures in the Far East and Europe as having resulted from what they regard as the administration's failure to keep China from falling into the hands of the Communists.

Defensive Spirit

The speech, notwithstanding its gibes at the Republican party, is on the whole defensive in spirit. The President's plaintive prediction that the Republicans will have "enormous slush funds" is intended as a sort of anticipatory rebuttal to the cry of the Republicans that it will be difficult for them "to beat 85 billions" of government spending.

Mr. Truman has tried to conceal his intentions as to his own possible candidacy. His exact words will bear examination: "I'm not going to make any announcement about who the candidate will be, although I do have some ideas on the subject."

It might be asked how anyone can "announce" who the candidate "will be" unless he is President himself and in control of the party machinery. It could mean he will dictate the choice, and it could mean that "some ideas on the subject" means he will some day come out in favor of his own selection—but the faithful officeholders here think he intends to run himself. Still the phrasing of the whole speech is more objective than any of the speeches Mr. Truman used to make prior to the 1948 contest, and his emphasis on the party and his lack of detailed defense of his own record in office, particularly on domestic issues, is significant. Politically speaking, it was a good speech for his side.

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

TEL AVIV

"You can say that again, brother."

This remark, in a strong Mid-Western accent, comes strangely to the ears on a chilly windswept northern mountaintop in this ancient land. The remark is made by a wiry, blond boy from Minnesota, in answer to a question—isn't it a tough job to cultivate this mountain soil, which seems to consist more of rocks than of soil? The Minnesotan is the accountant of a Kibbutz, or agricultural settlement, founded a couple of years ago by ninety-odd American Zionists.

On the very top of the mountain is what remains of an Arab village, now a mere rubble and jumble of yellow stones, piled higgledy-piggledy on top of each other. Just below these ruins are the sleeping quarters of the Kibbutz, long green wooden shacks, like the huts in the cheapest sort of American summer resort. The shacks are divided off into cubicles, on a simple door-window, door-window pattern. To each of these tiny, unheated cubicles a couple is assigned. These cubicles are the only private retreat of the Kibbutz members. Their children are cared for collectively, and all eat in a communal dining hall.

For two years now, the members of this collective have been living an incredibly hard life on this naked mountaintop, somehow wrestling a bare subsistence from the dry, rocky soil, slowly building permanent living quarters with their own hands, living without privacy, without money, without even clothes of their own. There is something grim yet genuinely moving in this dedicated monastic living, so utterly outside the experience of most Americans.

Amid Mouldering Ruins

Yet to the American newly-arrived here, there is something grimly moving, too, about the mouldering ruins of the Arab village. For these runs must surely serve as a constant reminder that the land now cultivated by the Kibbutz members gave a living, not long ago, to men of a different race. What happened, the Minnesota boy is asked, to the village and the Arabs who lived in it?

The Arabs, he says, ran away during the Arab-Israeli War. As for the village, it was dynamited after the Arabs ran away. This was the policy of the government, he says wryly—to "dissuade" the Arabs from returning. What does he think of this matter of the taking over of the Arab land? Does it ever worry him and the other members of the Kibbutz?

This question, the boy from Minnesota answers simply, used to trouble them all deeply, both as Americans and as Marxists (for this, like the majority of the agricultural collectives, is a left-wing Kibbutz). They would ask each other the question, and never find a really satisfactory answer. But that was only the beginning. Now, hardly anybody thinks about it any more.

This incident serves to illustrate both the strength and the weakness of the new Israeli state. On the one hand, there is the fierce idealism which has led this likeable Middle-Westerner, like hundreds of thousands of his fellow Jews from all over the world, to sacrifice everything in order to build a new life and a new nation on this inhospitable soil. This reporter has never in his travels seen anything more impressive than what is being done in this tiny state—land being reclaimed from the desert; work and food and housing found somehow for the great flood of immigrants; everywhere drive and energy and hope.

There's Weakness Too

Yet there is weakness too. It lies in the simple fact that almost 900,000 Arabs (according to the latest United Nations' head count) once lived in the houses and owned the shops and worked the land now lived in and owned and worked by hundreds of thousands of Israelis. It is with a sense of shock that one sees dozens of dynamited and dead Arab villages in the north, in the area assigned to the Arabs (because they had a great majority of the population) in the original United Nations' partition plan. It is with a sense of shock also that one visits such a city as Jaffa, a noisy, bustling, Arab city when this reporter was here four years ago, and sees virtually every Arab house and every Arab shop now occupied by the Israelis.

It is true that the Arabs started the war, and that they would have driven every last Jew into the sea if they had been able to. It is true that most of the Arabs ran away. The terrible need of the Jews for a land of their own is true. But it is also true that the founding of this nation involved taking over the property and livelihood of hundreds of thousands of people. No doubt there was no other way. Yet a nation so founded is by the very nature of things condemned to live for a very long time as an island in a sea of hate and fear.

This hate and fear, according to those who know this area best, is no simple matter of the mouthings of an occasional demogue or fanatic. It is a deep and long-lasting emotion. This is by no means to say that the United States should abandon support of this state. Indeed, for all sorts of reasons, it is in the plain American interest that the extraordinary experiment here should not fail. Even so, the passionate Arab reaction to the establishment of this state should be accepted for what it is—one of the central political factors in this whole threatened, vital area. And the Arab reaction is as understandable in its way as the desperate need and the terrible memories which drove the Jews into establishing, for the first time in 2,000 years a state of their own.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Atrocities

The Pentagon had photographic and detailed information concerning the Korean atrocities when General Douglas MacArthur was in command there. That the Chinese communists were killing American prisoners of war therefore was known to all Intelligence agencies operating in Korea. The suppression of the story was obviously political so that the Untied Nations, our British allies, and the Soviet Chinese enemy might not be embarrassed.

If this statement is doubted or challenged, there is one way of proving or disproving it. A Congressional committee can put General Douglas MacArthur, General Charles A. Willoughby, and General Walter Bedell Smith of the Central Intelligence Agency on the witness stand and have them testify under oath. I am sure that in open session, under oath, at least two of them will testify that the information Colonel James M. Hanley disclosed was sent to the Pentagon through channels. A competent investigation would traverse those channels to the highest authority who received the facts and details of the massacres and ordered their suppression.

This is a serious charge to make and I do it, only because I have traversed some areas of this problem and know that, so far as I can go, the facts are as here stated. To go further would require the power of subpoena.

There is another point to make. From 1918 to 1931, I was with Chinese armies, often being very close to their commanders in personal friendships. During that entire period, I never saw a prisoner of war camp although the Chinese were then at war against each other, killing off huge numbers. I am sure that I saw the first modern military hospital at Shanghai, operated by Drs. W. S. and W. L. New, Chinese educated in England and the United States, but I never even heard of a prisoner of war camp.

The usual method of handling defeated enemies was to disarm them and send them home or to incorporate them in the conquering army. I have witnessed both processes. As a Chinese soldier's tool is his rifle, his problem used to be to keep that instrument as a private possession. A soldier with a rifle had a better chance of getting into the conquering army than a soldier without one.

The vanquished soldiers who were disarmed and sent home usually joined some bandit band which was engaged in ravishing the country either in association with a local war-lord or against him. I have known bandits of both kinds. In North China, the role of bandit and soldier was interchangeable with startling constancy.

I have witnessed soldiers being strung on poles or their heads put on top of bridges as a symbol to frighten others. In my day in China, this was not unusual and was accepted casually.

The cost of maintaining, feeding and guarding prisoners of war is high in any country. In a low standard of living country like China, the cost is beyond the means of armies which are living off the country. Therefore when it was impossible to send disarmed soldiers home or impractical to incorporate them in the conqueror's army, the cheapest way to handle the situation was to kill them. At a matter of fact, life is so cheap in the Orient that it must be unbelievable to them that we feed our captives better than they feed their own soldiers.

This is the background that undoubtedly was known to our military authorities when they went into the Korean War. They must have known that Chinese fight to kill, that they are not merciful, that they particularly enjoy murdering their "exploiters," that is, the so-called Europeans, which includes Americans. They had the experience of the Nanking massacre in 1927 when the Communists murdered whomever they could, particularly foreigners. Before that, there was ample evidence going back to the days of the Boxer rebellion.

But even if we are to assume that nobody in the Pentagon has any background, an incorrect assumption, it is true and under the processes I recommend demonstrable that our government was informed by its own military intelligence out of Tokyo that the Chinese Communists were massacring American prisoners of war.

The data was ignored. The Pentagon was then regarding everything that General MacArthur and his staff reported with suspicion because they knew that he wanted to fight not a halting but a winning war. They preferred Acheson's dialectics to MacArthur's facts.

And now we have it—100,000 and more casualties; perhaps 20,000 dead.

Chicken House, Hens Destroyed In Fire

GRANTSVILLE—A fire yesterday morning in the New Springs District destroyed a two-story chicken house and 300 laying hens on the farm of Noah S. Beachy.

The Grantsville and Salisbury, Pa., fire companies answered the alarm but were unable to save the structure. However, the two companies did save the farm house, located about 25 feet from the chicken house. Damage was estimated at approximately $2,000. Firemen said the blaze probably resulted from an over-heated stove pipe which protruded through the ceiling of the structure.

By celebrating holidays with graciousness, you build treasured memories for future enjoyment.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Among the things to give thanks for today is the holiday itself; the break in the pressure of work-a-day life, the opportunity for families and cherished friends to gather. Harriet Prescott Spofford had this in mind when she wrote this poem especially for Thanksgiving day.

Dear people coming home,
Dear glad faces long away,
Dear the merry cries, and dear
All the glad and happy play.
Dear the thanks, too, that we give for all of this on Thanksgiving Day.

Building Memories

Thanksgiving holidays are twice to be savored—first as they are experienced and again in later years as memories. If you are in the period of life when your home is the center of bustling activity and of family gathering, I hope you are conscious of the importance of your role. As you key the day, so will the memories of all those present be colored.

Nothing has meaning except through interpretation. Only when you take the time and the trouble to make a holiday a real occasion does it ever become an actuality and form a memory for the future, enriched the lives of all who shared the enjoyment of the festivity that you created. The woman who plans every detail of a holiday so that it becomes a treasured recollection is an artist in the realm of human relations and gracious living, the practitioner of an art of the utmost value to the preservation of American ideals and concepts.

Trouble Repaid

The happiest homes are those in which observances of birthdays, holidays and other occasions are given serious consideration. Never let the trouble of such events overshadow their importance! You will be repaid over and over—all through your life—by the ties and warm relations that you create. Folks never forget home fires that have been well-kindled.

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(INS)—Some people and events in the news:

Harold Stassen—he charged this week, in a speech before the Ohio Society of New York, that a Russian-type veto on the governmental committee set up to spend that $7.3 billions for foreign military and economic aid is handicapping Gen. Eisenhower and making Western Europe a set-up for Communism.

Stassen said matters on the committee are as bad as they were in UNRRA. We supplied most of the goods to UNRRA but aid in Poland was admiinstered by M. A. Menshikov, a Russian Communist; in Czechoslovakia by Peter Alexseev, a ditto; and in Korea by Boris Roskoff, a double ditto.

Many doctors agree that the greatest advance in the battle against alcoholism has been the growing public acceptance of the fact it is a disease, not a psychiatric disorder.

Cures and controls have been achieved on hopeless alkies by msasive doses of vitamins administered according to a regimen worked out by Dr. Roger J. Williams, director of Texas University's biochemical institute. Dr. Williams discovered the B vitamin, and participated in the discovery of folic acid—one of the treatments for certain forms of cancer. He says:

"Some individuals may have an unusually great requirement for certain vitamins—much more than is provided by the best conceivable diet. Failure to obtain them in needed quantities may lead to a variety of disorders, including a craving for alcohol.

The American Trucking Associations, Inc., announces tremendous growing pains. One portion of the industry alone grossed $3.5 billions last year. Trucks now haul, all or part of the way, about two thirds of all freight tonnage moved in this country.

The ATA is stumping for more and better U.S. roads to accommodate not only its 8,600,000 trucks but the country's 40,300,000 passenger cars. It estimates that it is dangerous to pass a car on 125 per cent of the country's rural roads, and there are 20,000 places along U.S. roads where a driver can't see far enough ahead to stop in time to avoid hitting anything in his path.

Local gym keeper named Harold Reilly wants to do something about Mario Lanza's weight. Lanza's ballooning, to the dismay of MGM. Reilly says look what he did 30 years ago for the met star Gigli, after Gigli couldn't get off bended knee one night in "Romeo And Juliet." Reilly shaved him down from 240 to 190, by dropping his stomach, and built up the man's chest from 41 inches to 46.

News desks were bewildered, and reporters dismayed, by a recent telegram from the people who handle public relations for the International Business Machines Corp. The wire cancelled a release which promised us a machine which would revolutionize hack writing.

It was a new electric typewriter which, at the press of certain keys, would write whole phrases. Just think what a blessing it would have been for foreign correspondents who with a single tap of the finger could write, "according to a diplomatic source close to the Balkans

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—(INS)—Some people and events in the news:

Harold Stassen—he charged this week, in a speech before the Ohio Society of New York, that a Russian-type veto on the governmental committee set up to spend that $7.3 billions for foreign military and economic aid is handicapping Gen. Eisenhower and making Western Europe a set-up for Communism.

Stassen said matters on the committee are as bad as they were in UNRRA. We supplied most of the goods to UNRRA but aid in Poland was adminstered by M. A. Menshikov, a Russian Communist; in Czechoslovakia by Peter Alexseev, a ditto; and in Korea by Boris Roskoff, a double ditto.

Many doctors agree that the greatest advance in the battle against alcoholism has been the growing public acceptance of the fact it is a disease, not a psychiatric disorder.

Cures and controls have been achieved on hopeless alkies by msasive doses of vitamins administered according to a regimen worked out by Dr. Roger J. Williams, director of Texas University's biochemical institute. Dr. Williams discovered the B vitamin, and participated in the discovery of folic acid—one of the treatments for certain forms of cancer. He says:

"Some individuals may have an unusually great requirement for certain vitamins—much more than is provided by the best conceivable diet. Failure to obtain them in needed quantities may lead to a variety of disorders, including a craving for alcohol.

The American Trucking Associations, Inc., announces tremendous growing pains. One portion of the industry alone grossed $3.5 billions last year. Trucks now haul, all or part of the way, about two thirds of all freight tonnage moved in this country.

The ATA is stumping for more and better U.S. roads to accommodate not only its 8,600,000 trucks but the country's 40,300,000 passenger cars. It estimates that it is dangerout to pass a car on 125 per cent of the country's rural roads, and there are 20,000 places along U.S. roads where a driver can't see far enough ahead to stop in time to avoid hitting anything in his path.

Local gym keeper named Harold Reilly wants to do something about Mario Lanza's weight. Lanza's ballooning, to the dismay of MGM. Reilly says look what he did 30 years ago for the met star Gigli, after Gigli couldn't get off bended knee one night in "Romeo And Juliet." Reilly shaved him down from 240 to 190, by dropping his stomach, and built up the man's chest from 41 inches to 46.

News desks were bewildered, and reporters dismayed, by a recent telegram from the people who handle public relations for the International Business Machines Corp. The wire cancelled a release which promised us a machine which would revolutionize hack writing.

It was a new electric typewriter which, at the press of certain keys, would write whole phrases. Just think what a blessing it would have been for foreign correspondents who with a single tap of the finger could write, "according to a diplomatic source close to the Balkans

Polio Vaccine Now Seen As Possibility

By WRIGHT L. McKENZIE
INS Staff Correspondent

ATLANTA—(INS)—Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said today that "we are on the way" toward discovery of a polio vaccine.

He added:

"And we expect to get it."

O'Connor, addressing Atlanta polio drive volunteer workers, reported that animals already have been immunized in laboratory experiments against all three known types of polio virus. He said:

"Now we are building toward definite conclusions. The aura of mystery that once surrounded polio has disappeared. Polio virus has been isolated for the first time. Virus material has been photographed."

O'Connor pointed out that, until a year and a half ago, virus for polio experiments was obtained from monkeys imported from India and infected with the disease. He said:

"The virus now can be produced in a test tube, which gives a greater leeway for scientific research than the slower process with monkeys. It makes the virus available in quantity."

He said that controlled research last summer, which included vaccination of 3,000 children with gamma globulin — human blood fraction containing disease anti-bodies, "disclosed nothing." But he explained that "this was only one test—at least three or four others must be made to know the effectiveness of gamma globulin."

"To understand the value of this work, you must realize that any practical preventive for infantile paralysis must establish effective immunity against all existing forms of the disease."

He said the successful experiments with animals are "perhaps the most important step" so far and predicted:

"From this point, the next step may well be the immunization of human beings against human poliomyelitis."

Callahan Dinner Planned Tomorrow

Howard Klein, Philadelphia, an outstanding hypnotist, will appear on the program at the John E. T. Callahan memorial dinner Friday evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The dinner is being sponsored by Cumberland Consistory, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Bodies.

Arthur B. Gibson, 33rd degree, will serve as toastmaster and the invocation will be given by the Rev. John Bayley Jones, 32nd degree. Each Scottish Rite is entitled to take a member of Cumberland Chapter, Order of DeMolay, as his guest to the dinner.

The committee in charge includes Dr. Albert C. Cook, 32nd degree, K.C.C.H., chairman, assisted by Thomas A. Robertiello, 32nd degree, K.C.C.H., Homer G. Wise, 32nd degree, James J. Kave, 32nd degree, and Walter S. Eyler, 32nd degree. Ralph R. Webster, 32nd degree, is master of the Scottish Rite Bodies.

Highest lake in the U. S. is Tulaainyo, which is one and one-half miles northeast of Mount Whitney, Cal., and has an elevation of 12,865 feet.

Hazard Removed

The Street Department Tuesday completed work on Chestnut Street hill and removed what it considered one of the worst street hazards in the city.

The work involved some blacktopping, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property said. The Police Department will be asked to post a sign at the hill warning against excessive speed.

Slated For Removal

Light standards at the entrance to the public Safety Building are to be removed on advice of electricians who said upkeep is excessive.

Commissioner Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder said the recommendations of Comissioner John J. Long and Police Chief R. Emmett Flynn on the need for lights, from a safety viewpoint, are being awaited. Estimates are already on hand for replacements.

Mease Places First In Speech Contest

Alan Mease, Fort Hill High School student, has been adjudged winner of the annual "I Speak For Democracy" contest sponsored locally by the Junior Association of Commerce.

Second is Joanne Grindle, of Bruce High School, Westernport; and third, Charles Wickard, of Allegany High School.

Round, Square Dance Set By Auxiliary Police

Cumberland Auxiliary Police will sponsor a round and square dance Saturday night at the Woodmen of the World Hall on Union Street.

The Cumberland Rangers will play for dancing from 9 to 12.

Water Department Office Floor Renewal Planned

Renewal of the flooring in the Water Department is planned soon.

Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property said flooring is in bad condition. Estimates have been received from local sources and the department is planning to take the lowest offer. The work will cost less than $500.

New Patents Disclose Startling Arsenal Of Radioactive Weapons

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK —(AP)— A startling variety of radioactive weapons is revealed in a series of patent cases issued to Jack Dement of the Dement Laboratories, Portland, Ore.

These patents recently were released from the secret list. They show what enemies can do. They show things civil defense workers must know, for if the knowledge is lacking, the weapons will spread fear, far in excess of any harm they can wreak.

At least six nations have the atom-splitting reactors to make these radioactive weapons. These are the United States, Canada, Britain, Russia, France and Sweden.

All the weapons are made from radioactive atoms. There are about 70 different kinds of atoms to select from. Probably only a few of these varieties will be useful, but a few is plenty.

There are reports that Russia is working on radioactive weapons in Inner Siberia and the Tadjik-Uzbekistan area and other places.

Radioactive rays do not strike anyone dead. It may take hours or days of exposure to do harm, but the rays are completely insidious. No one can see, feel, hear, taste or smell them.

One is poison gas, with radioactivity added.

Dement says the radioactive atoms will be filtered out in the cannisters of gas masks, along with the poisons. But the radio-activity will build up in the cannister, until this filter itself becomes dangerous to carry near your body. You must remove the mask.

Decontamination squads can use chemicals to destroy the poison spread by war gases. But they cannot destroy the radioactivity by any kind of treatment.

Mustard gases blister the skin. Radioactive atoms in the mustard can enter your blood through the blisters, and deposit in your body. This blister radioactivity may not stop fighting men immediately. But it carries the risk of illness.

Entirely new kinds of poison gases can be made with radioactivity. This opens a new door. There have been only a few possible kinds of war gases, because only a few would remain near the ground and persist. Other gases have these two essential qualities, but they are not poisonous. Adding radioactivity will make them poisonous too.

Other patent cases cover radioactive smokes of 600 varieties. The chemical elements that can be made radioactive in smokes include iron silicon, copper, lead, aluminum, nickel, arsenic, gold, silver and many others.

Ammunition can be made radioactive. A projectile can be dipped or coated with radioactive materials. Radioactive stuff may be electroplated on. Or it can be mixed with the projectile or the explosive in a shell. Radioactive iron can be used in the steel of shrapnel.

An unusual weapon is radioactive fire. The napalm (jellied gasoline) we are using extensively in Korea can carry radioactive substances. So can any of the other war incendiaries. The ashes of the fire they set will remain radioactive.

It is possible that the fire itself may be so radioactive as to hamper the firemen. Burns sustained in such a fire carry an added hazard.

There are radioactive fizzes. They would be made by bottles of carbon dioxide charged with radioactive atoms. The bottles would shoot out radioactive mists. Fizzes dropped as tablets in the water would spread the radioactive contamination more rapidly, and could be used against reservoirs, lakes, rivers, harbors and dam sites. Radioactive water is bad not alone for drinking. Even in small amounts, it may hamper industrial production.

Then there are the "death sands." In great variety, but not one which always kills quickly. However they can be made in alarming forms. There can be sticky sands, with adhesive properties that stick them to the clothing of personnel, and magnetic sands that will jump and stick to tanks, vehicles and guns. They look like the ordinary harmless sands of any region and blend with the colors of the earth or even of city pavements.

All the weapons are made from radioactive atoms. There are about 70 different kinds of atoms to select from. Probably only a few of these varieties will be useful, but a few is plenty.

There are reports that Russia is working on radioactive weapons in Inner Siberia and the Tadjik-Uzbekistan area and other places.

Radioactive rays do not strike anyone dead. It may take hours or days of exposure to do harm, but the rays are completely insidious. No one can see, feel, hear, taste or smell them.

One is poison gas, with radioactivity added.

Dement says the radioactive atoms will be filtered out in the cannisters of gas masks, along with the poisons. But the radio-activity will build up in the cannister, until this filter itself becomes dangerous to carry near your body. You must remove the mask.

Decontamination squads can use chemicals to destroy the poison spread by war gases. But they cannot destroy the radioactivity by any kind of treatment.

Mustard gases blister the skin. Radioactive atoms in the mustard can enter your blood through the blisters, and deposit in your body. This blister radioactivity may not stop fighting men immediately. But it carries the risk of illness.

Entirely new kinds of poison gases can be made with radioactivity. This opens a new door. There have been only a few possible kinds of war gases, because only a few would remain near the ground and persist. Other gases have these two essential qualities, but they are not poisonous. Adding radioactivity will make them poisonous too.

Other patent cases cover radioactive smokes of 600 varieties. The chemical elements that can be made radioactive in smokes include iron, silicon, copper, lead, aluminum, nickel, arsenic, gold, silver and many others.

Ammunition can be made radioactive. A projectile can be dipped or coated with radioactive materials. Radioactive stuff may be electroplated on. Or it can be mixed with the projectile or the explosive in a shell. Radioactive iron can be used in the steel of shrapnel.

An unusual weapon is radioactive fire. The napalm (jellied gasoline) we are using extensively in Korea can carry radioactive substances. So can any of the other war incendiaries. The ashes of the fire they set will remain radioactive.

It is possible that the fire itself may be so radioactive as to hamper the firemen. Burns sustained in such a fire carry an added hazard.

There are radioactive fizzes. They would be made by bottles of carbon dioxide charged with radioactive atoms. The bottles would shoot out radioactive mists. Fizzes dropped as tablets in the water would spread the radioactive contamination more rapidly, and could be used against reservoirs, lakes, rivers, harbors and dam sites. Radioactive water is bad not alone for drinking. Even in small amounts, it may hamper industrial production.

Then there are the "death sands." In great variety, but not one which always kills quickly. However they can be made in alarming forms. There can be sticky sands, with adhesive properties that stick them to the clothing of personnel, and magnetic sands that will jump and stick to tanks, vehicles and guns. They look like the ordinary harmless sands of any region and blend with the colors of the earth or even of city pavements.

Auto Accident Victim To Be Buried Saturday

Robert C. Bean Killed In Crash Yesterday

A funeral service for Robert Clifton Bean, 23-year-old Air Force veteran, who died from injuries suffered in an auto crash yesterday on McMullen Highway, will be conducted Saturday at 2 p. m. by Rev. M. A. Keesecker, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church. Interment will be in St. Luke's Cemetery.

State Police said Bean died at Allegany Hospital after the car in which he was riding went out of control and upset on Route 220 in front of the Amcelle Flant less than three blocks from his home in Potomac Park. He was a son of Otto Clifton and Viola Starret Bean, 8 Race Street.

Bean, a B. and O. pipefitter's helper, was riding in a 1937 Chrysler sedan operated by Frank R. Bohn, also of Route 5, Potomac Park, who apparently escaped injury in the crash.

Trooper Donald DeWitt said the accident occurred about 1 a. m. Bean died less than two hours later from chest and abdominal injuries. Fractured ribs punctured the lungs.

Bohn, traveling north, told authorities his car skidded, hit a curb and overturned several times after he stepped on the brakes. The driver said a tire blew out.

According to Bohn, he was traveling 35 miles an hour. He blamed the mishap on a defect in the steering apparatus.

Born January 5, 1928, in Cumberland, Bean was in the Air Force two years and saw service in Italy. He held membership in Cumberland Lodge No. 271, L. O. O. Moose; Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Brotherhood of Pipefitters and Helpers.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Nedra (Mintdrop) Bean and a daughter by a former marriage, Nancy Jo Bean, Morgantown, W. Va.

The body is at the home of his parents.

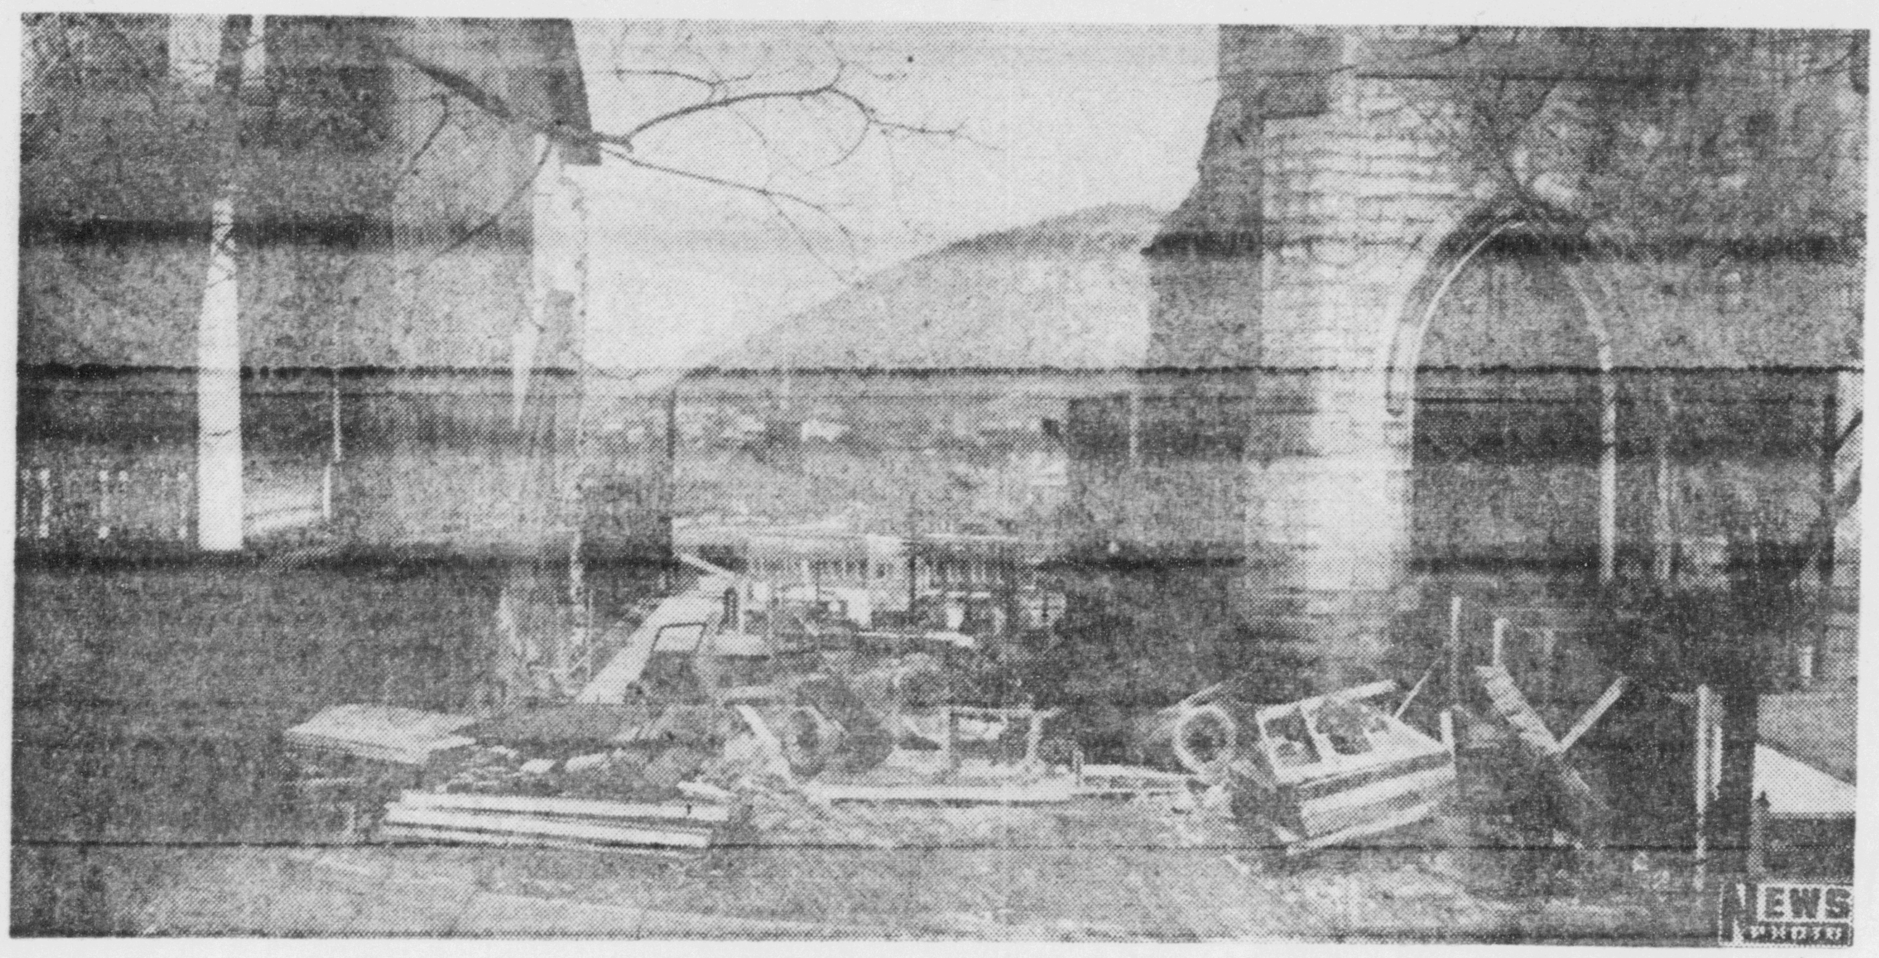
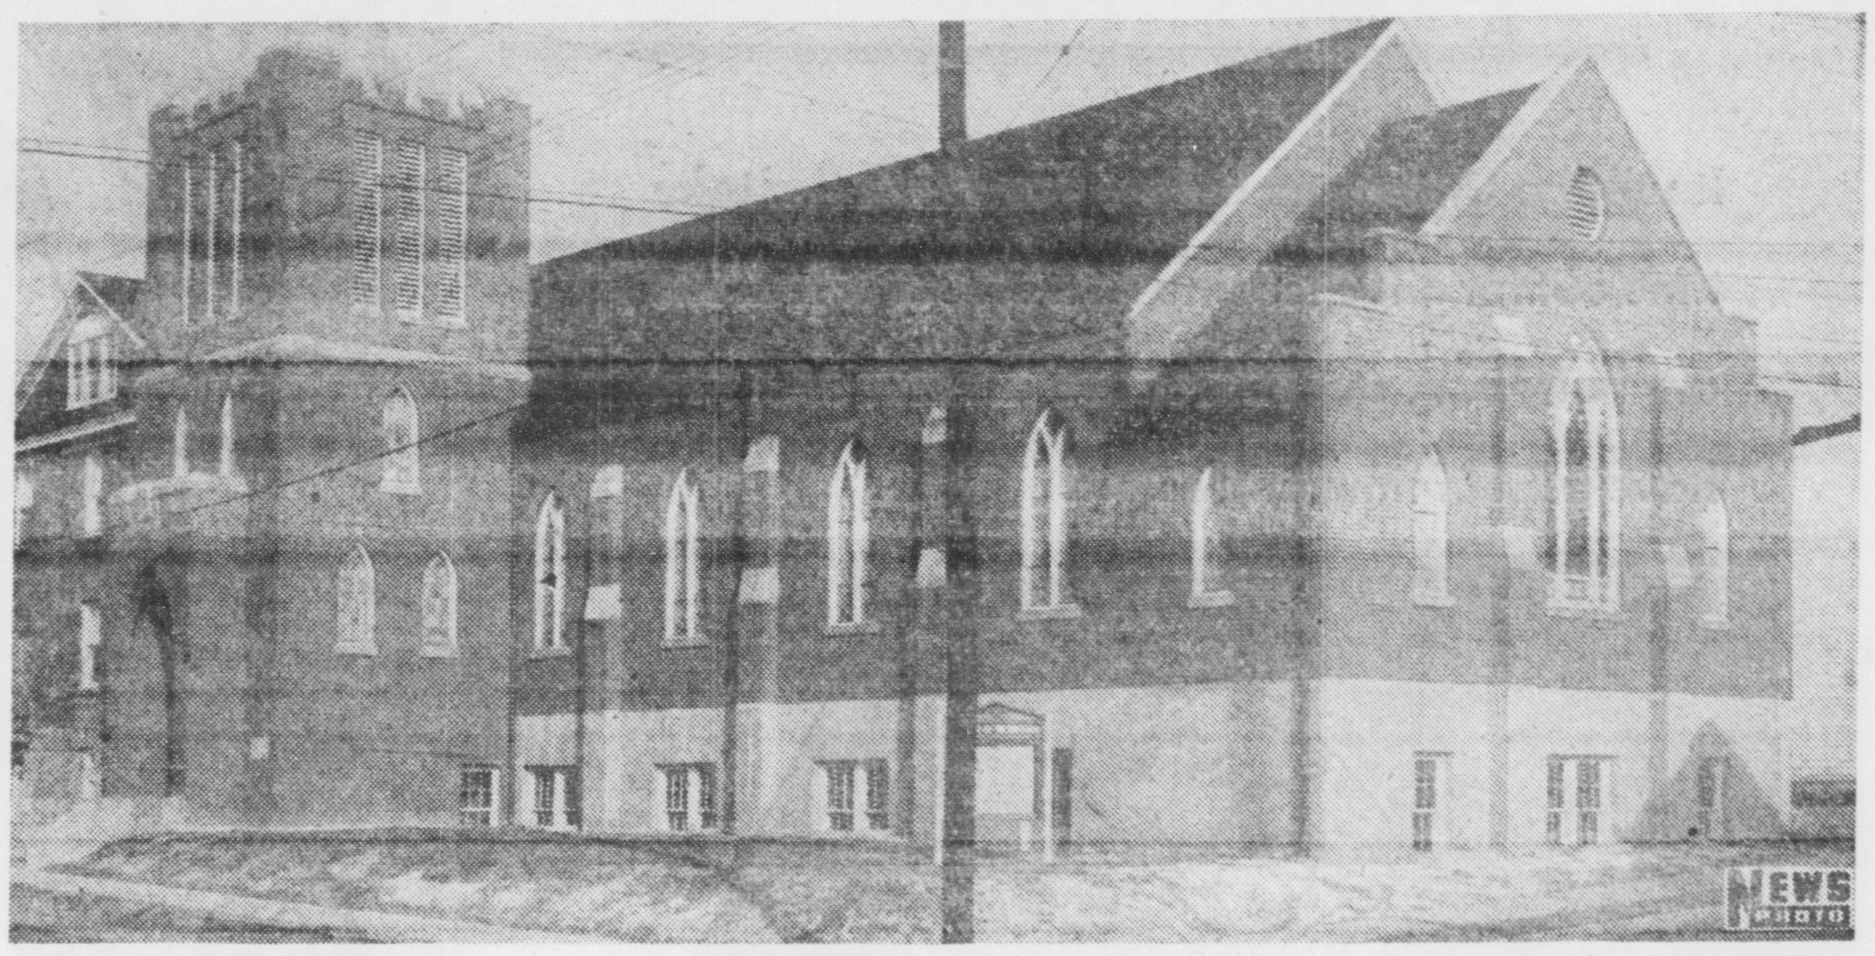
Cumberlanders Spend Million Dollars In 1951 To Improve Churches



BIGGEST CHURCH PROJECT—Largest of 14 major projects under way or scheduled for completion in the Cumberland area during 1951 is construction of a $212,000 educational and Sunday school building on this site next to First Presbyterian Church, Washington Street. Workmen last month began razing a century-old building to make way for the new structure, scheduled for completion next summer. It will house a large assembly room, a small chapel, a modern kitchen and church offices.



NEW BRETHREN CHURCH—This new $66,000 church building was dedicated last January by Living Stone Church of the Brethren in South End. The education building also was remodeled as part of the project. Living Stone Church was one of 14 Cumberland churches which have work worth $1,000,000 under way or completed.

next to the church to make way for the new structure.

$200,000 Convent

SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church expects to start a $200,000 project next spring which will provide a new convent for the 20 Ursuline Sisters who teach in the parish school and in Ursuline Academy. Rev. Louis Glantz, O. F. M. Cap., said plans are under way.

St. John's Lutheran Church dedicated a $93,000 educational building October 28. Rev. Donald F. Brake, pastor, said the building is completed except for finishing work.

A new $80,000 building for North Cumberland Assembly of God Church on North Johnson Street will be dedicated late next month, according to Rev. Frank Fratto, pastor, who said the present building at Lee and Wallace streets will be sold.

$75,000 Church Opened

Last May members of St. Matthew's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Bowling Green dedicated a new $75,000 church building. Last month, they installed a $4,000 electronic organ. For the three years before they completed the church, the 15 members of the congregation, headed by Rev. C. L. Voll, had held services in Bowling Green Fire Hall.

A $66,000 project involving construction of a new church building and remodeling of the education building was completed last January by Living Stone Church of the Brethren, where Rev. Arthur Scrogum is pastor.

Grace Baptist Church, headed by Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, built a new auditorium and Sunday school building on Greene Street this year at a cost of about $50,000. It replaced the old church on North Mechanic Street.

St. Patrick's Redecorates

In August, St. Patrick's Catholic Church began complete redecoration of the church interior, and two shrines were built on the terrace behind the church. Last week, workmen finished installing a new pulpit of Italian marble. Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor, said he expected work to be completed before Christmas.

Central Methodist Church, served by Rev. Crates S. Johnson, spent about $15,000 to excavate a basement under the church building. It will include an auditorium, kitchen, Sunday school rooms and space for recreational activities. Further improvements are planned for next year.

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, where Rev. H. Maunsell Richardson is rector, recently installed a new $15,000 electronic organ and revamped the lighting system in the chancel.

Steeple Repaired

Extensive repairs to the steeple of Centre Street Methodist Church were completed late last month at an estimated cost of $8,500, and a new cross was erected atop the spire. Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor, said a new furnace was installed and the parsonage was remodeled.

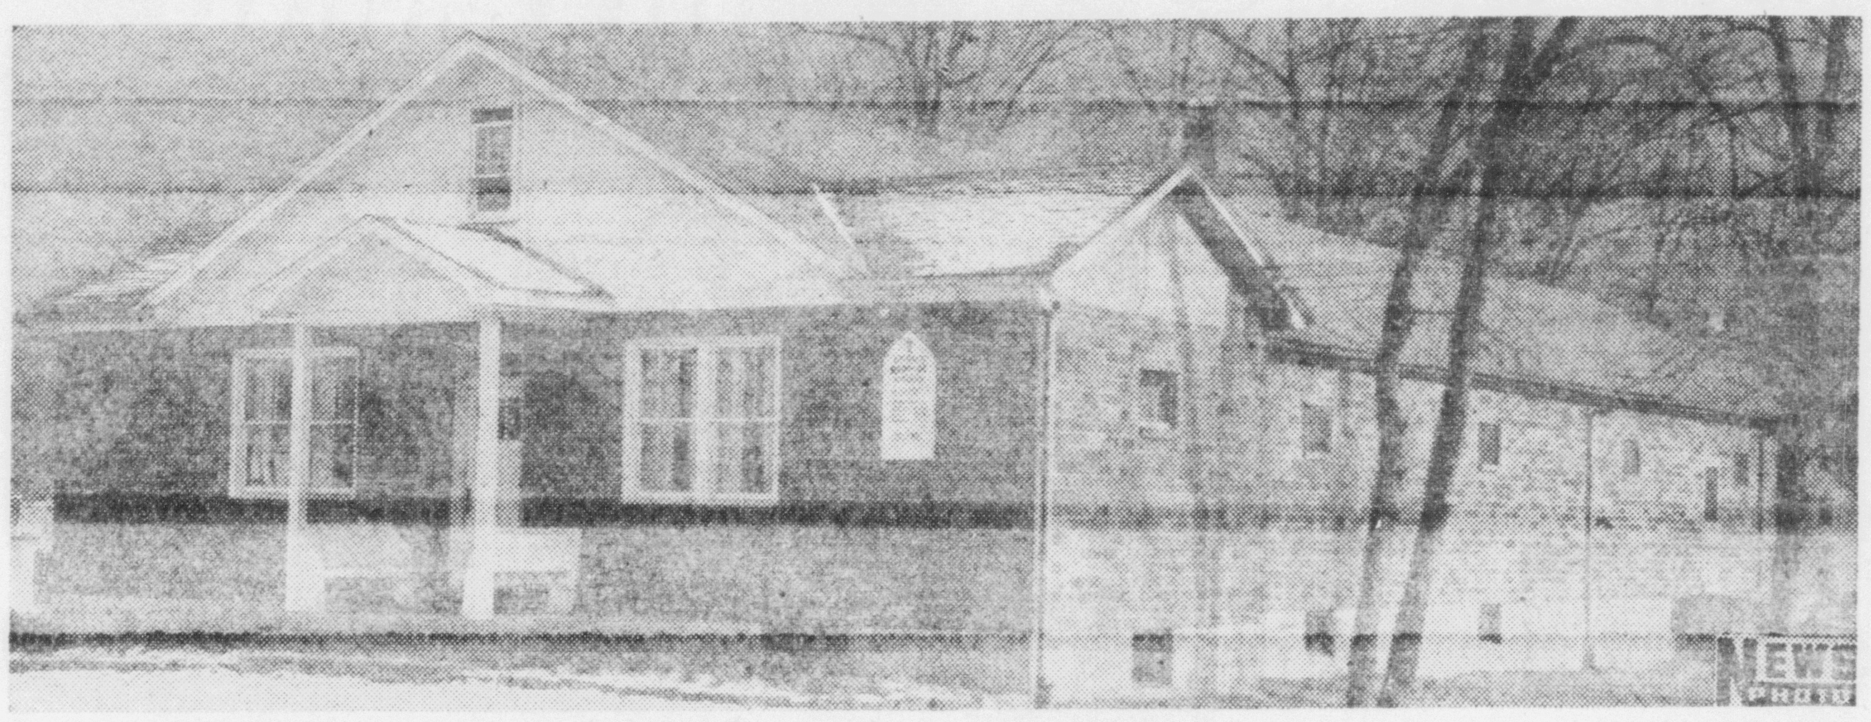
On November 9, Fairview Methodist Church dedicated a new, debt-free $8,000 church school building. On the same day the church raised $533 for a new furnace, which is now in use. Rev. B. F. Hartman, pastor, said the new building will later be combined with part of the present church building.

LaVale Baptist Chapel has completed a $7,500 project involving the remodeling of a bowling alley to be used as a church. Rev. C. F. Frith, pastor, said a new $2,700 heating system will be installed soon.

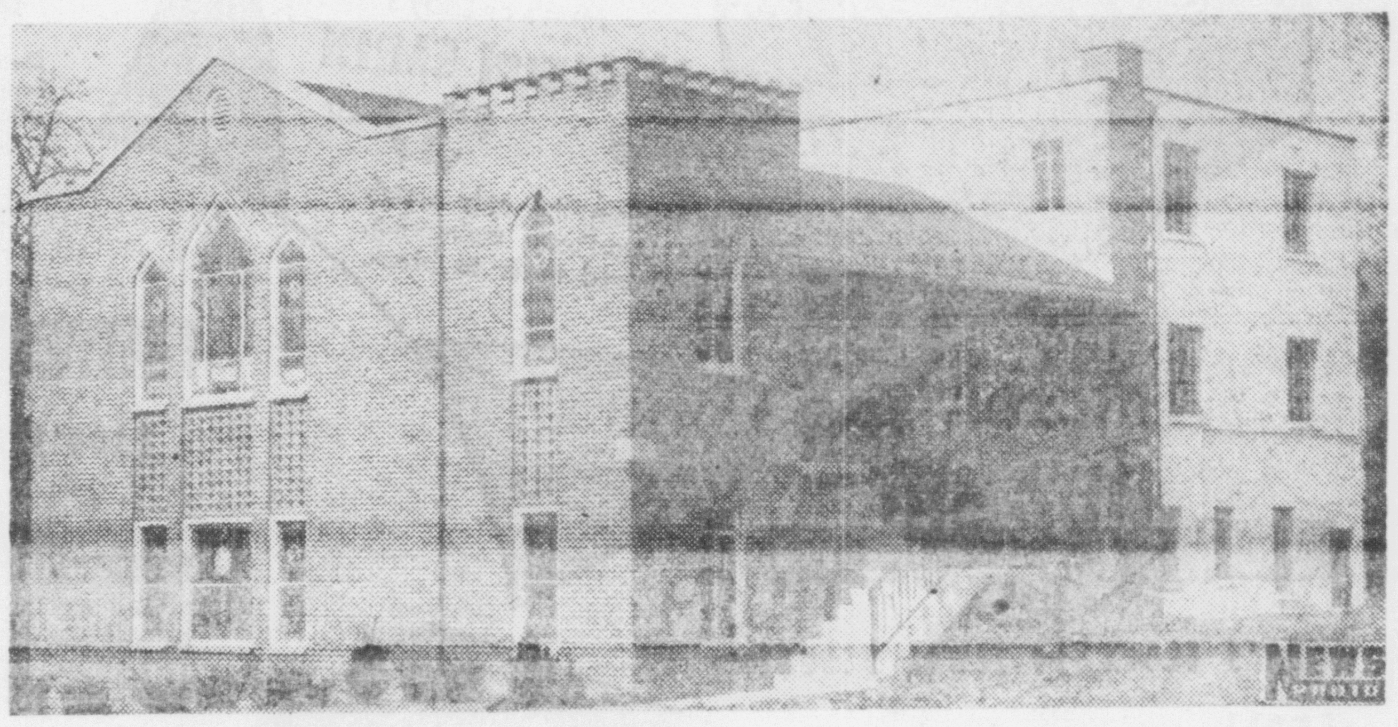
Methodist Addition

Elliott Methodist Church on Hazen Road is building a $5,000 addition to its present building. The church will be remodeled and a basement Sunday school room will be built. Rev. Gordon R. Hall, pastor, said Centenary Methodist Church, another of his charges, also plans additional Sunday school space.

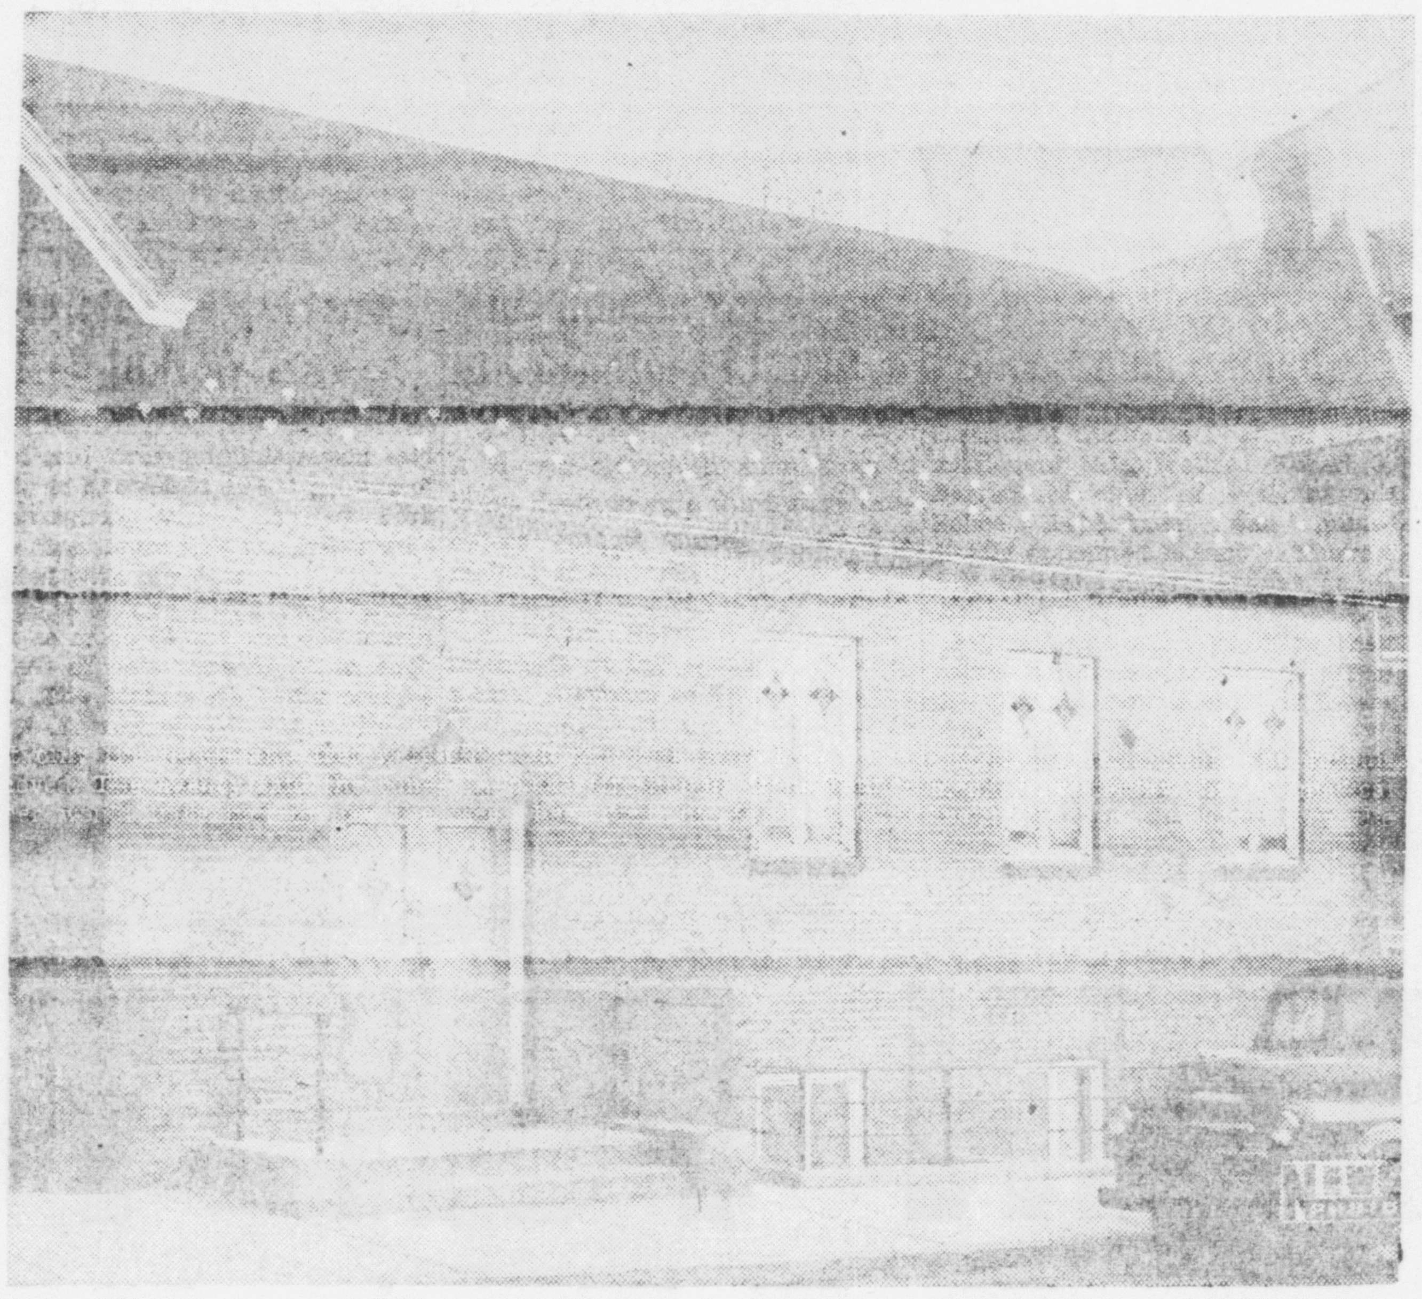
And elsewhere in the county, more than a score of churches, large and small, are working on their own improvement programs. Even Father Cahill, who appears to have been a man of some vision, probably didn't realize the future scope of the program which he pioneered in Western Maryland.



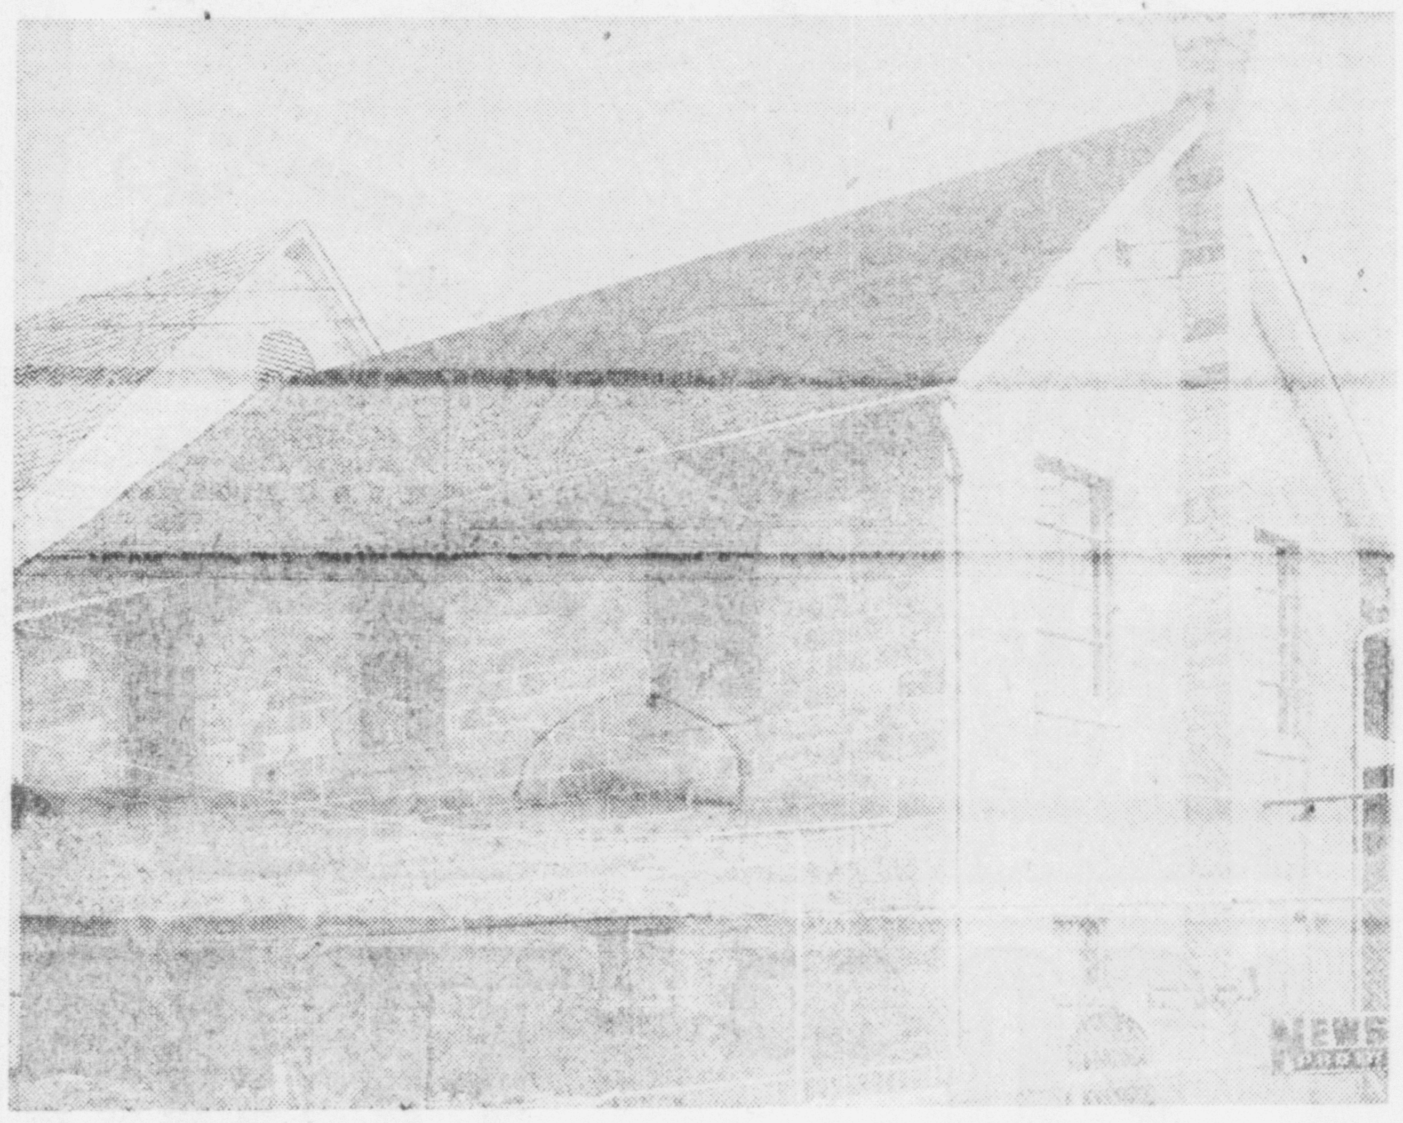
BOWLING ALLEY TO CHURCH—LaVale Baptist Chapel, completed recently at a cost of $7,500, is a remodeled bowling alley which the congregation has been using for some time. A new $2,700 heating plant will be installed soon. The church is located on Route 40.



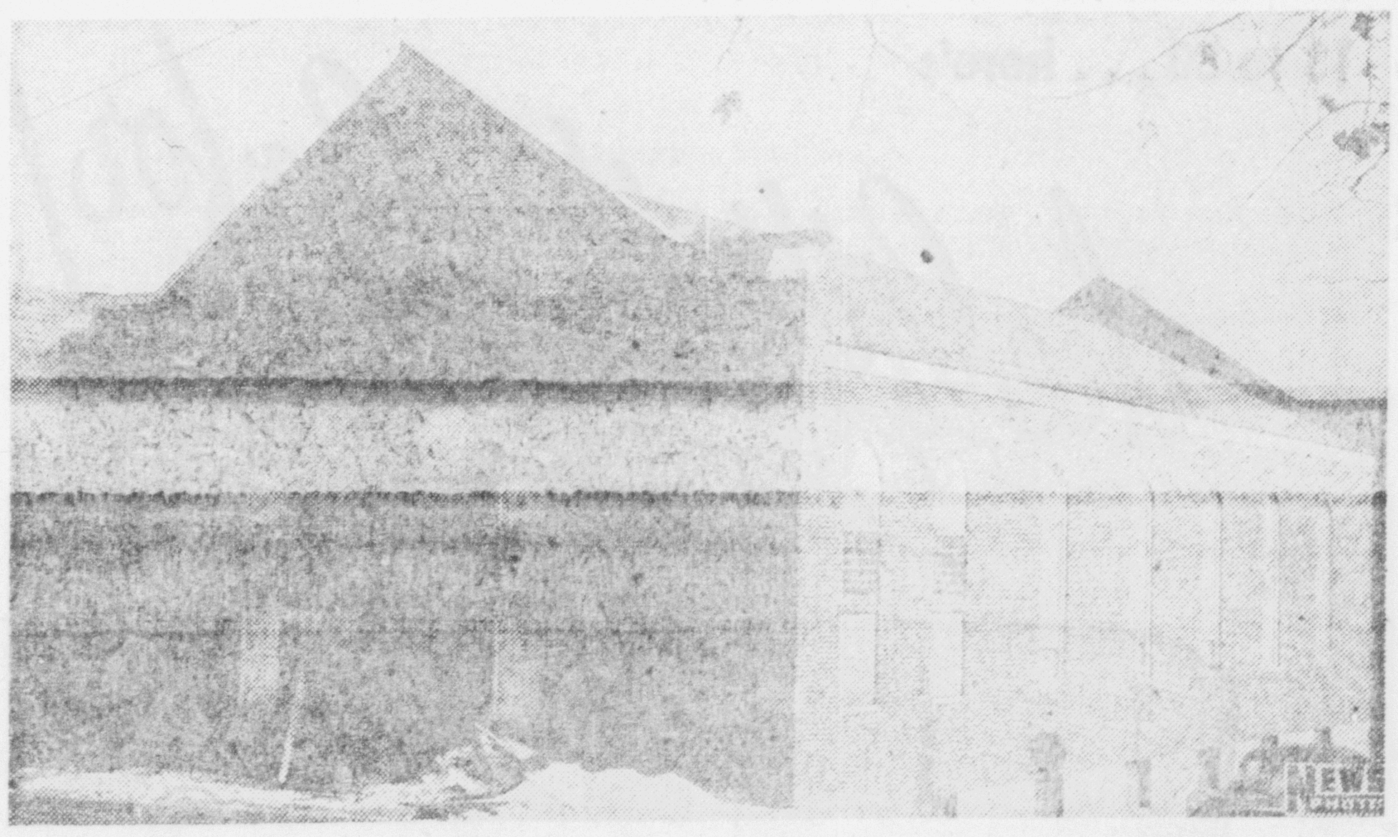
GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH—This new auditorium and Sunday school building was erected on Greene Street this year by the congregation of First Baptist Church at an estimated cost of $50,000. It replaced the old church on North Mechanic Street and is indicative of a rapid trend toward expansion of church facilities in the past three years. So far, 1951 has been the peak year for building.



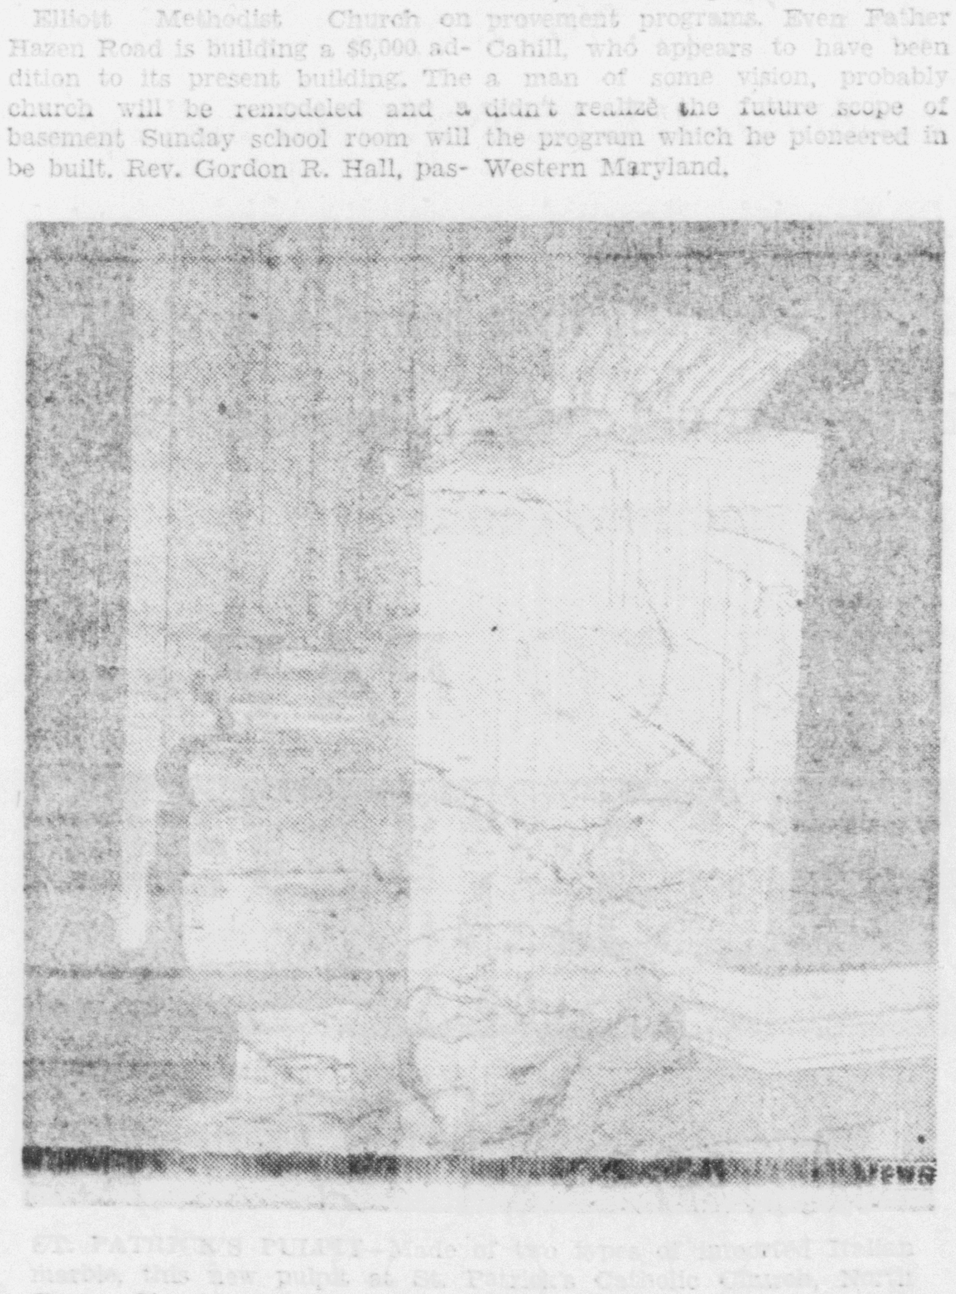
LUTHERAN CHURCH ADDITION—This $93,000 educational building at St. John's Lutheran Church, Fourth and Arch streets, was dedicated late last month. Finishing work still is to be done. The project is part of a $1,000,000 city-wide church improvement program underway or completed this year at 14 of the city's 60-odd churches.



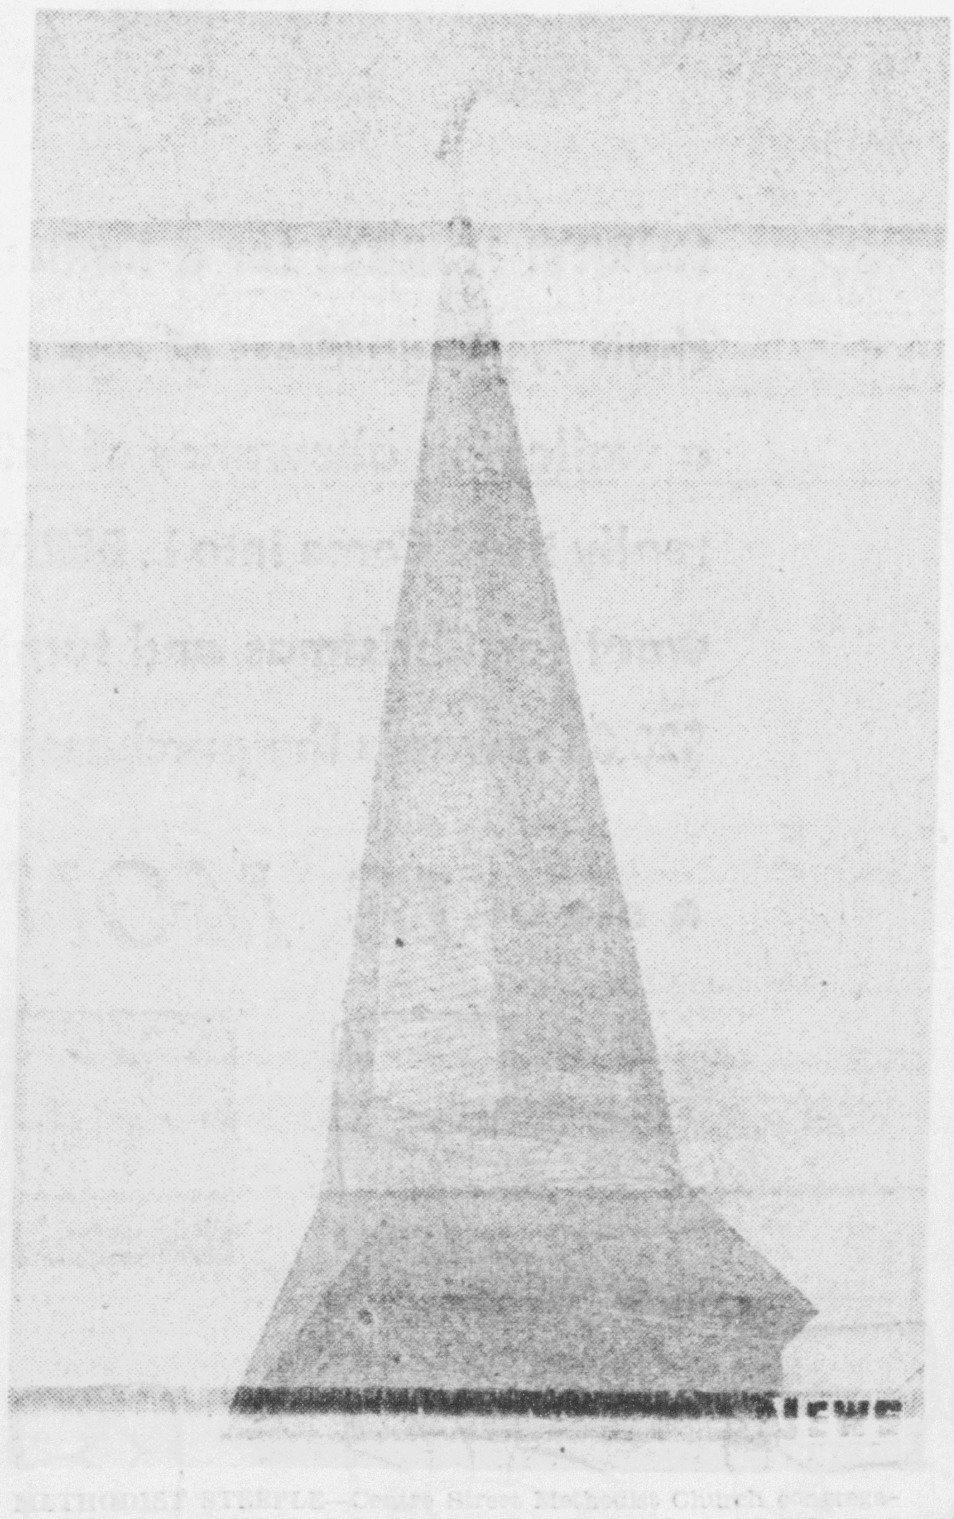
FAIRVIEW METHODIST—Early this month, Fairview Methodist Church congregation dedicated this new $8,000 church school building debt-free. On the same day the congregation raised $533 by subscription and direct contribution for a new furnace, which is now in use and paid for. Present plans call for combining the new building with part of the old some time in the future.



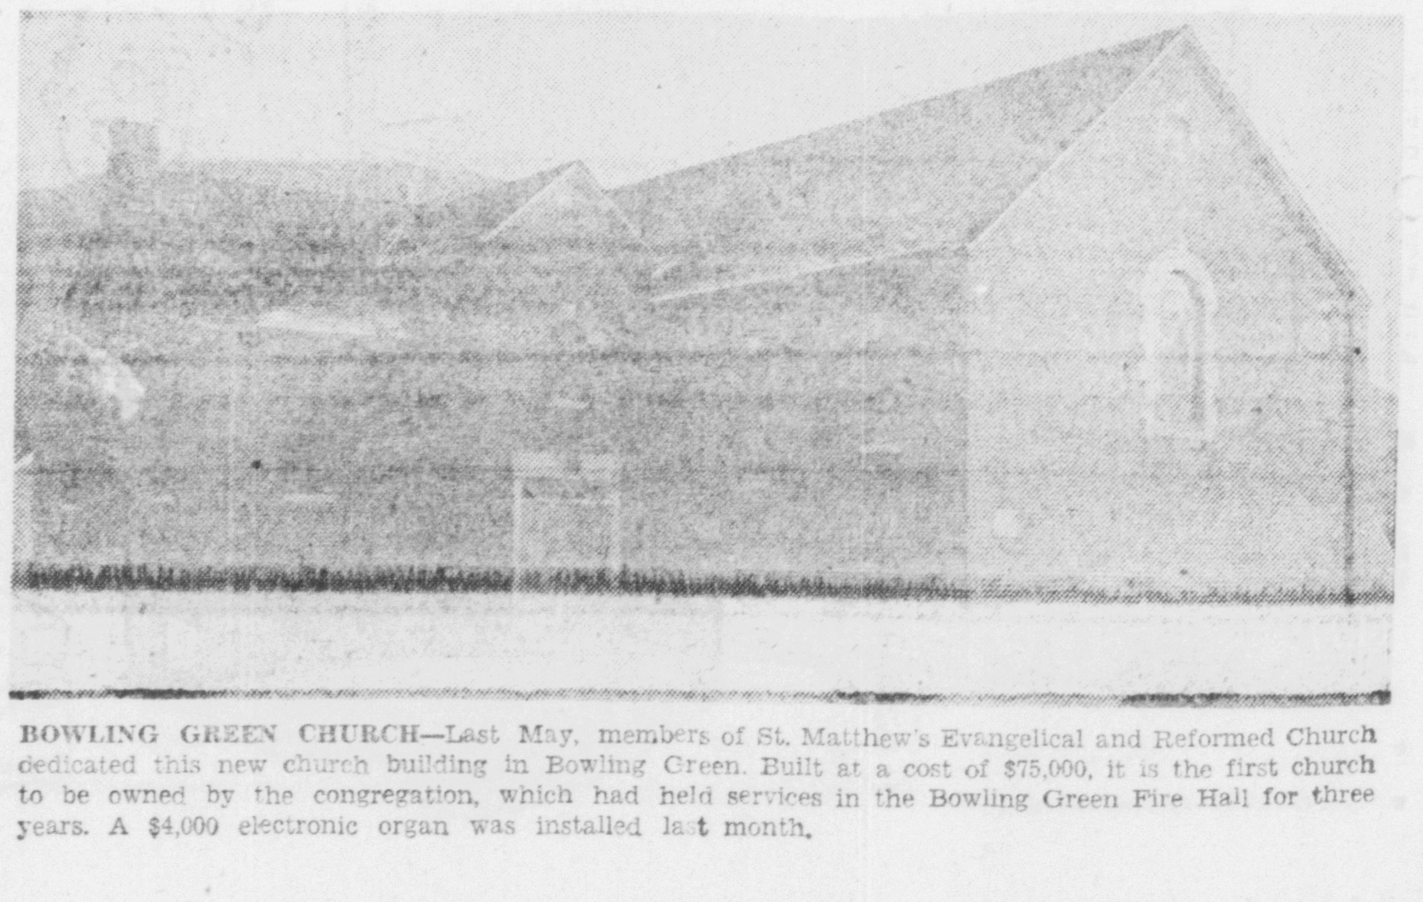
NEW JOHNSON STREET CHURCH—This new church for the congregation of North Cumberland Assembly of God Church will be dedicated late next month. Its value is estimated at $80,000. The old church at Lee and Wallace streets will be sold when the congregation moves into the new building on North Johnson Street.



ST. PATRICK'S PULPIT—Made of two types of imported Italian marble, this new pulpit at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, North Centre Street, marks one stage of an ambitious program which includes complete redecoration of the interior of the church. Begun last August, the project is scheduled to be completed before Christmas. In addition to the interior program, two outdoor shrines were built last summer on the terrace behind the church.



METHODIST STEEPLE—Centre Street Methodist Church congregation late last month completed extensive repairs to its steeple at a cost of about $8,500. The new cross, the design of which is a derivative of the Celtic, was placed after the spire was completed. A new furnace also was installed at the church this year, and the parsonage was remodeled.



BOWLING GREEN CHURCH—Last May, members of St. Matthew's Evangelical and Reformed Church dedicated this new church building in Bowling Green. Built at a cost of $75,000, it is the first church to be owned by the congregation, which had held services in the Bowling Green Fire Hall for three years. A $4,000 electronic organ was installed last month.

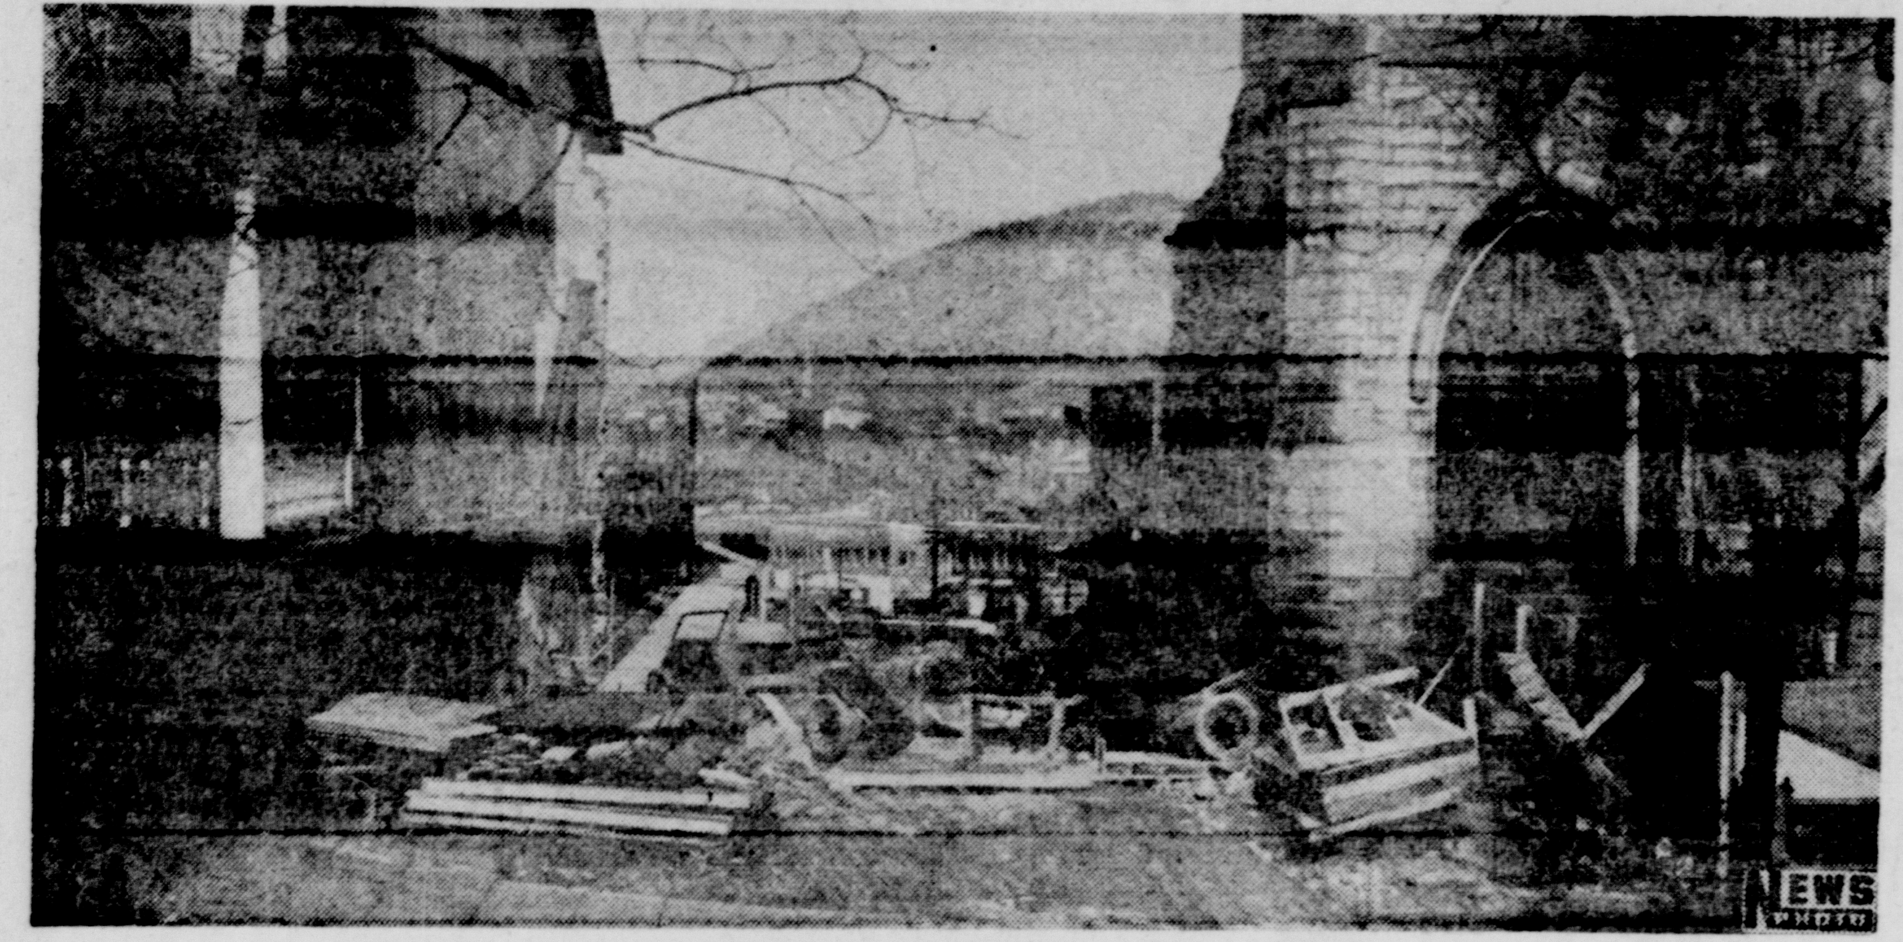
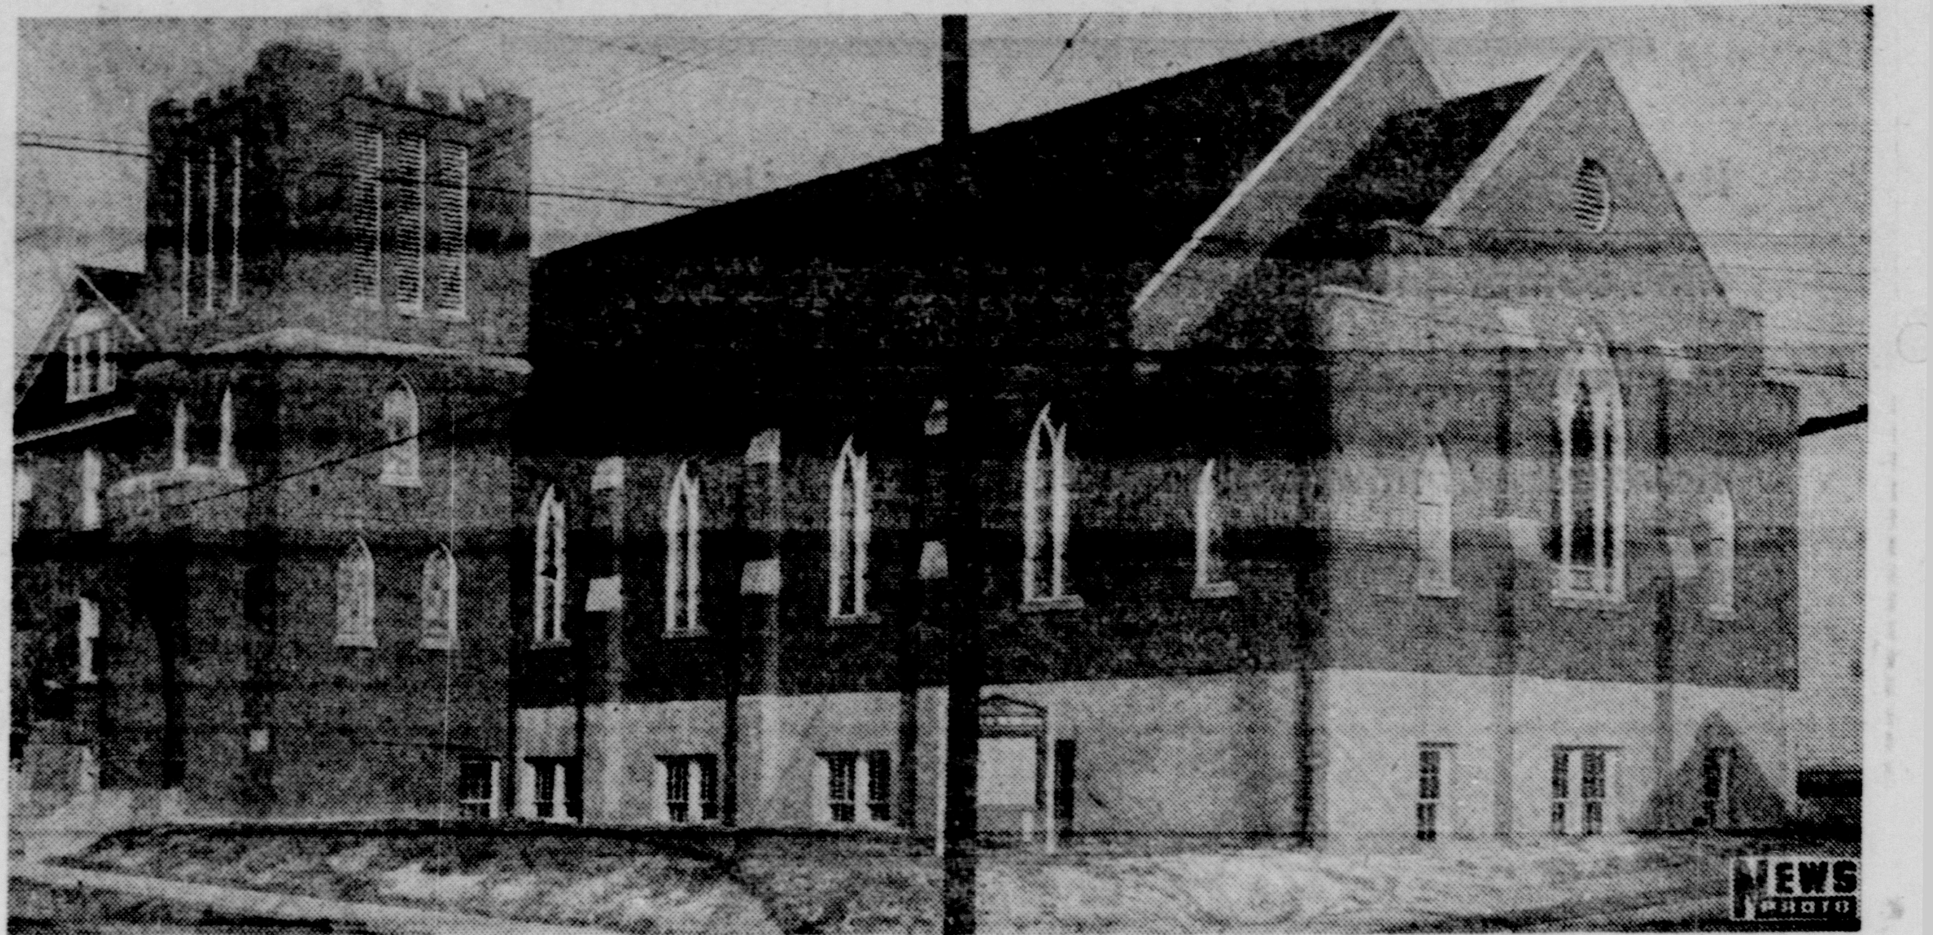
Cumberlanders Spend Million Dollars In 1951 To Improve Churches



BIGGEST CHURCH PROJECT—Largest of 14 major projects under way or scheduled for completion in the Cumberland area during 1951 is construction of a $212,000 educational and Sunday school building on this site next to First Presbyterian Church, Washington Street. Workmen last month began razing a century-old building to make way for the new structure, scheduled for completion next summer. It will house a large assembly room, a small chapel, a modern kitchen and church offices.



NEW BRETHREN CHURCH—This new $66,000 church building was dedicated last January by Living Stone Church of the Brethren in South End. The education building also was remodeled as part of the project. Living Stone Church was one of 14 Cumberland churches which have work worth $1,000,000 under way or completed.

$200,000 Convent

SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church expects to start a $200,000 project next spring which will provide a new convent for the 20 Ursuline Sisters who teach in the parish school and in Ursuline Academy. Rev. Louis Glantz, O. F. M. Cap., said plans are under way.

St. John's Lutheran Church dedicated a $93,000 educational building October 28. Rev. Donald F. Brake, pastor, said the building is completed except for finishing work.

A new $80,000 building for North Cumberland Assembly of God Church on North Johnson Street will be dedicated late next month, according to Rev. Frank Fratto, pastor, who said the present building at Lee and Wallace streets will be sold.

$75,000 Church Opened

Last May members of St. Matthew's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Bowling Green dedicated a new $75,000 church building. Last month, they installed a $4,000 electronic organ. For the three years before they completed the church, the 15 members of the congregation, headed by Rev. C. L. Voll, had held services in Bowling Green Fire Hall.

A $66,000 project involving construction of a new church building and remodeling of the education building was completed last January by Living Stone Church of the Brethren, where Rev. Arthur Scrogum is pastor.

Grace Baptist Church, headed by Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, built a new auditorium and Sunday school building on Greene Street this year at a cost of about $50,000. It replaced the old church on North Mechanic Street.

St. Patrick's Redecorates

In August, St. Patrick's Catholic Church began complete redecoration of the church interior, and two shrines were built on the terrace behind the church. Last week, workmen finished installing a new pulpit of Italian marble. Very Rev. J. Lawrence Kilkenny, pastor, said he expected work to be completed before Christmas.

Central Methodist Church, served by Rev. Crates S. Johnson, spent about $15,000 to excavate a basement under the church building. It will include an auditorium, kitchen, Sunday school rooms and space for recreational activities. Further improvements are planned for next year.

Emmanuel Episcopal Church, where Rev. H. Maunsell Richardson is rector, recently installed a new $15,000 electronic organ and revamped the lighting system in the chancel.

Steeple Repaired

Extensive repairs to the steeple of Centre Street Methodist Church were completed late last month at an estimated cost of $8,500, and a new cross was erected atop the spire. Rev. Norman O. Scribner, pastor, said a new furnace was installed and the parsonage was remodeled.

On November 9, Fairview Methodist Church dedicated a new, debt-free $8,000 church school building. On the same day the church raised $533 for a new furnace, which is now in use. Rev. B. F. Hartman, pastor, said the new building will later be combined with part of the present church building.

LaVale Baptist Chapel has completed a $7,500 project involving the remodeling of a bowling alley to be used as a church. Rev. C. F. Frith, pastor, said a new $2,700 heating system will be installed soon.

Methodist Addition

Elliott Methodist Church on Hazen Road is building a $6,000 addition to its present building. The church will be remodeled and a basement Sunday school room will be built. Rev. Gordon R. Synthetic Milk Being Used To Raise Better, Fatter Pigs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

ST. PAUL — (AP) — Synthetic milk for pigs, promising more and maybe cheaper pork chops and bacon, was announced tonight.

Newborn piglets can be taken from their mothers within 48 hours and raised entirely on the synthetic sow's milk. It contains a growth-stimulating antibiotic, terramycin.

Piglets grow faster and heavier, are heavier, are safer from disease and accident and more piglets can be produced with it, said Herbert G. Luther, research scientist associated with Chas. Pfizer & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. He described the milk, Terralac to a symposium on animal nutrition at the University of Minnesota.

Weigh More That Normal

After eight weeks, piglets getting the synthetic milk weigh 10 to 35 per cent more than normally suckled pigs, he said.

The synthetic is a dry, white powder, looking like pie-crust mix. It contains terramycin, dry skim milk, lard to supply fat, fish oils, tiny amounts of minerals and vitamins. It's mixed with water. Except for the fish oils, it tastes like heavy milk.

The cost is 35 to 40 cents a pound, and a pig uses 12 pounds before it's weaned, Luther said. A concentrated form, to which the farmer could add his own skim milk, will be cheaper.

For several reasons, the milk promises more pigs for more food, Luther declared.

A sow usually can nurse only eight to 10 piglets. The others born to her are often killed off. Now the extras can be saved.

Sows can be bred to produce bigger litters. And could be bred to produce three litters a year, instead of one or two. Piglets usually suckle for 56 days, during which the sow can't be bred or marketed.

Sows are clumsy and lumbering, and often kill their young by accident, Luther added.

Mortality among 3,500 piglets raised on the synthetic milk has been only five per cent from disease and accident, he said. The national average is 21 to 33 per cent.

Possible for Nurseries

Antibotics are put in poultry feeds to stimulate growth and reduce disease. The synthetic milk lets it be done for pigs.

Luther said a possibility now is pig nurseries, raising young pigs for farmers much like chick hatcheries raise chicks.

He reported 500 pigs have been raised successfully in a laboratory in Brooklyn, and 3,000 more on several large pig farms. The pigs are kept warm by heat lamps or steam. They drink the milk from a trough, and most learn to do it quickly. Slow learners are trained on a row of nursing bottle nipples.

Piglets like to sleep, and have to be wakened for regular feedings, he said. Sows grunt to wake the youngsters. Luther uses a record of sow's grunts and the squeals of hungry piglets, playing automatically every hour, as a dinner gong.

Only heavenly body to revolve around the earth is the moon, which makes 13 such circuits a year.

College Library Receives Gifts Of Old Papers

Donations Attract Local Interest

FROSTBURG—The State Teachers College Library has received three gifts of outstanding local interest.

Mrs. Arthur W. Taylor has presented the college with a copy of the Cumberland Weekly Independent, dated January 28, 1899, which contains an announcement of the first building to be erected on the campus. Its architect was Alfred Mason, and it was to cost $20,000. Work was to begin in the spring of 1900.

Mrs. C. Walter Hayes has given the Library the register of the Grand Central Hotel, of Frostburg, for January-July, 1887. This hotel burned down before the Gunter Hotel was erected. The book is particularly interesting because of some very elaborate registrations in colored inks, of the Noss Family Musical Novelty Company, which played a two-night stand in the old Opera House.

Miss Gertrude Williams again contributed some old newspapers: five issues of the Mining Journal, June 1895, September 1896, and three relating to the 1912 Centennial; and one copy each of the Frostburg Ledger, December 1893; Frostburg Forum, June 1901; and Frostburg Spirit, April 1914. With this gift also is a copy of Above Ground and Below In The George's Creek Coal Region, by William Jasper Nicolls, and published in 1898 by the Consolidation Coal Company in Baltimore.

The College Library is open to adult residents of Frostburg at the following hours: 8-5 Monday-Friday; 7-9:30 p. m. Monday-Thursday; 8-12 Saturday morning.

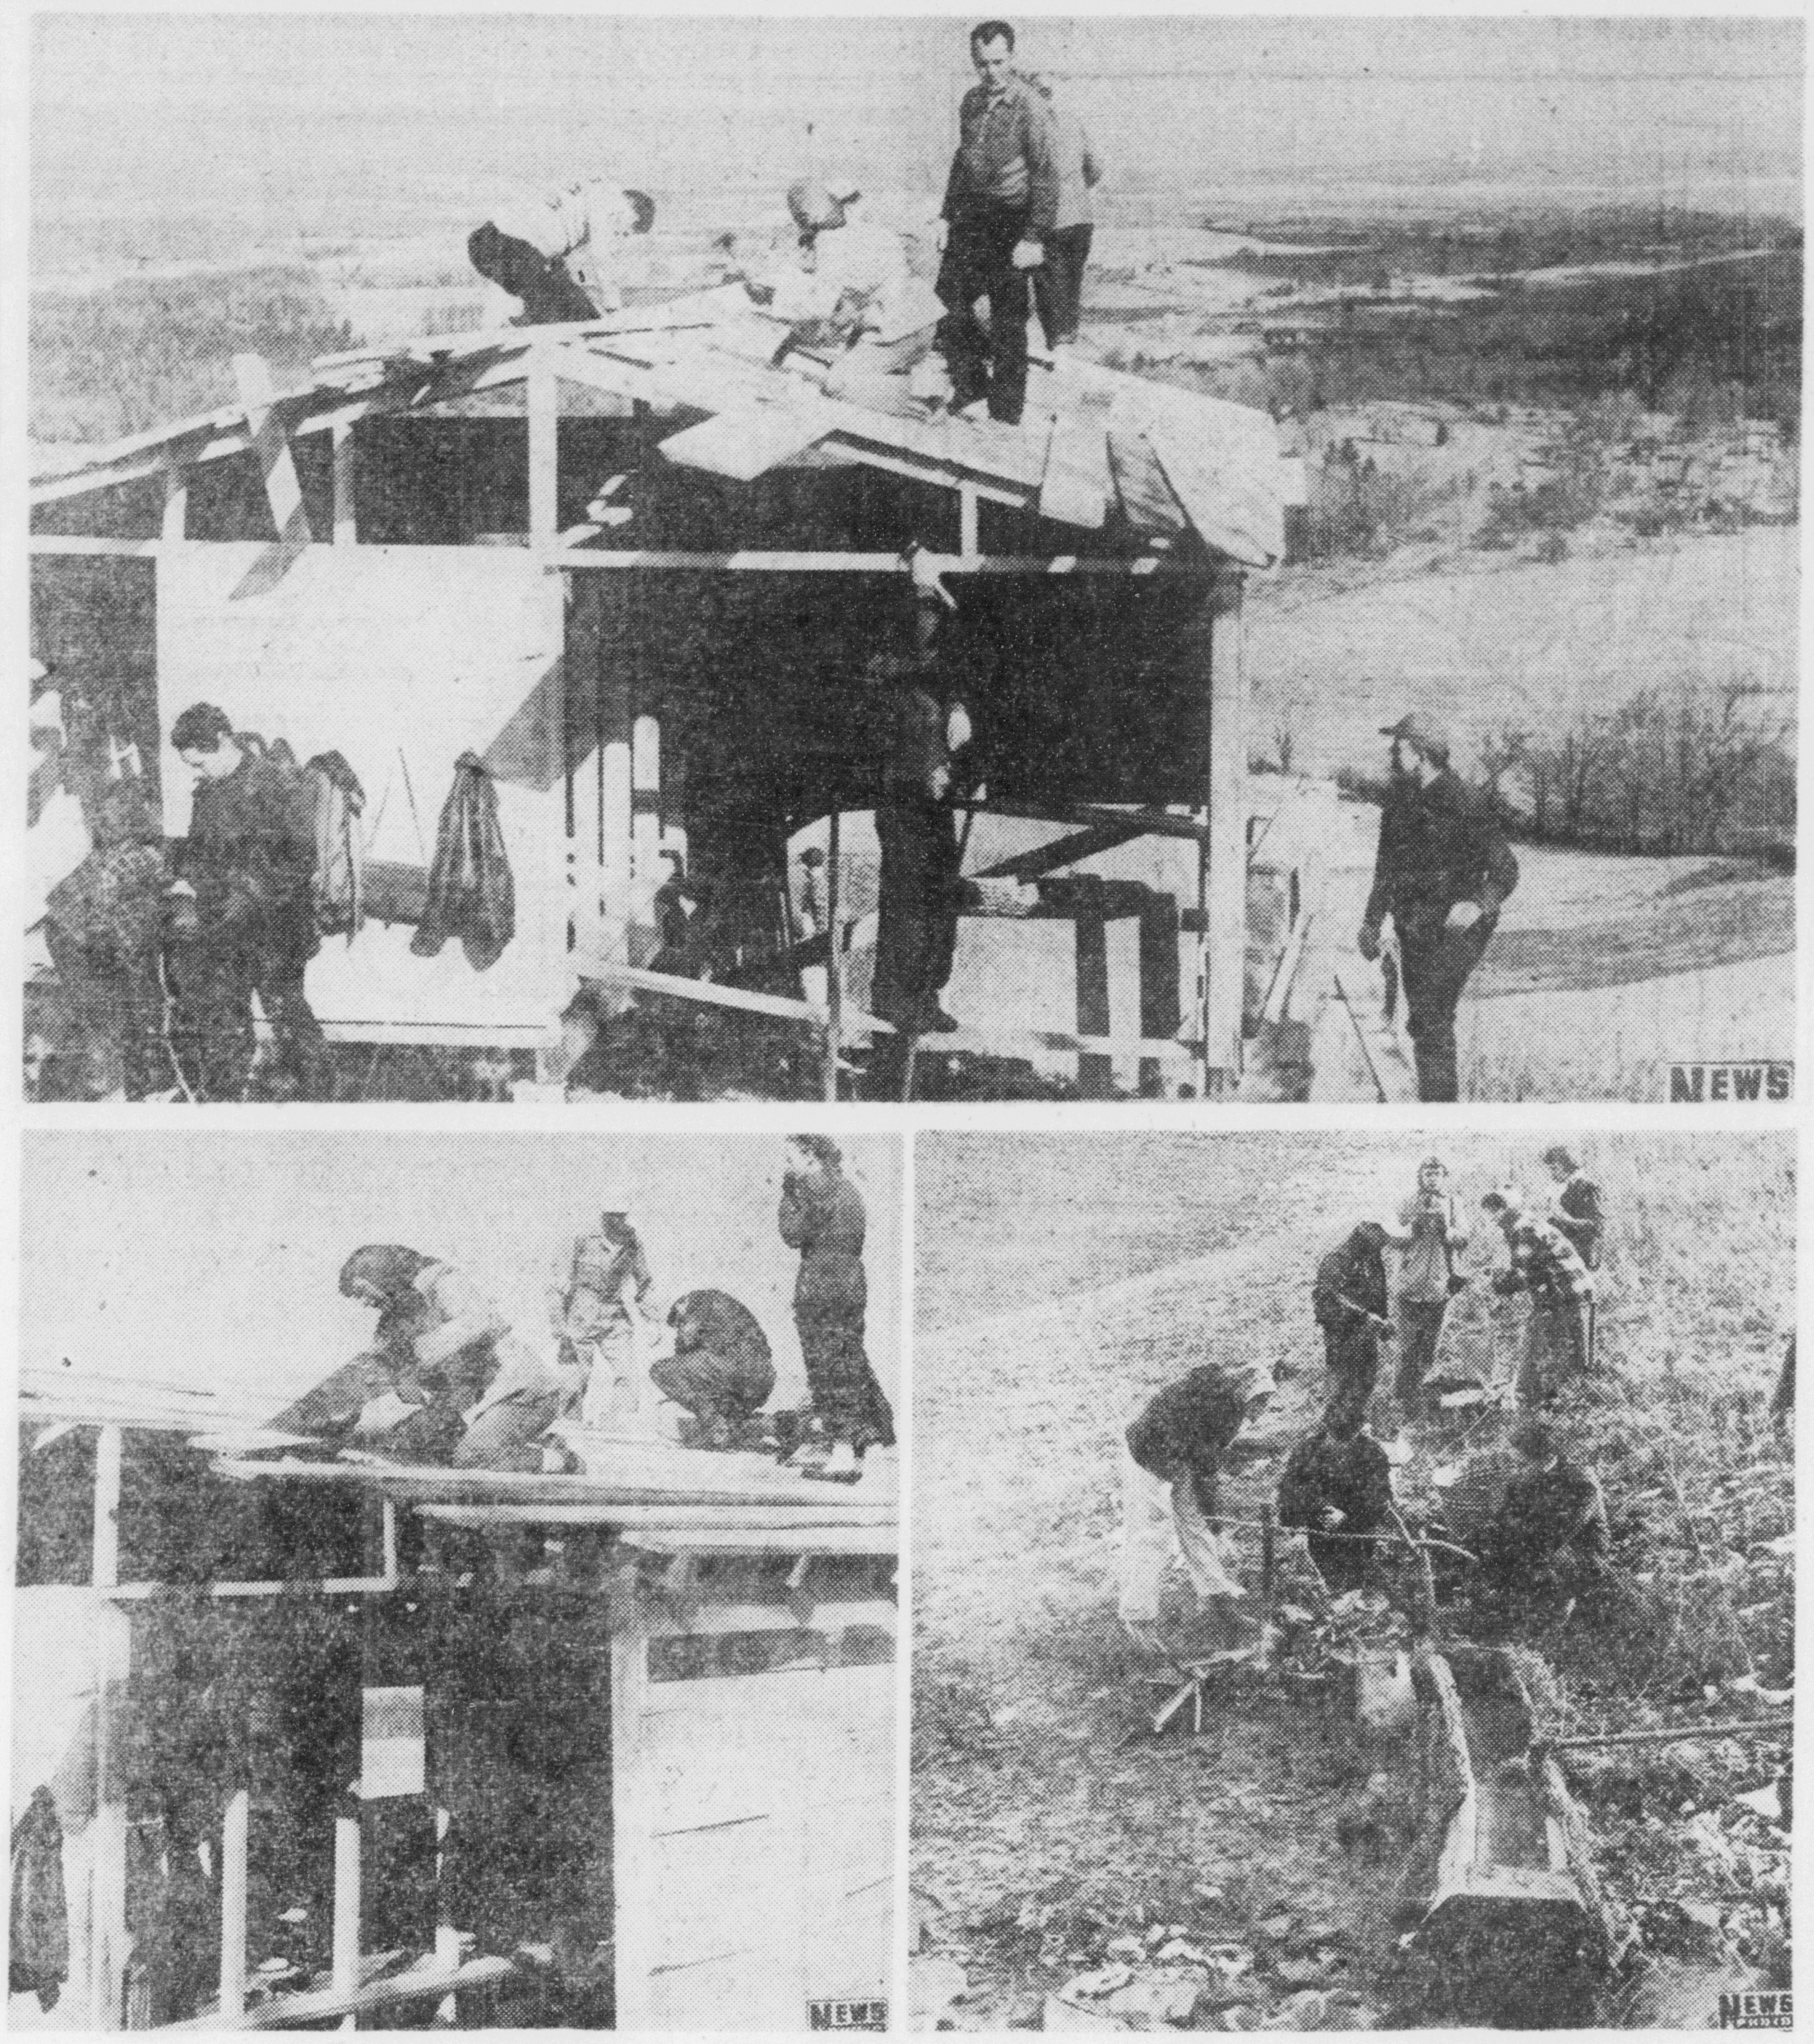
Students making no mistakes were Jim Foote, Ray Merrbaugh, Helen Crable, Shirley Stafford, Paul Nightengale, Wayne Murphy, Sue Sowers, Louise Dilfer and Robert Jones.



SKIERS MUST WORK TOO—These pictures give some idea of the preparatory work that was engaged in by members of the Washington Ski Club before the new development near Davis, W. Va., was ready for fun. Assistance was provided by a number of local ski enthusiasts who belong to the Western Maryland Ski Club. The upper picture shows secretaries and business men trying their skill as weekend carpenters as they built a warming hut high above the Canaan Valley 350 feet above Route 32 just south of Buena, W. Va., between Davis and Harman. The lower picture caught some of the party during a timeout period for lunch and warming their cold limbs. The lower right is another view of the work on the hut roof. One of the men is John Herbert, manager of the United States Olympic ski teams. Plans are being worked out by the mayor and other officials of Davis to meet Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trains with local buses to shuttle skiers through Davis to the Canaan Valley so that those who do not care to drive over Route 50 during sleeting conditions may leave their cars at home.

Attorney H. C. Athey, who represented a delegation of citizens, asked that the present one-way street traffic plan be discontinued.

Lament Delay

Mayor Chester J. Compton and Councilman Richard Herndon lamented the fact that business men and other interested citizens had failed to express their disagreement when council was debating the most feasible way of handling traffic several months before the bridge was opened.

South Main Street business men said the one-way restrictions were driving business away.

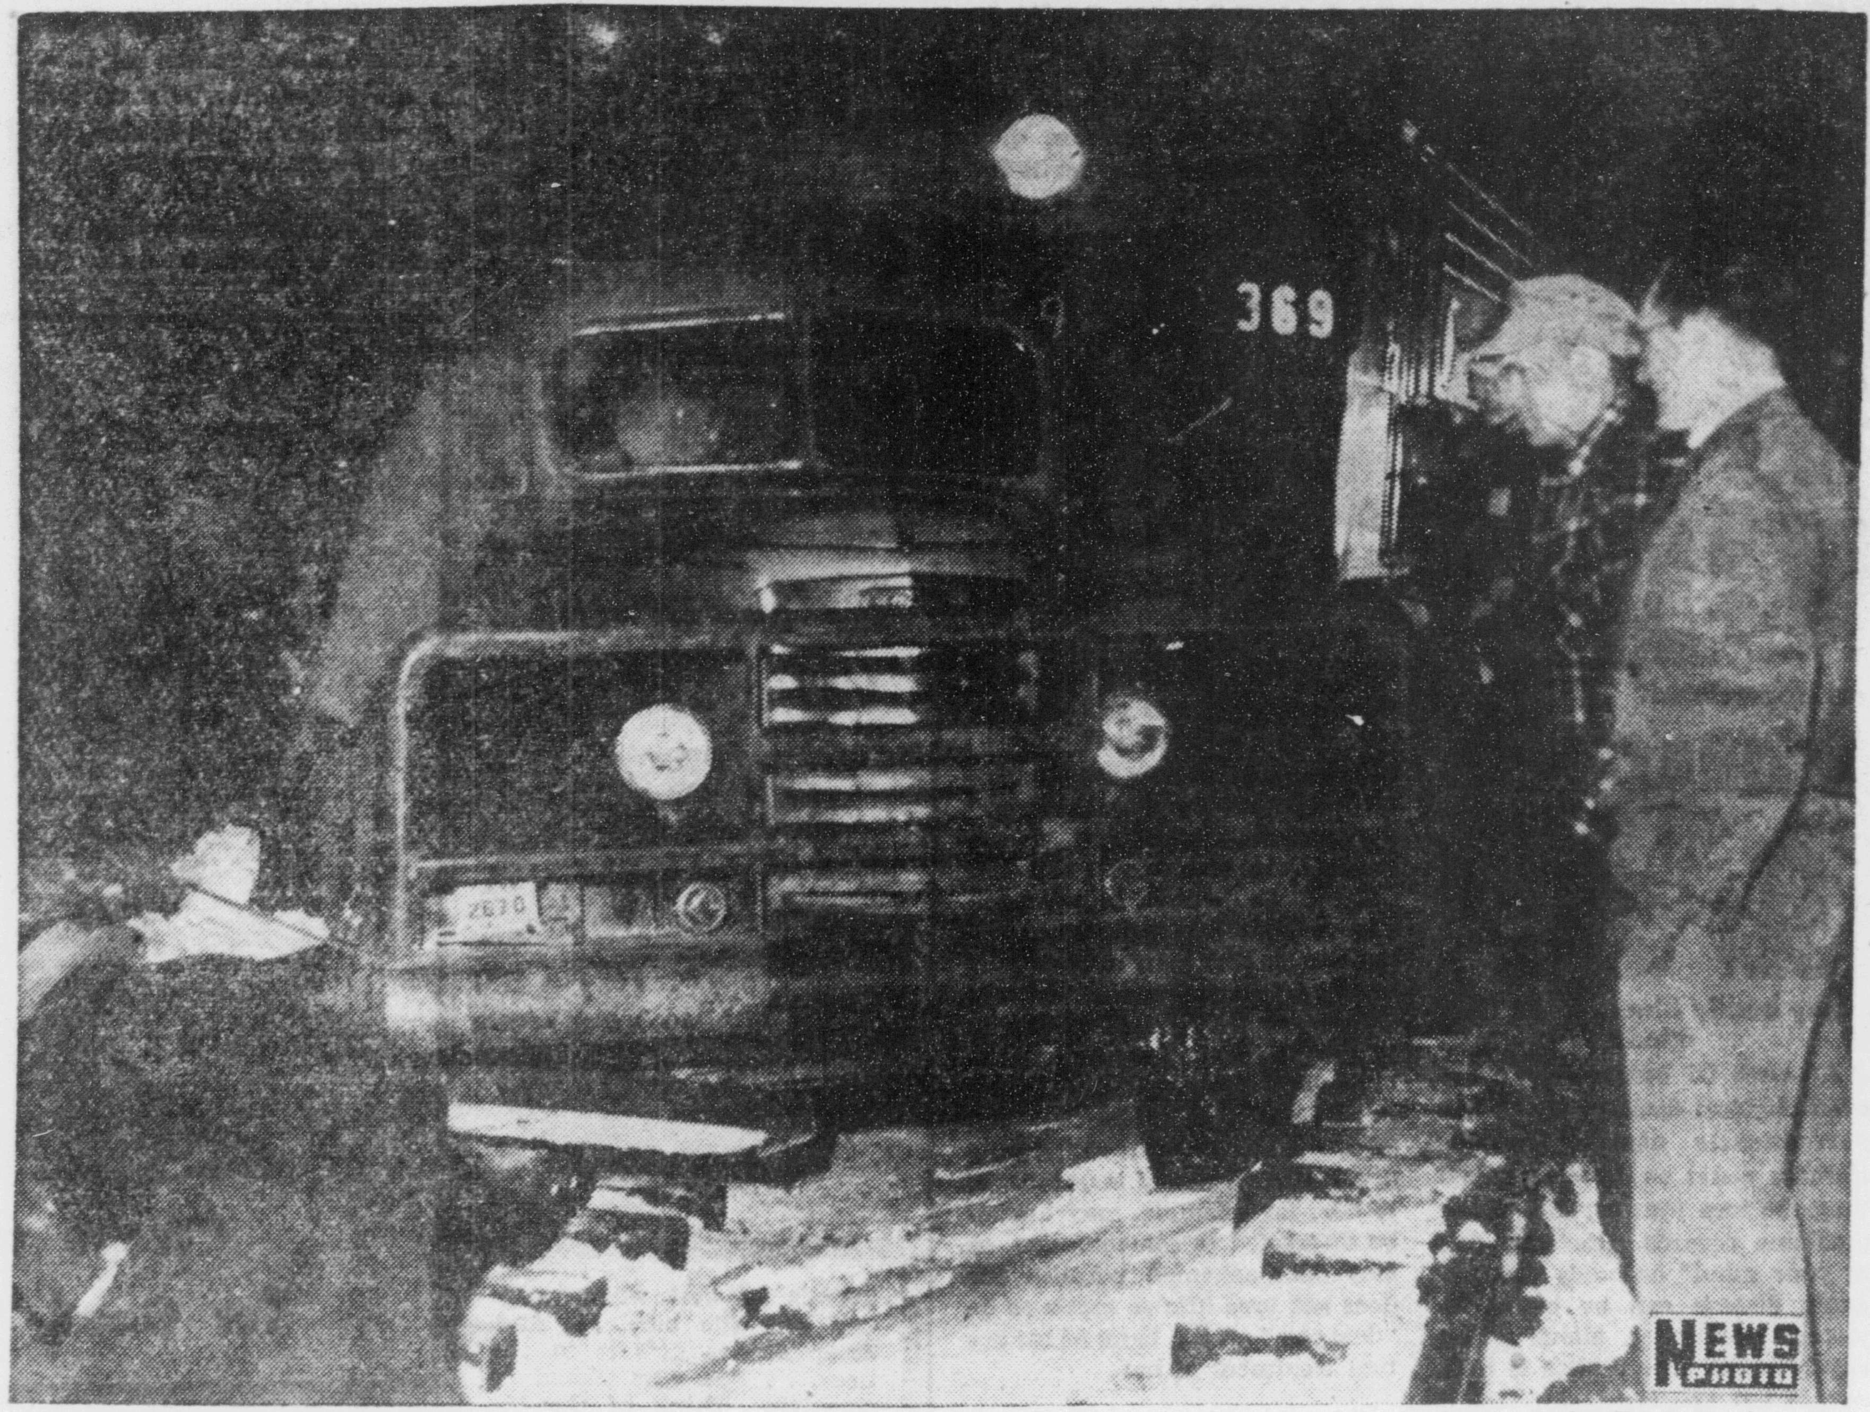
Members of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church asked that some provision be made for permitting parking on both sides of the street during church services on Sundays and at funerals. Mayor Compton promised that action would be taken on this matter.

Study Promised

However, Mayor and Council that general traffic conditions would have to be considered in an overall aspect. They promised careful consideration.

Fire Chief William Lucas was given authority to purchase a second-hand pick-up truck and fire-fighting equipment. The truck will cost $465 and its equipment $1,081.60. It will be used on the North Side.

The question of an increase in pay for policemen from $208 to $225 per month was taken under advisement. One week's vacation pay was granted former Police Chief Claude Martin, who was released November 1.



DRIVER TAKES RIDE—R. R. Hardman, Charlestown, W. Va., driver for the Hall Trucking Company of Charleston, skidded into the Second Street crossing at Oakland Tuesday evening with his one-and-one-half ton straight truck. A Diesel engine drawing a west-bound Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train nudged him over 350 feet and deposited him in front of the B&O Station. He was unhurt. At the time of the mishap the truck was carrying a 500-gallon full hydrochloric acid tank. The impact dislodged the acid and delivered it back of Gonder's Cut Rate Store to the right of the track. Oaklanders in the area will smell hydrochloric acid for many days but otherwise will be unaffected. The acid has been used in large quantities in the Oakland area since the expansion of the natural gas well drilling business. It is used to acidize the wells and increase their output. Oakland firemen rushed to the scene to control the anticipated fire which never developed. They also helped get the truck off the tracks.

Keyser Citizens Protest New Traffic Rules

Ask Discontinuance Of One-Way Plan

KEYSER, W. Va.—Local residents jammed the council chamber Tuesday night to protest the new routing of traffic through here since the opening of Memorial Bridge November 11.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21—(INS)—Allan Nixon, who tried so hard to win Marie Wilson back, taking all the blame for the break-up of their marriage, is getting a break careerwise.

He's been given the starring role in "Outlaw Women," a Robert Lippert production, and this was the direct result of the good performance he gave in "Pick Up." In fact, it was that picture that made Lipper and other producers realize that Allan wasn't just Marie Wilson's husband, and for that reason he's getting jobs.

He'll have Marie Windsor as his co-star, and Ron Ormon das the producer.

• — • — •

Barbara Hale is going to find Broderick Crawford a very amiable guy to work with in "The Sabre And The Arrow"—that's how sunny Brod's disposition has become since his reconciliation with Kay.

Brod returned to Hollywood Tuesday and moved bag and baggage back home with Kay and the baby. Strictly a lemonade and soda pop man these days, Brod looks and feels better than he has in years.

Buddy Adler is producing "Sabre And The Arrow" for Columbia and it's the first time Barbara and Brod have worked together.

Chatter in Hollywood: Didn't I say that Betty Hutton wouldn't be long without a new suitor? And am I right?

Charles O'Curran makes the quickest flight on record to see Betty. He flies to Hawaii Friday night and returns Sunday night to be on the "Glory Alley" set Monday at MGM. Betty will be waiting at the airport. Only a man who is crazy about a girl would take such a long trip to see her.

That Hutton gal just can't be alone. She's not the type. She met O'Curran when he did the choreography on her last picture.

"Isn't she cute?" Dick Powell whispered in my ear. He was speaking of his wife, June Allyson, who won the Modern Screen popularity best actress poll for the third year. June was posing for a newsreel with George Delacorte, who was handing her a beautiful silver cup.

That, I thought, was a very nice compliment coming from a husband of six years. Dick had gone over every word of June's script before she recorded the Modern Screen award with me on the radio, and she listened to every suggestion he made. What's more, so did I.

June wore her hair in a plain bun, they way she wears it for her role of the first woman doctor in her new picture.

Alan Curtis' marriage to Betty Dodero is all over. Betty flew into New York unexpectedly and is taking off for the Virgin Islands, where she will divorce the four time married Curtis.

She was married to Albert Dodero when she met Curtis. She and Dodero were divorced and later he died.

Very well known in smart cafe circles both abroad and in New York, friends of Betty said she grieved over Dodero to whom she had been married for many years.

She and Alan would have been married a year next week if they could have made a go of it. He's still in Italy.

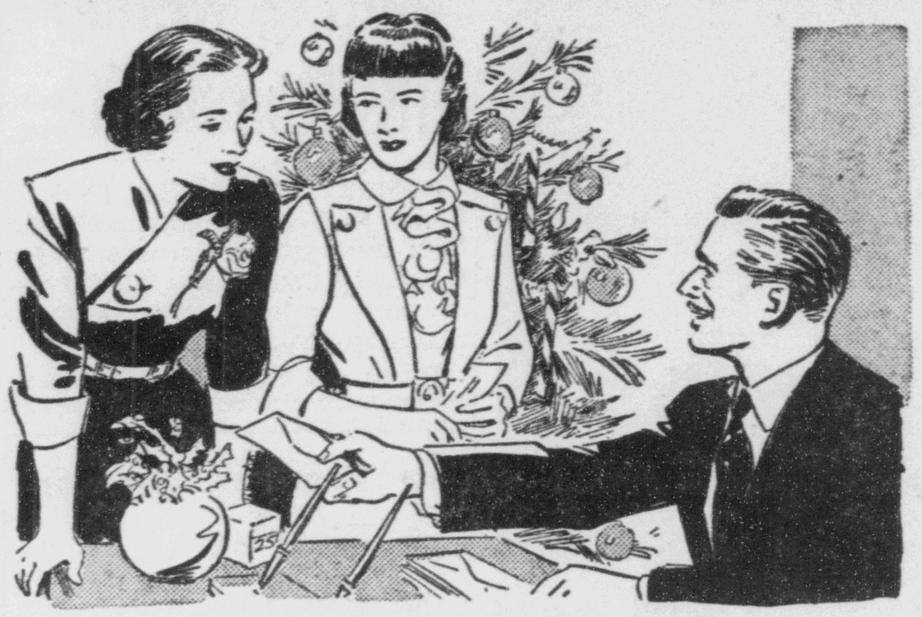
Milton Berle goes into Doctors Hospital the end of the month for a checkup. Doctors are worried that it might bet a tumor pressing on his spine. Joyce Matthews, who got so hopelessly mixed up in the Billy Rose case, is seeinx her ex-Milton. Billy's ex, Eleanor Rose, will not give him a divorce. She's asked for separate maintenance.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Korea's war victims need CARE this Thanksgiving season! Cash contributions to Mrs. Courtney Kidwell, 7 South Allegany Street will provide CARE food and clothing textile packages through the General Federation of Women's Clubs campaign.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist



Are Christmas bonuses appreciated?

Answer: No, says Kenneth J. Eaton, "business consultant," in Personnel Journal. The millions of dollars to be given away this Christmas will be mostly wasted so far as creating good will is concerned because, "The boss doesn't know how to play Santa Claus." Christmas bonuses may actually be resented because the amount is arbitrary and the manner of giving it appears "paternalistic". If bonuses are given, they should be related in some definite way to the profits of the business, since intelligent workers know that, "There ain't no Santa Claus," and feel they could get nothing at all if they had not earned it, Eaton claims.

May bodily illness affect the mind?

Answer: Of course—there are even physical diseases which can permanently destroy reason. Nothing could be more mistaken than the idea that psychosomatic medicine regards illness as "all in your mind" or holds that organic disease can be cured by mental treatment alone. What psychiatrists now realize is that, in whatever sense the mind and body are separate entities, they do not and never can act independently of each other. You cannot have a fit of temper—or depression—without some effect on your bodily functions, and you cannot have a cold in the head without its affecting your emotions, and even your thinking.

May dreams show you wish to be mistreated?

Answer: They may show a secret desire to "get something on" the person whom you dream about, even though you can find nothing for which to reproach him in your waking hours. And the reason why your dreams may invent grievances against another is your need to appease feelings of guilt in relation to him by convincing yourself that (as a small boy might put it) he "hit you first." A wife who continually dreams her husband is unfaithful to her, for example, may herself be interested in someone else, or may feel ashamed because she does not love him as much as he "deserves" on the basis of his actual treatment of her.

HOLLYWOOD
By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21—(INS)—Allan Nixon, who tried so hard to win Marie Wilson back, taking all the blame for the break-up of their marriage, is getting a break career-wise.

He's been given the starring role in "Outlaw Women," a Robert Lippert production, and this was the direct result of the good performance he gave in "Pick Up." In fact, it was that picture that made Lipper and other producers realize that Allan wasn't just Marie Wilson's husband, and for that reason he's getting jobs.

He'll have Marie Windsor as his co-star, and Ron Ormon das the producer.

Barbara Hale is going to find Broderick Crawford a very amiable guy to work with in "The Sabre And The Arrow"—that's how sunny Brod's disposition has become since his reconciliation with Kay.

Brod returned to Hollywood Tuesday and moved bag and baggage back home with Kay and the baby. Strictly a lemonade and soda pop man these days, Brod looks and feels better than he has in years.

Buddy Adler is producing "Sabre And The Arrow" for Columbia and it's the first time Barbara and Brod have worked together.

Chatter in Hollywood: Didn't I say that Betty Hutton wouldn't be long without a new suitor? And am I right?

Charles O'Curran makes the quickest flight on record to see Betty. He flies to Hawaii Friday night and returns Sunday night to be on the "Glory Alley" set Monday at MGM. Betty will be waiting at the airport. Only a man who is crazy about a girl would take such a long trip to see her.

That Hutton gal just can't be alone. She's not the type. She met O'Curran when he did the choreography on her last picture.

"Isn't she cute?" Dick Powell whispered in my ear. He was speaking of his wife, June Allyson, who won the Modern Screen popularity best actress poll for the third year. June was posing for a newsreel with George Delacorte, who was handing her a beautiful silver cup.

That, I thought, was a very nice compliment coming from a husband of six years. Dick had gone over every word of June's script before she recorded the Modern Screen award with me on the radio, and she listened to every suggestion he made. What's more, so did I.

June wore her hair in a plain bun, they way she wears it for her role of the first woman doctor in her new picture.

Alan Curtis' marriage to Betty Dodero is all over. Betty flew into New York unexpectedly and is taking off for the Virgin Islands, where she will divorce the four time married Curtis.

She was married to Albert Dodero when she met Curtis. She and Dodero were divorced and later he died.

Very well known in smart cafe circles both abroad and in New York, friends of Betty said she grieved over Dodero to whom she had been married for many years.

She and Alan would have been married a year next week if they could have made a go of it. He's still in Italy.

Milton Berle goes into Doctors Hospital the end of the month for a checkup. Doctors are worried that it might bet a tumor pressing on his spine. Joyce Matthews, who got so hopelessly mixed up in the Billy Rose case, is seeinx her ex-Milton. Billy's ex, Eleanor Rose, will not give him a divorce. She's asked for separate maintenance.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Korea's war victims need CARE this Thanksgiving season! Cash contributions to Mrs. Courtney Kidwell, 7 South Allegany Street will provide CARE food and clothing textile packages through the General Federation of Women's Clubs campaign.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Answer: No, says Kenneth J. Eaton, "business consultant," in Personnel Journal. The millions of dollars to be given away this Christmas will be mostly wasted so far as creating good will is concerned because, "The boss doesn't know how to play Santa Claus." Christmas bonuses may actually be resented because the amount is arbitrary and the manner of giving it appears "paternalistic". If bonuses are given, they should be related in some definite way to the profits of the business, since intelligent workers know that, "There ain't no Santa Claus," and feel they could get nothing at all if they had not earned it, Eaton claims.

May bodily illness affect the mind?

Answer: Of course—there are even physical diseases which can permanently destroy reason. Nothing could be more mistaken than the idea that psychosomatic medicine regards illness as "all in your mind" or holds that organic disease can be cured by mental treatment alone. What psychiatrists now realize is that, in whatever sense the mind and body are separate entities, they do not and never can act independently of each other. You cannot have a fit of temper—or depression—without some effect on your bodily functions, and you cannot have a cold in the head without its affecting your emotions, and even your thinking.

May dreams show you wish to be mistreated?

Answer: They may show a secret desire to "get something on" the person whom you dream about, even though you can find nothing for which to reproach him in your waking hours. And the reason why your dreams may invent grievances against another is your need to appease feelings of guilt in relation to him by convincing yourself that (as a small boy might put it) he "hit you first." A wife who continually dreams her husband is unfaithful to her, for example, may herself be interested in someone else, or may feel ashamed because she does not love him as much as he "deserves" on the basis of his actual treatment of her.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Two Oceans At Once

John Crosby

"This is an old team starting a new trade," remarked Edward R. Murrow at the outset of "See It Now," C. B. S.'s enormously impressive new television news show (CBS-TV 3:30 p. m. E. S. T. Sundays). He was seated in his control room of Studio 41—a logical spot, he explained, to start out from — and presently he called on Camera 1 to bring in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Atlantic Ocean, a small wet segment of it, swam into view on one monitor screen. Then Murrow called on the crew in San Francisco to show us the Pacific. The Pacific, overhung with San Francisco's customary fog, was a less telegenic body of water, but we did catch a glimpse of it. Then Murrow, more or less acting as quarterback, called on his crews to show us first the San Francisco Bay Bridge, then the Brooklyn Bridge, the New York skyline, then San Francisco's skyline—all on live television.

"We are impressed," said Murrow, "by a medium in which a man sitting in his living room has been able for the first time to look at two oceans at once."

I am, too. I am also impressed by the intelligence of the men—chiefly Murrow and his producer, Fred W. Friendly—who dreamed up this simple trick to bring home to the viewers the wonder of this electronic miracle. "See It Now," which has been in preparation for six months, is the logical extension to the highly successful album of records, "I Can Hear It Now," and to its radio counterpart, the Peabody-award winning "Hear It Now." It is not—and is not intended to be—a complete review of the week's news; it is instead an almost entirely new form of journalism, "told in the voices and faces" of the people who made the news, a technique that offers a deeper insight into the headlines and the people who make them—who they are and what sort of people they are.

There was, for example, a film of Winston Churchill during his London Guildhall speech, an aged, Churchill, the great voice dimmed by time, the prose style—though a great improvement on Clement Attlee's—subdued into just a whisper of its former thunder. A deeply revelatory picture it was. There were other pictures—of Eden in Paris telling Vishinsky to stop laughing and read the disarmament proposal, of Senator Taft purring with a catlike contentment while Senator Dirksen told an assemblage what a great candidate he was.

Murrow — handsome, relaxed, urbane—sewed the pictures together with a running commentary which, I should say, neither over-played nor under-played the significance of the events, and also conducted interviews with some of the C.B.S. news staff members—Eric Severeid, in Washington, Howard K. Smith, in Paris. Smith remarked good naturedly of the relations between Russia and the West that "the mutual ill-will is entirely unimpaired.")

Then Mr. Murrow shifted us to Korea for one of the most intimate and instructive glimpses into that battleground that I have yet seen. This bit was especially remarkable in its avoidance of all the newsreel cliches. There wasn't a single shot of a soldier yanking a lanyard on a 105-mm. cannon, no shots of bombers tearing great holes in the Korean real estate. Instead, the cameras concentrated on the soldiers of Fox Company of an infantry regiment, catching them as they ate and slept and gambled and groused and joked, catching the tedium of warfare, the waiting, the humor of an essentially unhumorous occupation, the humanity of an essentially inhuman profession.

We followed Fox Company, as it took position in the front line on a mountain-top and left them there, anticipating trouble that had not yet come. Evening had fallen; the rocket flares were out; a few shells sounded their cricket calls in the distance; the Chinese were astir; but nothing had happened yet. It was a dramatic close. "We wanted," said Mr. Murrow, "to narrow the distance between those of us sitting comfortably at home and those in the line." The news of the week from Korea was the murder of 5,500 captive American soldiers. This was the other side, more dramatic in its sheer uneventfulness.

I think they have the feel of the thing already, but I expect it'll get better as it goes along, that Mr. Friendly have the simplicity of mind and the sweep of imagination to understand what television can do best in the news field and what television cannot do and should not attempt.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHUN LEADS FROM THEM

ONE MARK of the experienced and able defensive player is his tendency to shy away from leading an unbid suit in which he holds the queen or jack plus at least one low card. He has learned, at considerable expense, that in an important percentage of all cases his partner will hold the other of those cards opposite it, or perhaps the guarded king. Such being the case, his lead may prevent his side from taking any trick in the suit, whereas waiting until the declarer has to lead it may build a winner for the defense.

South whisperingly admitted after the play was over that he would not have made his last bid if he had been against strong defenders. But he felt that the particular pair he faced was worth as much to him as another king in his hand, perhaps another ace. It worked out that way too.

West opened the diamond K and followed with the A. When East gave him the 5 and 9 on these tricks, impelling him to shift suits, he led the spade 3, South playing the 5 from dummy, East the Q and South the A. With the J pretty well marked in West's hand by the play of East's Q, the declarer next finessed the spade 10 and felled the J with the K. After that it was impossible for South to lose anything except one more trick, to the heart A, so he made his contract.

If East, realizing that his partner might have some kind of honor in every suit, had tried to protect that situation by playing the diamond 9 on the first lead and the 5 on the next, West would have led a third round of the suit. That would have obliged South then to begin the playing of every other suit. When he embarked on spades, he could not have helped building a trick in the suit for the defense, no matter how he played. That would have beaten his contract. East's lack of imagination is what should be blamed for the defense's failure to beat him.

Merry-Go-Round

much money we spend on arms, we cannot prevent war until we win friends behind the iron curtain. We can go on paying higher and higher taxes; we can go on sending more and more money to Europe, but the European cancer will continue just as dangerous until the heart is cut out. And that heart is the barrier between the free peoples of the West and the captive peoples of the East. Until the Iron Curtain is broken down by Radio Free Europe, by freedom balloon messages, by the Voice of America, and by encouraging people-to-people friendship there will continue to be danger of war.

But this time may be approaching when more and more Pilgrims from behind the Iron Curtain will try to break away from Soviet darkness, As did the pilgrim fathers from English darkness 300 years ago. Such a Pilgrimage, if it develops major proportions, will be something to be truly thankful for.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Two Oceans At Once

John Crosby

"This is an old team starting a new trade," remarked Edward R. Murrow at the outset of "See It Now," C. B. S.'s enormously impressive new television news show (CBS-TV 3:30 p. m. E. S. T. Sundays). He was seated in his control room of Studio 41—a logical spot, he explained, to start out from — and presently he called on Camera 1 to bring in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Atlantic Ocean, a small wet segment of it, swam into view on one monitor screen. Then Murrow called on the crew in San Francisco to show us the Pacific. The Pacific, overhung with San Francisco's customary fog, was a less telegenic body of water, but we did catch a glimpse of it. Then Murrow, more or less acting as quarterback, called on his crews to show us first the San Francisco Bay Bridge, then the Brooklyn Bridge, the New York skyline, then San Francisco's skyline—all on live television.

"We are impressed," said Murrow, "by a medium in which a man sitting in his living room has been able for the first time to look at two oceans at once."

I am, too. I am also impressed by the intelligence of the men—chiefly Murrow and his producer, Fred W. Friendly—who dreamed up this simple trick to bring home to the viewers the wonder of this electronic miracle. "See It Now," which has been in preparation for six months, is the logical extension to the highly successful album of records, "I Can Hear It Now," and to its radio counterpart, the Peabody-award winning "Hear It Now." It is not—and is not intended to be—a complete review of the week's news; it is instead an almost entirely new form of journalism, "told in the voices and faces"of the people who made the news, a technique that offers a deeper insight into the headlines and the people who make them—who they are and what sort of people they are.

There was, for example, a film of Winston Churchill during his London Guildhall speech, an aged, Churchill, the great voice dimmed by time, the prose style—though a great improvement on Clement Attlee's—subdued into just a whisper of its former thunder. A deeply revelatory picture it was. There were other pictures—of Eden in Paris telling Vishinsky to stop laughing and read the disarmament proposal, of Senator Taft purring with a catlike contentment while Senator Dirksen told an assemblage what a great candidate he was.

Murrow—handsome, relaxed, urbane—sewed the pictures together with a running commentary which, I should say, neither over-played nor under-played the significance of the events, and also conducted interviews with some of the C.B.S. news staff members—Eric Severeid, in Washington, Howard K. Smith, in Paris. Smith remarked good naturedly of the relations between Russia and the West that "the mutual ill-will is entirely unimpaired.")

Then Mr. Murrow shifted us to Korea for one of the most intimate and instructive glimpses into that battleground that I have yet seen. This bit was especially remarkable in its avoidance of all the newsreel cliches. There wasn't a single shot of a soldier yanking a lanyard on a 105-mm. cannon, no shots of bombers tearing great holes in the Korean real estate. Instead, the cameras concentrated on the soldiers of Fox Company of an infantry regiment, catching them as they ate and slept and gambled and groused and joked, catching the tedium of warfare, the waiting, the humor of an essentially unhumorous occupation, the humanity of an essentially inhuman profession.

We followed Fox Company, as it took position in the front line on a mountain-top and left them there, anticipating trouble that had not yet come. Evening had fallen; the rocket flares were out; a few shells sounded their cricket calls in the distance; the Chinese were astir; but nothing had happened yet. It was a dramatic close. "We wanted," said Mr. Murrow, "to narrow the distance between those of us sitting comfortably at home and those in the line." The news of the week from Korea was the murder of 5,500 captive American soldiers. This was the other side, more dramatic in its sheer uneventfulness.

I think they have the feel of the thing already, but I expect it'll get better as it goes along, that Mr. Friendly have the simplicity of mind and the sweep of imagination to understand what television can do best in the news field and what television cannot do and should not attempt.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHUN LEADS FROM THEM

ONE MARK of the experienced and able defensive player is his tendency to shy away from leading an unbid suit in which he holds the queen or jack plus at least one low card. He has learned, at considerable expense, that in an important percentage of all cases his partner will hold the other of those cards opposite it, or perhaps the guarded king. Such being the case, his lead may prevent his side from taking any trick in the suit, whereas waiting until the declarer has to lead it may build a winner for the defense.

South whisperingly admitted after the play was over that he would not have made his last bid if he had been against strong defenders. But he felt that the particular pair he faced was worth as much to him as another king in his hand, perhaps another ace. It worked out that way too.

West opened the diamond K and followed with the A. When East gave him the 5 and 9 on these tricks, impelling him to shift suits, he led the spade 3, South playing the 5 from dummy, East the Q and South the A. With the J pretty well marked in West's hand by the play of East's Q, the declarer next finessed the spade 10 and felled the J with the K. After that it was impossible for South to lose anything except one more trick, to the heart A, so he made his contract.

If East, realizing that his partner might have some kind of honor in every suit, had tried to protect that situation by playing the diamond 9 on the first lead and the 5 on the next, West would have led a third round of the suit. That would have obliged South then to begin the playing of every other suit. When he embarked on spades, he could not have helped building a trick in the suit for the defense, no matter how he played. That would have beaten his contract. East's lack of imagination is what should be blamed for the defense's failure to beat him.

much money we spend on arms, we cannot prevent war until we win friends behind the iron curtain. We can go on paying higher and higher taxes; we can go on sending more and more money to Europe, but the European cancer will continue just as dangerous until the heart is cut out. And that heart is the barrier between the free peoples of the West and the captive peoples of the East. Until the Iron Curtain is broken down by Radio Free Europe, by freedom balloon messages, by the Voice of America, and by encouraging people-to-people friendship there will continue to be danger of war.

But this time may be approaching when more and more Pilgrims from behind the Iron Curtain will try to break away from Soviet darkness, As did the pilgrim fathers from English darkness 300 years ago. Such a Pilgrimage, if it develops major proportions, will be something to be truly thankful for.

Pfc. McGreevy Writes Letter From Prisoner Of War Camp

Probably the most wonderful Thanksgiving news received in any Cumberland household this year was a letter mailed to Mr. and Mrs. Owen McGreevy, 240 North Mechanic Street, from their son who has been reported missing in action in Korea for over a year.

From a Prisoner of War Camp, Pfc. Robert L. McGreevey, wrote a letter to his parents dated September 8, telling them of his well-being. The letter was received yesterday.

The 20-year-old former LaSalle High School athlete was reported missing November 2, 1950, when remnants of the First Cavalry Division were trapped in the northwestern sector of Korea. Several days ago the parents were notified that Robert was believed to be a prisoner of the Chinese.

The letter written from a POW Camp, Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, through the Committee of Chinese of World Peace, Peking, China, was as follows:

> Dearest Mother, Dad and all,
>
> Well here I am again, this makes the fourth letter that I've written, I sure hope that you receive one of them, so that you'll know I'm okay.
>
> How is everything at home? Fine I hope. I hope everyone is in good health around the old homestead. I sure hope it won't be long until I'll be home to see you all. I hope and pray it will be before Christmas. Please don't worry about me being mistreated. The Chinese are treating us all fine, the food is very good, we get all sorts of meats, chicken, pig, beef also bread and potatoes and eggs.
>
> I sure hope to get home soon, the first Sunday dinner I want will be a turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, and I want a couple of merange pies and one of them is going to be all mine.
>
> How is Dad doing at the Barber Shop? Has Gene found any work yet? I hope so. Is Ted still working in Pittsburgh? I sure hope they're not in the service. I'd hate to think that they were over here. This place is pretty as far as scenery is concerned, but that's all.
>
> Well, Mother, I can't think of any thing else to say right now. Tell Nancy and Helen and all the rest I said hello. Please pray for peace so that all of us prisoners will be able to come home. By the way, how about trying to send me a package. I sure would like to get one.
>
> Well, I'll close now. May Almighty God see to it that you get this letter.
>
> All my love to the greatest and best mother and Dad in the world,
>
> Your Son, Bob,
>
> P. S. Love and kisses, Pray for peace. I know that you are.

Pfc. McGreevy Writes Letter From Prisoner Of War Camp

Probably the most wonderful Thanksgiving news received in any Cumberland household this year was a letter mailed to Mr. and Mrs. Owen McGreevy, 240 North Mechanic Street, from their son who has been reported missing in action in Korea for over a year.

From a Prisoner of War Camp, Pfc. Robert L. McGreevey, wrote a letter to his parents dated September 8, telling them of his well-being. The letter was received yesterday.

The 20-year-old former LaSalle High School athlete was reported missing November 2, 1950, when remnants of the First Cavalry Division were trapped in the northwestern sector of Korea. Several days ago the parents were notified that Robert was believed to be a prisoner of the Chinese.

The letter written from a POW Camp, Democratic Peoples Republic of Korea, through the Committee of Chinese of World Peace, Peking, China, was as follows:

Dearest Mother, Dad and all,

Well here I am again, this makes the fourth letter that I've written, I sure hope that you receive one of them, so that you'll know I'm okay.

How is everything at home? Fine I hope. I hope everyone is in good health around the old homestead. I sure hope it won't be long until I'll be home to see you all. I hope and pray it will be before Christmas. Please don't worry about me being mistreated. The Chinese are treating us all fine, the food is very good, we get all sorts of meats, chicken, pig, beef also bread and potatoes and eggs.

I sure hope to get home soon, the first Sunday dinner I want will be a turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, and I want a couple of merange pies and one of them is going to be all mine.

How is Dad doing at the Barber Shop? Has Gene found any work yet? I hope so. Is Ted still working in Pittsburgh? I sure hope they're not in the service. I'd hate to think that they were over here. This place is pretty as far as scenery is concerned, but that's all.

Well, Mother, I can't think of any thing else to say right now. Tell Nancy and Helen and all the rest I said hello. Please pray for peace so that all of us prisoners will be able to come home. By the way, how about trying to send me a package. I sure would like to get one.

Well, I'll close now. May Almighty God see to it that you get this letter.

All my love to the greatest and best mother and Dad in the world,

Your Son, Bob,

P. S. Love and kisses, Pray for peace. I know that you are.

Fort Hill Conceded Edge In Clash With Allegany Today

Thirty-three seniors will be playing their final football game today when Fort Hill and Allegany elevens clash in their 16th annual Thanksgiving Day classic at 2 p. m. in Fort Hill stadium.

Seventeen Fort Hill gridders will conclude their studies at the Hilltopper school with the 1951-52 graduating class while Allegany will have 16 members in their last season.

Pep Rallies Are Held

Today's momentous meeting will climax successful seasons for both teams, ably directed by Coaches William P. Hahn and Ray Hull at Fort Hill, and Robert E. Pence and James Hosack at Allegany. The Scarlet and White Sentinels have compiled a 7-1 record while the Alco eleven has a 5-3-1 mark.

Allegany holds the edge in the 18 previous meetings of the two clubs, winning nine games while Fort Hill copped seven with two tilts ending in ties. In 1944, 1945, and 1946 the teams met twice each season during wartime travel restrictions.

Pep rallies started off pre-game festivities at both schools yesterday. At Allegany the student body met in the gym for a noon rally with the band and cheerleaders leading the pep meeting. Brief talks were given by Coach Pence and Principal Ralph R. Webster along with members of the team.

Last night the Campers kicked off in a thuse and rally at 7:30 on the Campobello practice field. A huge bon fire was lit and a Fort Hill player burned in effigy. Richard Jamison, class of 1949, was master of ceremonies. The Boys' Hi-Y Club and cheerleaders sponsored the affair. The Alco band played and brief talks were heard.

Good Weather Forecast

At Fort Hill an afternoon pep rally also was held in the gym in which cheerleaders and the band played prominent parts. Principal Victor D. Heisey, Coach Hahn and Hull and members of the team gave talks.

The Sentinels bonfire was lit in Constitution Park at 7:30, cheers and songs were held and short talks were heard. Lester Hudson, president of the Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association was in charge of all arrangements.

Perfect football weather has been forecast for this afternoon's headliner and a capacity crowd of 8,000 is expected to witness the holiday contest.

The two rivals went through light workouts the last two days of practice before game time with both Coaches Hahn and Pence signifying their squads in excellent physical shape.

Fort Hill Is Favored

Fort Hill, by virtue of their better record, will be favored once again to add the city championship to their collection of trophies. The Sentinels have ruled the roost since 1945 with the exception of a share with the Campers in 1948, the year the two teams battled to a mighty 6-6 tie.

The Sentinels played their last game Friday night at Westminster when they turned back the Owls 32-0. Allegany has been idle since whipping Elkins High, 28-0, November 10.

Ronnie Sisk, quarterback, and Dick Widdows, tackle, will co-captain the Campers in today's classic while Dave Ritter, end, Dick Beard, halfback, and Bill Lee, guard, will lead Fort Hill on the gridiron. All five are seniors.

Honor Bedford Gridder Publicity Is Shunned

By C. V. BURNS

Karl Kolseth, one-time minor league slugger, who trained horses in recent years, is in the chips again.

The big fellow who married a local girl (Helen Steele) and was active as a trainer for many years on the half milers is now the agent of Jockey Lois C. Cook, one of the country's better young riders.

"Koley", who in recent years was an active Dapper Dan Club booster here and once trained thoroughbreds for Bill Keegan, is now at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, with Jockey Cook. The Louisiana track's meeting opens today.

Most of the Potomac Valley Conference schools shun Thanksgiving Day games because the weather is usually too cold in nearby West Virginia for football this late in the year.

Come to think of it there were some real frigid Turkey Day games here in the days when Allegany and LaSalle played at old Mid City Park.

Only one game was postponed here on account of the weather and that was halted by a blizzard about 10 years ago.

Officials in charge of the Catholic championship football game in Washington, D. C., Sunday had to deal with an unusual situation at the close of the game which was won by St. John's over Gonzaga, 25-6.

Enthusiastic St. John's rooters tore down both goal posts with two minutes left to play. Gonzaga scored shortly afterward and attempted a drop kick for the extra point.

The referee stood in his normal place behind the kicker and the field judge took a spot parallel with where the goal posts had been. After the ball was booted, the two officials compared notes before announcing a decision.

The referee said it was high enough and straight enough but the field judge decided, as nearly as he could estimate, it hadn't reached the necessary distance

Shaw, 17, is a senior, tips the beam at 160 and is 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

He was the third highest scorer in the four-county district with 102 points. Green of Conemaugh Township's undefeated team (10-0) led 'em all with 166 points.

Brian Bell, Jr., of Washington, D. C., who covered Maryland's massacre of N. C. State on Saturday referred to Lynn Beightol as the "much publicized freshman quarterback from Frederick, Md."

Bell also reveals that West Virginia had a pair of scouts in the press box but they left early.

Someone asked them what they were going to advise the Mountaineers.

Maryland's Soccer Team Is 90 Per Cent From Outside U. S.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—Coach Jim Tatum, referring to "all this talk about out-of-state football players" on the Maryland squad, said today he wondered how well it was known that 90 per cent of the soccer team was from out of the country.

"Dead" Fighter Is Recovering

Stopped Breathing After K. O. Wallop

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 21—(INS)—A 27-year-old St. Paul boxer who collapsed during a bout in Duluth last night and for a short time was believed to have died was reported recovering tonight.

Physicians said the fighter, Luverne Dreher, who fought under the name of Luverne "Cole", will not be able to continue boxing. He suffered a brain hemorrhage.

The fighter was hit under the heart by his opponent, 22-year-old Bunny Roettger, of Stillwater, Minn., in the fourth round. Observers said he retaliated with a single blow and then collapsed.

Dr. C. M. Smith, a member of the State Boxing Commission, climbed into the ring to examine the fallen man. The physician said that from "all indications, he was dead."

Dr. Smith said Dreher had no pulse and no heart beat. There were several gasps and then the patient stopped breathing.

Artificial respiration was started immediately and firemen responded quickly with oxygen.

He listed them as: Oklahoma, University of Texas, Tulsa, Clemson College, Holy Cross, Villanova, Cincinnati University, Xavier, University of Virginia, and William and Mary.

Miami has a record of six wins against two losses so far this season.

Bocetti To Play Final For W. & L.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 21 (AP) — Washington and Lee's ace quarterback, Gil Bocetti, plays his last college game here tomorrow as the Generals close out their 1951 season by meeting the University of Richmond Spiders in a Southern Conference contest.

Along with Bocetti, ten other W&L players will be seeing their last action. The Generals, who have a 5-4 record, are three-touchdown favorites.

Richmond has been able to win only two games this season but Coach Ed Merrick thinks the Spiders, though crippled by injuries, will give a good account of themselves.

Bowl Game Today

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 21 (AP)—Morris Harvey and Lebanon Valley get the program of post-season football games under way here tomorrow when they tangle in the seventh annual Burley Bowl.

A passing duel is expected between Morris Harvey's Pete Anania nad Lebanon Valley's Lou Sorrentino, both of whom direct "T" offenses.

Lebnaon Valley, from Annville, Pa., has a season record of 7-2 and is a slight favorite. Morris Harvey, from Charleston, W. Va., has a 5-3-1 mark.

Griffith Says There's Nothing To Trade Talk

Williams Reported Going To Senators

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (INS) — Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, said tonight there is "nothing at this time" in reports that Ted Williams will be traded to the Nats by the Boston Red Sox.

The Chicago Herald-American today quoted "reliable reports" in baseball circles as saying the Red Sox would give up Williams, Walt Dropo and Fred Hatfield in return for Washington's Eddie Yost, Mickey Vernon and Gil Coan.

Griffith said there is no trade at all brewing between him and Red Sox general manager Joe Cronin, his son-in-law. Cronin is in Washington but Griffith said only to help him celebrate his 82nd birthday.

Three For Two Swap?

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (INS) — The Chicago Herald-American said today that "reliable reports" in baseball circles indicate Outfielder Ted Williams, the temperamental hitting star of the Boston Red Sox, is headed for the Washington Senators.

The newspaper stated that trade talk has Williams, accompanied by infielders Walt Dropo and Fred Hatfield, moving to Washington for third baseman Eddie Yost, first baseman Mickey Vernon, and outfielder Gil Coan.

Sports writer James Enright wrote:

"In the transfer Williams, according to the story, would remain on the Senators' roster only until such time as Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, could arrange to trade Ted to the Yankees.

"Most baseball executives agree that Griffith would shy away from Williams' fabulous salary, and that Ted's stay in Washington will be brief. . . .

"The Yankees have several young players Griff will demand in exchange for Williams."

Board Of Regents At Maryland Will Discuss Football

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21 (AP) —Federal Judge William P. Cole, Jr., chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, said today he has called a meeting of the board early next week to discuss the matter of Maryland's football team.

He added that "so far as I know, everything is on the up and up. And I would be the most surprised man in the world if we find anything wrong."

A New York judge last Monday criticized college athletics as sordid big business and pointed out that 60 of the 97 players on Maryland's football squad came from out of the state.

Judge Cole said the next regular meeting was scheduled for Nov. 30 but was being advanced so the board could take up the matter as soon as practicable.

He said the letter written by Gov. McKeldin asking for a report on the case "seems to be intimately fair, and Mr. McKeldin is entitled to a report."

Pitcher Marv Rotblatt Starts Basic Training

FT. MEADE, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Marvin Rotblatt today was assigned to the Medical Replacement Training Center here for basic training.

The 24-year-old former Memphis star was inducted Nov. 7. His record with the Sox this year was 4-2. At the tail end of the season he was sent back to Memphis in the Southern Association.

Used mainly as a relief hurler, Rotblatt took part in 26 White Sox games, two of which he started. He entered baseball in the Three Eye League with Waterloo, Ia., in 1948 where he had a record of 8-1.

Pro Football League To Discuss Playoffs

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League today invited the top NFL clubs to meet with him at his Philadelphia office Monday to discuss the championship playoff.

The invitation went out to all clubs "which think they still have a chance."

This would include Los Angeles, Detroit and the Chicago Bears in the National Conference, and Cleveland and the New York Giants in the American Conference.

Terps Grant "Less Than 100" Full Athletic Scholarships

Dean Of University Says Ratio Is Same As At Other Schools

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — "Less than 100" of 600 scholarships granted annually by the University of Maryland are "full athletic scholarships," the dean of the university said today.

Dr. Harold Cotterman, who released the information, is chairman of the scholarship committee. He said athletic scholarships provide room, board, books, tuition and fees plus $15 per month for laundry.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Board of Regents has not yet been officially advised of Governor McKeldin's request for an opinion "as to the propriety of the present system of recruiting athletes."

Official notification has been lacking because Judge William P. Cole, president of the board, is out of the city for the holidays, and other members have not been available.

One member, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, said she learned of the governor's letter only from newspaper reports. She declined comment.

Grant Is Agreed Upon

Dr. Cotterman said the $15 laundry grant in the athletic scholarships was agreed upon at a meeting of the Southern, Southeastern, Southwest and Big Six conferences.

He said it applies to colleges or universities that do not have their own laundries.

"We like to call them leadership scholarships," Dr. Cotterman said. "But of course the boys all refer to them as athletic scholarships."

He said the number granted at Maryland is "similar to the ratio of athletic scholarships granted at other universities."

Cotterman noted that of the 600 scholarships, 210 were granted by members of the legislature, while the Board of Regents granted only 36. Spcial grants and foundations make up the rest, principally in agriculture and medicine.

Thirty-three seniors will be playing their final football game today when Fort Hill and Allegany elevens clash in their 16th annual Thanksgiving Day classic at 2 p. m. in Fort Hill stadium.

Seventeen Fort Hill gridders will conclude their studies at the Hilltopper school with the 1951-52 graduating class while Allegany will have 16 members in their last season.

Pep Rallies Are Held

Today's momentous meeting will climax successful seasons for both teams, ably directed by Coaches William P. Hahn and Ray Hull at Fort Hill, and Robert E. Pence and James Hosack at Allegany. The Scarlet and White Sentinels have compiled a 7-1 record while the Alco eleven has a 5-3-1 mark.

Allegany holds the edge in the 18 previous meetings of the two clubs, winning nine games while Fort Hill copped seven with two tilts ending in ties. In 1944, 1945, and 1946 the teams met twice each season during wartime travel restrictions.

Pep rallies started off pre-game festivities at both schools yesterday. At Allegany the student body met in the gym for a noon rally with the band and cheerleaders leading the pep meeting. Brief talks were given by Coach Pence and Principal Ralph R. Webster along with members of the team.

Last night the Campers kicked off in a thuse and rally at 7:30 on the Campobello practice field. A huge bon fire was lit and a Fort Hill player burned in effigy. Richard Jamison, class of 1949, was master of ceremonies. The Boys' Hi-Y Club and cheerleaders sponsored the affair. The Alco band played and brief talks were heard.

Good Weather Forecast

At Fort Hill an afternoon pep rally also was held in the gym in which cheerleaders and the band played prominent parts. Principal Victor D. Heisey, Coach Hahn and Hull and members of the team gave talks.

The Sentinels bonfire was lit in Constitution Park at 7:30, cheers and songs were held and short talks were heard. Lester Hudson, president of the Penn Avenue-Fort Hill Alumni Association was in charge of all arrangements.

Perfect football weather has been forecast for this afternoon's headliner and a capacity crowd of 8,000 is expected to witness the holiday contest.

The two rivals went through light workouts the last two days of practice before game time with both Coaches Hahn and Pence signifying their squads in excellent physical shape.

Fort Hill Is Favored

Fort Hill, by virtue of their better record, will be favored once again to add the city championship to their collection of trophies. The Sentinels have ruled the roost since 1945 with the exception of a share with the Campers in 1948, the year the two teams battled to a mighty 6-6 tie.

The Sentinels played their last game Friday night at Westminster when they turned back the Owls 32-0. Allegany has been idle since whipping Elkins High, 28-0, November 10.

Ronnie Sisk, quarterback, and Dick Widdows, tackle, will co-captain the Campers in today's classic while Dave Ritter, end, Dick Beard, halfback, and Bill Lee, guard, will lead Fort Hill on the gridiron. All five are seniors.

Honor Bedford Gridder Publicity Is Shunned

By C. V. BURNS

Karl Kolseth, one-time minor league slugger, who trained horses in recent years, is in the chips again.

The big fellow who married a local girl (Helen Steele) and was active as a trainer for many years on the half milers is now the agent of Jockey Lois C. Cook, one of the country's better young riders.

"Koley", who in recent years was an active Dapper Dan Club booster here and once trained thoroughbreds for Bill Keegan, is now at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, with Jockey Cook. The Louisiana track's meeting opens today.

Most of the Potomac Valley Conference schools shun Thanksgiving Day games because the weather is usually too cold in nearby West Virginia for football this late in the year.

Come to think of it there were some real frigid Turkey Day games here in the days when Allegany and LaSalle played at old Mid City Park.

Only one game was postponed here on account of the weather and that was halted by a blizzard about 10 years ago.

Officials in charge of the Catholic championship football game in Washington, D. C., Sunday had to deal with an unusual situation at the close of the game which was won by St. John's over Gonzaga, 25-6.

Enthusiastic St. John's rooters tore down both goal posts with two minutes left to play. Gonzaga scored shortly afterward and attempted a drop kick for the extra point.

The referee stood in his normal place behind the kicker and the field judge took a spot parallel with where the goal posts had been. After the ball was booted, the two officials compared notes before announcing a decision.

The referee said it was high enough and straight enough but the field judge decided, as nearly as he could estimate, it hadn't reached the necessary distance

Alfred (Alfie) Shaw, Bedford High School's hard-driving halfback, made the all-star scholastic football team selected by 37 head coaches of Cambria, Somerset, Bedford and Indiana county teams.

Shaw, 17, is a senior, tips the beam at 160 and is 5 feet, 6 inches tall.

He was the third highest scorer in the four-county district with 102 points. Green of Conemaugh Township's undefeated team (10-0) led 'em all with 166 points.

Brian Bell, Jr., of Washington, D. C., who covered Maryland's massacre of N. C. State on Saturday referred to Lynn Beightol as the "much publicized freshman quarterback from Frederick, Md."

Someone asked them what they were going to advise the Mountaineers.

Maryland's Soccer Team Is 90 Per Cent From Outside U. S.

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—Coach Jim Tatum, referring to "all this talk about out-of-state football players" on the Maryland squad, said today he wondered how well it was known that 90 per cent of the soccer team was from out of the country.

"Dead" Fighter Is Recovering

Stopped Breathing After K. O. Wallop

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 21—(INS)—A 27-year-old St. Paul boxer who collapsed during a bout in Duluth last night and for a short time was believed to have died was reported recovering tonight.

Physicians said the fighter, Luverne Dreher, who fought under the name of Luverne "Cole", will not be able to continue boxing. He suffered a brain hemorrhage.

The fighter was hit under the heart by his opponent, 22-year-old Bunny Roettger, of Stillwater, Minn., in the fourth round. Observers said he retaliated with a single blow and then collapsed.

Dr. C. M. Smith, a member of the State Boxing Commission, climbed into the ring to examine the fallen man. The physician said that from "all indications, he was dead."

Dr. Smith said Dreher had no pulse and no heart beat. There were several gasps and then the patient stopped breathing.

Bocetti To Play Final For W. & L.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 21 (AP) — Washington and Lee's ace quarterback, Gil Bocetti, plays his last college game here tomorrow as the Generals close out their 1951 season by meeting the University of Richmond Spiders in a Southern Conference contest.

Along with Bocetti, ten other W&L players will be seeing their last action. The Generals, who have a 5-4 record, are three-touchdown favorites.

Richmond has been able to win only two games this season but Coach Ed Merrick thinks the Spiders, though crippled by injuries, will give a good account of themselves.

Bowl Game Today

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Nov. 21 (AP)—Morris Harvey and Lebanon Valley get the program of post-season football games under way here tomorrow when they tangle in the seventh annual Burley Bowl.

A passing duel is expected between Morris Harvey's Pete Anania nad Lebanon Valley's Lou Sorrentino, both of whom direct "T" offenses.

Lebnaon Valley, from Annville, Pa., has a season record of 7-2 and is a slight favorite. Morris Harvey, from Charleston, W. Va., has a 5-3-1 mark.

Griffith Says There's Nothing To Trade Talk

Williams Reported Going To Senators

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (INS) — Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, said tonight there is "nothing at this time" in reports that Ted Williams will be traded to the Nats by the Boston Red Sox.

The Chicago Herald-American today quoted "reliable reports" in baseball circles as saying the Red Sox would give up Williams, Walt Dropo and Fred Hatfield in return for Washington's Eddie Yost, Mickey Vernon and Gil Coan.

Griffith said there is no trade at all brewing between him and Red Sox general manager Joe Cronin, his son-in-law. Cronin is in Washington but Griffith said only to help him celebrate his 82nd birthday.

Three For Two Swap?

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (INS) — The Chicago Herald-American said today that "reliable reports" in baseball circles indicate Outfielder Ted Williams, the temperamental hitting star of the Boston Red Sox, is headed for the Washington Senators.

The newspaper stated that trade talk has Williams, accompanied by infielders Walt Dropo and Fred Hatfield, moving to Washington for third baseman Eddie Yost, first baseman Mickey Vernon, and outfielder Gil Coan.

Sports writer James Enright wrote:

"In the transfer Williams, according to the story, would remain on the Senators' roster only until such time as Clark Griffith, the Washington owner, could arrange to trade Ted to the Yankees.

"Most baseball executives agree that Griffith would shy away from Williams' fabulous salary, and that Ted's stay in Washington will be brief. . . .

"The Yankees have several young players Griff will demand in exchange for Williams."

Board Of Regents At Maryland Will Discuss Football

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21 (AP) —Federal Judge William P. Cole, Jr., chairman of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland, said today he has called a meeting of the board early next week to discuss the matter of Maryland's football team.

He added that "so far as I know, everything is on the up and up. And I would be the most surprised man in the world if we find anything wrong."

A New York judge last Monday criticized college athletics as sordid big business and pointed out that 60 of the 97 players on Maryland's football squad came from out of the state.

Judge Cole said the next regular meeting was scheduled for Nov. 30 but was being advanced so the board could take up the matter as soon as practicable.

He said the letter written by Gov. McKeldin asking for a report on the case "seems to be intimately fair, and Mr. McKeldin is entitled to a report."

Pitcher Marv Rotblatt Starts Basic Training

FT. MEADE, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Marvin Rotblatt today was assigned to the Medical Replacement Training Center here for basic training.

The 24-year-old former Memphis star was inducted Nov. 7. His record with the Sox this year was 4-2. At the tail end of the season he was sent back to Memphis in the Southern Association.

Used mainly as a relief hurler, Rotblatt took part in 26 White Sox games, two of which he started. He entered baseball in the Three Eye League with Waterloo, Ia., in 1948 where he had a record of 8-1.

Pro Football League To Discuss Playoffs

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP) — Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League today invited the top NFL clubs to meet with him at his Philadelphia office Monday to discuss the championship playoff.

The invitation went out to all clubs "which think they still have a chance."

This would include Los Angeles, Detroit and the Chicago Bears in the National Conference, and Cleveland and the New York Giants in the American Conference.

Terps Grant "Less Than 100" Full Athletic Scholarships

Dean Of University Says Ratio Is Same As At Other Schools

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — "Less than 100" of 600 scholarships granted annually by the University of Maryland are "full athletic scholarships," the dean of the university said today.

Dr. Harold Cotterman, who released the information, is chairman of the scholarship committee. He said athletic scholarships provide room, board, books, tuition and fees plus $15 per month for laundry.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the Board of Regents has not yet been officially advised of Governor McKeldin's request for an opinion "as to the propriety of the present system of recruiting athletes."

Official notification has been lacking because Judge William P. Cole, president of the board, is out of the city for the holidays, and other members have not been available.

One member, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, said she learned of the governor's letter only from newspaper reports. She declined comment.

Grant Is Agreed Upon

Dr. Cotterman said the $15 laundry grant in the athletic scholarships was agreed upon at a meeting of the Southern, Southeastern, Southwest and Big Six conferences.

He said it applies to colleges or universities that do not have their own laundries.

"We like to call them leadership scholarships," Dr. Cotterman said. "But of course the boys all refer to them as athletic scholarships."

He said the number granted at Maryland is "similar to the ratio of athletic scholarships granted at other universities."

Cotterman noted that of the 600 scholarships, 210 were granted by members of the legislature, while the Board of Regents granted only 36. Spcial grants and foundations make up the rest, principally in agriculture and medicine.

Silents, Romney To Clash Today

Cooper Field Tilt To Start At 1:30

The powerful West Virginia School For Deaf eleven will clash with its city rival, Romney High's Pioneers, today in the second annual Thanksgiving football contest at Cooper Field in Romney. Game time will be 1:30 p. m.

Coach Glenn H. Hawkins' Silents will enter the game a slight favorite by virtue of a 5-2 record, including at 47-6 walloping of Franklin High. Coach Dick MsElwee's Pioneers compiled a 5-3-1 mark and defeated Franklin 27-7.

One of the strongest teams in the Potomac Valley Conference the Silents failed to win the title with their unbeaten conference record by failure to play required number of league games.

School officials are hopeful of making the meeting between the two schools on the gridiron a regular Thanksgiving Day affair. Last year the Pioneers topped the School For Deaf by a 35-21 score.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (INS) — Judge Saul Streit is a man who knows his athletic onions.

He is the man who, in sentencing the basketball fixers, put no little part of the blame on college presidents and proselyting coaches, where it undoubtedly belongs.

But he also went to the heart of the whole problem when he put the finger on the "trick" courses football, basketball and other college athletes are allowed to take.

For years and years we have been hammering away at this very same sore spot. We have cited military and collegiate sources and our own experience to prove that there are university graduates—and not only athletes—who could not pass an honest eighth grade examination.

We know college graduates and college students today who cannot do a simple problem in addition, subtraction, multiplication or division, to say nothing of fractions; who know nothing of the history of even their own country, who cannot spell the simplest words nor parse the simplest sentence.

In sentencing Sherman White, Long Island University basketball star, Judge Streit pointed out that the lad stood 230th in a class of 263 in high school; that he was refused admittance to Duquesne University and was flunked out at Villanova before making the grade at LIU, where, the judge said, he showed "remarkable scholastic improvement."

Judging by the course White took, we are not sure whether he intended to be a music or art critic, a dancer, a preacher, actor or politician or a masseur or coach.

What about basic fundamentals? Perish the thought! Didn't the boy stand 230th in his class? But if he really learned to appreciate music he may grow up to be a music critic and may look forward to receiving a blistering letter from a president of the United States.

Judge Streit pointed out that another star, Harvey Schaff, qualified handsomely for an athletic scholarship, by studying just four courses at a prep school, getting a passing mark of 65 per cent in three of them and flunking the fourth.

The boy showed his appreciation by turning in a collegiate record so bad that special tutors were given him so that he could continue to hold his scholarship and, of course, play basketball.

Another lad, Ed Warner, was considered a retarded dull high school student where he stood 827th in a class of 942. But he got a scholarship at City College of New York where, as the judge said, he showed "miraculous" improvement.

Judge Streit was correct when he said the same situation prevails in football. If you doubt it, ask some football players what courses they study.

Schroeder, Trabert Score In Doubles

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 21 (AP)—United States hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia got a lift today when Ted Schroeder and Tony Trabert stroked their way into the doubles finals of the New South Wales tennis championships.

The Americans eliminated Australia's veteran international tandem of John Bromwich and Adrian Quist, 5-7, 6-4, 8-6, 9-7.

They get their big test Friday when they engage the team that is rated the best in amateur tennis —Australia's Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor. Sedgman and McGregor eliminated fellow countrymen Billy Sidwell and Geoff Brown, 6-4, 7-5, 7-9, 6-4.

Schroeder and Vic Seixas of Philadelphia carry the U. S. banner into tomorrow's singles, with America's big one-two punch—Dick Saviett and Trabert—already pushed to the sidelines.

Schroeder meets Australia's Mervyn Rose while Seixas plays Sedgman.

Hunting yarns are in season and one of the best of the current crop comes from Somerset county, Pa., and Game Protector E. W. Cox is authority for this deer story.

It seems that Steve Risko of Eddy, Somerset county, saw a buck deer come out of the woods near his home the other day and started chasing Risko's young dog that was out in the yard.

Risko grabbed his shotgun and dashed out to frighten the deer away. But this turned out to be one time when the helping hand was not rewarded handsomely.

The deer gave up its chase of the dog all right, but turned its attention on Risko. The astonished man is reported to have taken a swipe at the charging buck with his shotgun but only succeeded in splintering the stock.

About a half-breath later Risko was on his way back to the house, going with enough speed to easily crack Mel Patton's sprint record. Mr. Deer was right behind and kept Risko concentrating on maintaining his speed until he reached the safety of the house.

Call Judge's Action Cheap

However, Ellis Rottman, of Baltimore, editor of the student newspaper Diamondback, called the judge's action "a cheap play for publicity, hopping on the bandwagon at somebody's else's expense."

And at Delray Beach, Fla., the president of the University of Maryland Alumni Association, told newsmen, "I don't see anything to be alarmed about."

"My reaction is that the University of Maryland had over 30,000 students in all its courses last year," Talbot Speer said in reply to a query from newsmen.

"The football squad consisted of 97 men. It might easily be that with 30,000 students, a majority of the 97 could be from out of state. I feel that the athletic program is a good, sound one. I don't see any need for investigation.

Firmly Backs Standards

"No athletic scholarships were given to any athlete who did not live up to the scholastic standards of the university—which are high. I am firmly back of the University of Maryland and its standards."

Jim Tatum, Maryland coach and athletic director, said he saw no political implications in the governor's request.

"We are proud that our governor is standing up on his heels against such charges and wants the true facts before contesting such accusations," he said.

Prexies Would Ban "Snap" Courses For College Athletes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — College presidents studying what's wrong with sports unanimously agreed today that athletes should get a complete education and not be allowed to take only so-called snap courses.

The presidents — members of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education—wound up their first session reporting they "very definitely" have made progress.

Their chairman and spokesman, Dr. John A. Hannah of Michigan State college, told reporters the committee agreed that:

1. Athletes should take regular courses, work toward a degree and keep up and be graduated with their classes. He said the educators all frowned on the practice that allows an athlete to concentrate on coures like tap-dancing in order to stay eligible.

2. Colleges and universities must practice the high principles they preach. "To often at present," Hannah said, "a college president must feign ignorance or prevaricate."

3. The presidents must assume full responsibility for their athletic programs.

Hannah said most of today's final meeting was devoted to the problem of recruiting and subsidizing of athletes.

Call Judge's Action Cheap

However, Ellis Rottman, of Baltimore, editor of the student newspaper Diamondback, called the judge's action "a cheap play for publicity, hopping on the bandwagon at somebody's else's expense."

And at Delray Beach, Fla., the president of the University of Maryland Alumni Association, told newsmen, "I don't see anything to be alarmed about."

"My reaction is that the University of Maryland had over 30,000 students in all its courses last year," Talbot Speer said in reply to a query from newsmen.

"The football squad consisted of 97 men. It might easily be that with 30,000 students, a majority of the 97 could be from out of state. I feel that the athletic program is a good, sound one. I don't see any need for investigation.

Firmly Backs Standards

"No athletic scholarships were given to any athlete who did not live up to the scholastic standards of the university—which are high. I am firmly back of the University of Maryland and its standards."

Jim Tatum, Maryland coach and athletic director, said he saw no political implications in the governor's request.

"We are proud that our governor is standing up on his heels against such charges and wants the true facts before contesting such accusations," he said.

Prexies Would Ban "Snap" Courses For College Athletes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) — College presidents studying what's wrong with sports unanimously agreed today that athletes should get a complete education and not be allowed to take only so-called snap courses.

The presidents — members of a special committee set up by the American Council on Education—wound up their first session reporting they "very definitely" have made progress.

They'll meet here again on Dec. 12-13.

Their chairman and spokesman, Dr. John A. Hannah of Michigan State college, told reporters the committee agreed that:

1. Athletes should take regular courses, work toward a degree and keep up and be graduated with their classes. He said the educators all frowned on the practice that allows an athlete to concentrate on coures like tap-dancing in order to stay eligible.

2. Colleges and universities must practice the high principles they preach. "To often at present," Hannah said, "a college president must feign ignorance or prevaricate."

3. The presidents must assume full responsibility for their athletic programs.

Hannah said most of today's final meeting was devoted to the problem of recruiting and subsidizing of athletes.

Ed Modzelewski, Ward Play Final At College Park

Joe Moss Among 13 Seniors With Terps

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—All America guard Bob Ward and Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski are among the 13 seniors who will play their last football game for Maryland at College Park Saturday.

Mighty Mo, who has played a crushing game at fullback, is a candidate for All-America honors. He was named "back of the week" for his performance against Navy. The big line plunger on Maryland's nationally fourth ranked team has gained more yardage than the total rushing of all eight opponents.

Ward was named "lineman of the week" in an Associated Press poll for his terrific blocking and tackling against Georgia. The 185-pounder played 37 of his 47 minutes in the game with a broken index finger as the Terps routed Georgia, 43-7.

Maryland is expected to have little trouble with its final Southern Conference foe, West Virginia, Saturday. But they're in for a tough scrap in the Sugar Bowl classic against Tennessee, currently ranked No. 1 in the country.

Backs: Modzelewski, West Natrona, Pa.; Bob (Shoo Shoo) Shemonski, Archbald, Pa.; Co-captain Dave Cianelli, Hagerstown, Md.; Karney Scioscia, Westfield, N. J., and Iynn Davis, Baltimore.

Centers: Ed Fincke, Etna, Pa., and Jeff Keith, Tarrang, Ala.

Guards: Co-captain Ward, Elizabeth, N. J.; Pete Ladygo, Pittsburgh, and Ed Kensler, Lawrenceville, Ill.

Tackles: Joe Moss, Ridgeley, W. Va.; Chick Fry, Reading, Pa., and Dave Christianson, Baltimore.

Truman Will Miss Army-Navy Contest

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 21 (INS)—President Truman will not attend the Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia this year.

White House press secretary Joseph Short announced the president's decision today. It will be the first time the chief executive has missed the annual classic since he became president.

Short said the only reason Mr. Truman was remaining away from the game was to stay in Florida until he winds up his vacation at Key West.

Third Auto Racer Dies In Mexico

Carlos Panini Killed, Troy Ruttman Leader

Troy Ruttman

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21 (AP) — A crack United States driver, Troy Ruttman from California, dashed into the lead today in Mexico's Pan - American auto race in another day marked by violent death.

Carlos Panini, 54 - year - old Italian-born millionaire, was killed in a crash 78 miles from today's starting line at Oaxaca. He was the third man killed in the two days of racing. Panini's daughter, Teresa, 20, racing with him, was only slightly hurt.

Unofficial timing gave Ruttman, of Lynwood, Cal., eight hours, 57 minutes, 44 seconds for the total of 666 miles in the three legs from Tuxtla Gutierrez to Mexico City.

Second in the unofficial standings for the three legs is Douglas Ehlinger, Mexican son of a British businessman in Puebla. His time was clocked at 9:03:53.

Italy's Piero Taruffi was ranked third with 9:09:44.

Ruttman is driving a Mercury, Ehlinger a Packard and Taruffi a Ferrari.

Teresa Panini was entered as driver of the ill-fated car, her father as co-driver. The father was reported at the wheel when the car left Oaxaca.

Drivers who passed them said the Alfa Romeo hurtled off the road and turned over. The daughter suffered only a bruised scalp. Panini was crushed under the car and died while receiving first aid.

The first fatalities of the race were Jose Estrade Menocal and his co-driver, Miguel Gonzalez, both Mexicans, whose car turned over and burned yesterday.

Favorite's Payoff Price Drops From $16.20 To $5.60

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — Three horses were separated by a head and a nose in the Pictor Purse here today, and it was Blue Stone Farm's Full Reward who gained the decision over Midyear. The latter was only a nose better than Wise Mike in the mile and an eighth race.

Backers of Full Reward in the crowd of 6,633 fans were in for an added thrill in the race, however. In addition to watching the 8-to-5 favorite win by a head, they saw the pin price posted at $16.20 and the official sign lighted.

But officials were not long in detecting the error. In fact, the $16.20 payoff stayed on the board only about 30 seconds. A few minutes later, the correct $5.60 price was posted.

Keydets Are Favored To Beat VPI Today

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 21—(AP)—Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Tech square off here tomorrow in the 47th renewal of football's "Military Classic of the South."

V. M. I. is a heavy favorite to chalk up its fifth southern conference victory of the year. If they win, the Keydets will tie powerful Maryland for the leadership of the conference.

The football series between the two schools began in 1894 and Tech has won 26 times, VMI 15 times. Five games have been ties. Last year, VMI won 27-0.

Two of the conference's finest passers—Bill Brehany of VMI and Johnny Dean of Virginia Tech — will match talents before an estimated crowd of 25,000.

Ed Modzelewski, Ward Play Final At College Park

Joe Moss Among 13 Seniors With Terps

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Nov. 21 (AP)—All America guard Bob Ward and Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski are among the 13 seniors who will play their last football game for Maryland at College Park Saturday.

Mighty Mo, who has played a crushing game at fullback, is a candidate for All-America honors. He was named "back of the week" for his performance against Navy. The big line plunger on Maryland's nationally fourth ranked team has gained more yardage than the total rushing of all eight opponents.

Ward was named "lineman of the week" in an Associated Press poll for his terrific blocking and tackling against Georgia. The 185-pounder played 37 of his 47 minutes in the game with a broken index finger as the Terps routed Georgia, 43-7.

Maryland is expected to have little trouble with its final Southern Conference foe, West Virginia, Saturday. But they're in for a tough scrap in the Sugar Bowl classic against Tennessee, currently ranked No. 1 in the country.

Here are the seniors who will be playing their last game at College Park:

Backs: Modzelewski, West Natrona, Pa.; Bob (Shoo Shoo) Shemonski, Archbald, Pa.; Co-captain Dave Cianelli, Hagerstown, Md.; Karney Scioscia, Westfield, N. J., and Iynn Davis, Baltimore.

Centers: Ed Fincke, Etna, Pa., and Jeff Keith, Tarrang, Ala.

Guards: Co-captain Ward, Elizabeth, N. J.; Pete Ladygo, Pittsburgh, and Ed Kensler, Lawrenceville, Ill.

Tackles: Joe Moss, Ridgeley, W. Va.; Chick Fry, Reading, Pa., and Dave Christianson, Baltimore.

Truman Will Miss Army-Navy Contest

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 21 (INS)—President Truman will not attend the Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia this year.

White House press secretary Joseph Short announced the president's decision today. It will be the first time the chief executive has missed the annual classic since he became president.

Short said the only reason Mr. Truman was remaining away from the game was to stay in Florida until he winds up his vacation at Key West.

Third Auto Racer Dies In Mexico

Carlos Panini Killed, Troy Ruttman Leader

Troy Ruttman

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21 (AP) — A crack United States driver, Troy Ruttman from California, dashed into the lead today in Mexico's Pan - American auto race in another day marked by violent death.

Carlos Panini, 54 - year - old Italian-born millionaire, was killed in a crash 78 miles from today's starting line at Oaxaca. He was the third man killed in the two days of racing. Panini's daughter, Teresa, 20, racing with him, was only slightly hurt.

Unofficial timing gave Ruttman, of Lynwood, Cal., eight hours, 57 minutes, 44 seconds for the total of 666 miles in the three legs from Tuxtla Gutierrez to Mexico City.

Second in the unofficial standings for the three legs is Douglas Ehlinger, Mexican son of a British businessman in Puebla. His time was clocked at 9:03:53.

Italy's Piero Taruffi was ranked third with 9:09:44.

Ruttman is driving a Mercury, Ehlinger a Packard and Taruffi a Ferrari.

Teresa Panini was entered as driver of the ill-fated car, her father as co-driver. The father was reported at the wheel when the car left Oaxaca.

Drivers who passed them said the Alfa Romeo hurtled off the road and turned over. The daughter suffered only a bruised scalp. Panini was crushed under the car and died while receiving first aid.

The first fatalities of the race were Jose Estrade Menocal and his co-driver, Miguel Gonzalez, both Mexicans, whose car turned over and burned yesterday.

Favorite's Payoff Price Drops From $16.20 To $5.60

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21 (AP) — Three horses were separated by a head and a nose in the Pictor Purse here today, and it was Blue Stone Farm's Full Reward who gained the decision over Midyear. The latter was only a nose better than Wise Mike in the mile and an eighth race.

Backers of Full Reward in the crowd of 6,633 fans were in for an added thrill in the race, however. In addition to watching the 8-to-5 favorite win by a head, they saw the pin price posted at $16.20 and the official sign lighted.

But officials were not long in detecting the error. In fact, the $16.20 payoff stayed on the board only about 30 seconds. A few minutes later, the correct $5.60 price was posted.

Keydets Are Favored To Beat VPI Today

ROANOKE, Va., Nov. 21—(AP)—Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Tech square off here tomorrow in the 47th renewal of football's "Military Classic of the South."

V. M. I. is a heavy favorite to chalk up its fifth southern conference victory of the year. If they win, the Keydets will tie powerful Maryland for the leadership of the conference.

The football series between the two schools began in 1894 and Tech has won 26 times, VMI 15 times. Five games have been ties. Last year, VMI won 27-0.

Two of the conference's finest passers—Bill Brehany of VMI and Johnny Dean of Virginia Tech — will match talents before an estimated crowd of 25,000.

Stocks Trace Confusing Course In Quiet Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP) — Stocks traced a confusing mixture of gains and losses today in a quiet market.

American Sugar reacted abruptly with a loss of 4½ at 62 after the company declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1 but omitted a 50-cent extra which has been paid recently. Higher costs and taxes cut earnings, the company explained.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 10 cents at $95.80 with the industrial component off 30 cents, rails down 10 cents and utilities up 10 cents.

American Woolen after the market closed declared a year-end dividend of $3 on common as compared with the $1 paid a year ago when dividends were resumed. The stock gained ⅜ at 40¾.

Twentieth Century-Fox lost ⅞ at 20⅞ after reporting a fall in earnings while Universal Pictures gained ½ at 12½ on a dividend of 60 cents, the first since July, 1948.

Chile Copper declared a dividend of $1 as against 50 cents paid a year ago. The stock gained 2 at 48. Andes Copper was down 2⅛ at 22⅞ after the company declared a dividend of 50 cents as against 75 cents paid a year ago.

Johns-Manville was down 1⅝ at 68¾. Directors declared an extra of $1.25 making the 1951 total $4.25 as against $3.50 last year.

The day's most active issue was Northern Pacific which lost ¼ at 59¾ after reaching a high of 61⅞. Co. up ¼ at 11⅞, Eastman Kodak up ⅛ at 48⅜, St. Regis Paper off ¼ at 16⅝, Columbia Gas up ¼ at 15⅜, and Radio Corp. up ½ at 21⅞.

Stocks Trace Confusing Course In Quiet Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 (AP) — Stocks traced a confusing mixture of gains and losses today in a quiet market.

American Woolen after the market closed declared a year-end dividend of $3 on common as compared with the $1 paid a year ago when dividends were resumed. The stock gained ⅝ at 40⅜.

Twentieth Century-Fox lost ⅞ at 20⅞ after reporting a fall in earnings while Universal Pictures gained ½ at 12½ on a dividend of 60 cents, the first since July, 1948.

Chile Copper declared a dividend of $1 as against 50 cents paid a year ago. The stock gained 2 at 48. Andes Copper was down 2⅛ at 22⅞ after the company declared a dividend of 50 cents as against 75 cents paid a year ago.

Johns-Manville was down 1⅝ at 68⅜. Directors declared an extra of $1.25 making the 1951 total $4.25 as against $3.50 last year.

The day's most active issue was Northern Pacific which lost ¼ at 59⅜ after reaching a high of 61⅞. Co. up ⅛ at 11⅞, Eastman Kodak up ⅛ at 48⅝, St. Regis Paper off ¼ at 16⅝, Columbia Gas up ¼ at 15⅜, and Radio Corp. up ½ at 21⅞.

Aerial Photos May Help Find Missing Flier

Searchers Still Hope To Find Airman Alive

A B-26 aerial reconnaisance plane droned over Preston County, W. Va., yesterday as skilled ground search parties doggedly searched for a survivor of a similar bomber which crashed near Aurora last Friday.

The reconnaisance plane from Langley Field, Va., made photo runs of the ares on which Lt. Prentice E. Ross, Jr., of Fort Worth, Tex., might have jumped. His two companions perished when their B-26 from Langley Field crashed.

Some 125 Air Force personnel, Boy Scouts, civilian guides and hunters yesterday ranged through about a 15 square mile area on the esat slope of Shaffer Mountain in perfect rescue weather.

In a cloudless sky, five CAP planes and an Air Force helicopter searched for traces of the missing flier for about five hours.

Search To Continue

Capt. Robert Bourcy, of Westover AF Base, mission commander, said the search will resume this morning and will be continued as long as necessary.

Search parties who will comb the down side of Shaffer Mountain north of Aurora today will have a regular turkey and ham Thanksgiving supper when they return to headquarters at Aurora High School tonight.

There might even be a double supply of Thanksgiving suppers for the men.

Serach headquarters yesterday received a telephone call offering meals for the weary rescue personnel, but the connection was broken and the call was not completed.

Photos taken by the veteran reconnaisance crew will be interpreted to aid in the huge search job in which as many as 500 persons have aided.

All three of the men in the B-26 which made the photo run over the crash area have flown between 50 and 55 aerial combat missions in Korea, doing visual and night photographic work.

Crews Redouble Efforts

The methodical search has been intensified each day in hopes of reaching the missing airman in time. Authorities believe Lt. Ross bailed out of the doomed plane and may still be alive.

Rescue efforts are being conducted in very difficult terrain in below freezing weather and a foot of snow which has fallen since the plane crashed has made rescue efforts even more difficult.

Some additional equipment for the search party was flown in here yesterday in an FA-16, a Gruman Albatross, which later returned to Westover, Mass. AF Base with one of the search officers.

Reeves Paroled After Assault On Policeman

Richard Paul Reeves, 20, Westernport, was given a suspended sentence of 30 days in Allegany County Jail and paroled for one year yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on a charge of assaulting Lonaconing Police Office Stanley Davis on November 15.

Officer Davis swore out a warrant before Magistrate William J. Gunter Saturday following an alleged asault on him Thursday night at his home in Lonaconing.

Davis said Reeves came to his home following a traffic hearing in which Reeves was fined $11.45 by Magistrate James Blair, at Midland, on two traffic violations.

After subduing Reeves, Davis took him into custody and put him in the Lonaconing jail. Bond of $100 was posted by Reeves, for his appearance for a hearing Saturday at Trial Magistrate Court here. When Reeves failed to appear, Davis swore out the warrant.

Condition of the suspended sentence imposed by Gunter was that Reeves be of general good behavior for one year, pay court costs and cost of a set of handcuffs.

The handcuffs were hack-sawed from the wrist of Reeves after a key was broken in the lock. Reeves pleaded guilty to the assault charge.

Thanksgiving Finds Cumberland With Peak Number Of Churches In City's 160-Year Religious History

Nearly Million Dollars Expended This Year For Improvements To Places Of Worship

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Staff Writer

Ever since 1792, when Father Dennis Cahill came to Cumberland to build the little log mission which became Allegany County's first church, Cumberlanders have been busily erecting more and bigger churches.

And in the 160 years in which local congregations have had churches in which to observe Thanksgiving Day, there have sprung up some 60 churches, representing all leading denominations.

Today will find the city with more places of worship for Thanksgiving churchgoers than has any Thanksgiving Day since Father Cahill trimmed his first log.

Peak Improvement Year

For the past three years, local congregations have been steadily expanding and improving their church facilities. This year, building programs expected to cost more than a million dollars were completed or in progress.

It has been a peak year in the recent history of Cumberland church improvement. Major programs at 14 local and suburban churches will run to about $862,000, and many other congregations completed smaller projects during the year.

Ministers find three explanations for the sharp upswing in building: (1) necessary work postponed during World War II is now being done; (2) congregations have expanded; and, probably most significant, (3) many churches have felt an encouraging increase in interest.

Suburbs Built Up

Although population in Cumberland proper has dropped since the 1940 census, suburban areas have been built up considerably since the end of World War II, bringing a greater need for new churches in those areas.

At least six congregations within six miles of the city have built new churches or have more than doubled in size since 1948.

But the biggest expenditures for church improvements were in Cumberland itself, where the older and larger congregations are located.

Largest of the lot will be a $212-000 educational and Sunday school building to be completed next summer by First Presbyterian Church. The new building will include a large assembly room, a small chapel, a modern kitchen, and offices for the minister, Rev. Seth C. Morrow, and secretary. Last month, workmen razed a century-old building

County Hunters Bag 22 Turkeys During Season

Although most people in this area have purchased their Thanksgiving turkeys from the neighborhood grocer, a few hardy souls have emulated the Pilgrim fathers by bagging their own wild turkeys.

District Game Warden Joseph A Minke said last night that he had heard of the shooting of 36 wild turkeys in Allegany and Washington Counties since the season opened November 15. Twenty-two were reported in this county and 14 in Washington County. These are the only two counties in Maryland where wild turkey may be killed. The season ends November 30.

Meanwhile, District Forester William H. Johnson reports that some wild cranberries have been found in Swallow Falls State Park in Garrett County.

Date Of Thanksgiving Has Been Kicked Around A Lot

Lincoln Proclaimed First National Event

By C. WESLEY BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

It took 242 years for Thanksgiving to really catch on. For it was not until 1863 that Thanksgiving was proclaimed as a truly national holiday by President Abraham Lincoln.

By the 1930's, the tradition of observing Thanksgiving on the fourth Thursday of November was so firmly fixed that President Roosevelt caused cries of anguish from the American people when he advanced the date to the third Thursday in November in 1939.

Reason for the "tradition breaking" move was that merchants complained the interval between Thanksgiving and Christmas was so short they could not make proper preparations for the Yule holiday rush.

Date Now Fixed

After two years of confusion, the date was returned to the fourth Thursday, where it will undoubtedly remain.

As a historian, President Roosevelt undoubtedly knew the date had been anything but fixed during the history of the holiday, since it had been held on at least eight different months.

Thanksgiving began as a New England holiday and for some 200 years remained largely a regional celebration, considered by the South as a possible source of religious propoganda for the Puritan clergy.

Was Three-Day Event

The first Thanksgiving, in the autumn of 1621 was not a one but a three-day holiday and waterfowl, deer, eels and probably wild turkeys were the chief foods that graced the tables at which the Pilgrims and some 90 Indians feasted.

President George Washington proclaimed the first national Thanksgiving day on Thursday, November 26, 1789.

Perhaps due to the boisterous celebration that year, he failed to issue another proclamation until six years later and then he selected March for the date.

Two Thanksgivings were proclaimed by his successor, John Adams, the first in May, 1798, and the other in April, 1799.

Object To Holiday

President Thomas Jefferson took the attitude that Thanksgiving was strictly a religious matter and took a hands-off attitude since the Constitution prohibits any connection between church and state.

For some 60 years, successors in the White House turned aside for one reason or another pleas for national Thanksgiving Day.

The idea began to gain ground by 1855, when Georgia, Texas and Virginia officially observed Thanksgiving with the Yankee states.

Incidentally, she will never be forgotten for another reason:

She was the author of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Issues Proclamation

The celebration occurred on the day following the Union victory at Lookout Mountain.

Following President Roosevelt's attempt to advance the date, when 23 states refused to observe the "New Deal Thanksgiving," Congress settled the matter for good on October 6, 1941, by setting the date as the fourth Thursday of November.

This action made Thanksgiving a legal holiday for the first time, since all previous holidays had been observed at the request of presidents.

Pastor Says Crash Curbed His Actions

Rev. William J. Elliott, Sr., who has filed a $500 suit in Allegany County Circuit Court, contended that damages to his automobile prevented him from filling all of his pastoral duties at First Methodist Church.

The suit was filed for the clergyman by Attorney William H. Geppert. Defendant in the action is Morris Greenspoon of Washington, D. C.

Rev. Elliott said that his automobile and a motor vehicle driven by Greenspoon were involved in a collision on Main Street in Frederick on or about June 28, 1950. The pastor blamed the accident on Greenspoon, claiming that he had ignored a red traffic light.

Tri-Hi-Y Clubs Collect Food For The Needy

Thanksgiving Baskets Are Distributed Here

Baskets of food collected by Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of Allegany and Fort Hill High Schools spread Thanksgiving cheer to some 60 families of this city yesterday.

The food baskets or boxes, all decorated for Thanksgiving, were distributed through the Associated Charities.

Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary, said workers of the Street Department delivered the food yesterday afternoon.

Scouts and individuals also aided in the annual Thanksgiving effort.

At Fort Hill High School, the Alpha Tri-Hi-Y, headed by Hazel Rinker, chairman, conducted the food and cash collection on their own time.

At Allegany High School, the Tri-Hi-Y Club, with Patricia Salitrick as chairman, conducted the drive for cash and food.

Miss Bonig said the campaigns brought in about 1,000 packages of food, mostly canned but including sacks of flour, vegetables, cakes and candy for a value of about $100.

One of the biggest values to the students, Miss Bonig said, is to "teach them to share what they have with others".

W. H. Shuler Wins Display Contest

William H. Shuler, display manager of the local Sears Roebuck and Company store, was the winner of the B-2 store group in an Eastern territory display contest.

Shuler, 29, of 24 North Lee Street, will receive a two-day free trip to Philadelphia. One of four winners in the East, he was cited for an interior display of Four Star items.

Yuletide Lights To Be Turned On This Evening

The Christmas holiday lights along Baltimore Street will be turned on tonight officially opening the Yuletide season in Cumberland.

Large center stars with peppermint sticks, varied-colored cylinders and shepherd scenes will light up along the strands of balsam pine. Merchants of downtown Cumberland are decorating their store windows and well-stocked shelves containing Christmas gifts for all are prevalent along the Main Stem.

Barter Play Is Tonight At Allegany

"Light Up The Sky," the second in the current season presentations of Barter Theater Players will be held this evening at Allegany High School. Curtain time is 8:30 p. m., Floyd V. Cozad, chairman announced last night.

The Moss Hart comedy will be presented under the sponsorship of the Junior Association of Commerce. Tickets for the "Turkey Day" stage production will be available at the door beginning at 7:30 p. m., Cozad added.

The co-author of "The Man Who Came To Dinner" this time has turned his witty pen to the theatre itself. The result is a high riding comedy that is pitiless in its comment of the stage and stage-folks, while brazenly in love with them.

Cynthia Cook is one of the new Barter players who will be seen in "Light Up The Sky." Also in the cast are Woodrow Romoff, who appeared here recently as Shylock in the "Merchant of Venice"; Michael Lewis, son of Dorothy Thompson and the late Sinclair Lewis; John Holland, Patricia O'Connell, Dinah Farr, Clayton Corzatta, Hugh Mosher, Regina Gleason and Francis Weaver.

The Barter production, presented by Robert Porterfield, is being directed by Owen Phillips. Settings are by Mack Statham and lighting by Lauren Farr.

BRADFORD, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP) — A McKean County coroner's jury today ordered James D. Irwin, 37, of Washington, Pa., held for Grand Jury action on a charge of negligence in the fatal shooting of another hunter.

Ray G. Himes, of Romney, W. Va., was shot while hunting in a remote wooded section near Gardeau, McKean County, yesterday. Irwin, who testified he mistook Himes for game, was committed to the county prison at Smethport in lieu of $1,000 bond.

The movie is a special aid for the study of missions in Latin America. The film presents a broad picture of many other types of work which characterize the missionary enterprise in Latin America. The public is invited.

$50,000 State Goal Set For Arthritis-Rheumatism Drive

Maryland's annual drive to aid victims of arthritis and rheumatism started Tuesday evening when General George C. Kenney met at a dinner meeting with a group of Baltimore business leaders.

Gen. Kenney, who is co-chairman of the drive of the National Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, was commander of Allied Air Forces in the Pacific during the last war.

Clarence W. Miles was chairman of the committee which organized the meeting. Assisting him were Chester F. Hockley, Charles P. Crane, Walter F. Perkins, Dr. George E. Bennett, William C. Purnell and Benjamin H. Griswold.

Campaign Ends Dec. 15

A sum of $50,000 will be sought in Maryland, $30,000 of it in Baltimore. The campaign will last until December 15.

Miles, who is also president of the Maryland chapter, says, "Our greatest need in Maryland is to support a plan for the development of a state-wide chain of clinics to be held in Baltimore and the various county health centers through the cooperation of Baltimore and county health officials.

"This country is faced with providing treatment and rehabilitation for 7,500,000 victims of arthritis, a total that exceeds the combined annual toll of tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer and diabetes. Whereas the average worker loses only 13 days a year through sickness, the arthritic sufferer is out for an average of 80 days."

In addition to the main talk by Gen. Kenney, Miles spoke and also Dr. Charles W. Wainwright, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, who is co-chairman with Dr. Bennett of the Medical Advisory Committee to the Maryland Chapter.

10 Marylanders To Testify In Burkett Trial

Bi-State Aspects Of Case Stressed

Clarence Edward Burkett, 31-year-old Kelly-Springfield Tire Company worker, will be tried in a Pennsylvania court for murder but it appears that a large percentage of the witnesses will be Marylanders.

Bedford County (Pa.) District Attorney Charles M. Koontz, assisted by Allegany County State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Tuesday filed a petition and certificate in Allegany County Circuit Court to compel the attendance of 10 non-resident witnesses — all Marylanders — at the murder trial of Burkett December 3 in the Bedford County Court of Oyer and Terminer.

Burkett allegedly fatally shot his wife, Mrs. Myra Grace Burkett, 23, September 12, on the truck farm of her parents about one mile south of Hyndman, Pa.

There are several reasons for the bi-state aspects of the case. One of these is that Mrs. Burkett died in Memorial Hospital here. Before her death she was treated at the hospital by Dr. W. M. Faw, who is one of the 10 Marylanders called to testify in the trial.

Because she died in Cumberland, Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, investigated. He is another of the Maryland witnesses.

After the shooting, Burkett returned across the Mason-Dixon Line to his home at Ellerslie and telephoned Allegany County Deputy Sheriff George Harris to report what had happened. Harris is another of the witnesses from this state.

Deputy Sheriff Harris notified Maryland State Police Sgt. Harry Holsinger of the call and the sergeant proceeded to Ellerslie and arrested Burkett. Holsinger is another witness from this state.

Other Marylanders summoned to appear at the trial are Mrs. Mary Newman, 132 Hanover Street; Jerome Ellenson, also of this city; Earl Harrison, Joan Ann Combs, Elza Combs and Gladys Combs, all of the Ellerslie area.

UCT To Celebrate Its 50th Anniversary On December 1

Cumberland Council No. 179, United Commercial Travelers, will stop activities for one day December 1 to give itself a birthday.

Many Grand Council officials will be present at the 50th anniversary of the group. The celebration will consist of two sessions, one in the afternoon at 3 p. m. and the second at 6:30 p. m.

Martin L. Johnson, Sr., senior counselor here, announced that A. W. Franklin, supreme secretary of the Order of United Commercial Travelers of America with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio will be present. The national organization has many councils located in every state in the United States and Canada.

Franklin will be present at the meeting Saturday afternoon at 3 p. m. in the IOOF Hall, South Mechanic Street, and at a dinner at Cumberland Country Club at 6 p. m. The evening dinner will be followed by a dance for all members and their ladies.

Also to be present at the two sessions is L. E. Flowers, Charleston, W. Va., grand councilor. The grand council is comprised of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky.

At the afternoon session a class will be initiated in Flower's honor. The group will be called the "Flowers' Class."

A. W. FRANKLIN

Other officials to attend the celebration are John W. Bell, Charleston, grand promotional director; and William E. Nash, member of the Supreme Board of Governors, Columbus.

Music for the dance will be provided by the Cavaliers.

Flood Project Bids To Be Opened Dec. 18

Phase III Includes Work In Wills Creek

Bids for Phase III of the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control Project will be opened December 18, according to Albert Donaldson, area engineer.

Donaldson could not say when work on the third phase of the project would begin. Contractors have until December 18 to file their bids.

Phase III of the project provides for dredging and paving of the bed and walls of Wills Creek. Work originally was scheduled to begin next spring and was slated for completion late in the fall of 1952. Congress has set aside $1,000,000 for this work.

Donaldson said beginning of the work would be determined by many factors, such as weather conditions and materials.

The job includes excavation and paving of the creek bed and walls from Route 40 Bridge in the Narrows to City Junction Bridge of the Western Maryland Railway at North Mechanic and North Centre Streets.

Dredging and paving of the rest of the creek to its confluence with the Potomac River will be completed as funds become available.

Completion of the first two phases of the project, about a quarter of the huge project, will provide excellent insurance against flash floods in the city according to Corps of Engineer authorities.

Under a total cost of $15,000,000, the five-year program still has a number of major projects to be completed. They include construction of a pump house to control the storm sewer system, removal of the present Potomac River dam, and construction of a new dam.

Cinder Barrels Make Appearance

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said about 45 barrels have been placed on hilly streets, where motorists can use the cinders in emergencies.

Short handled shovels were placed in the containers.

Drivers are urged to replace the shovels after getting what cinders they need for, officials said, a lot of the shovels disappear over the winter months and must be replaced as crews refill the cinder barrels.

Street Department crews this week resurfaced hilly sections of Chestnut Street and are now patching Locust Street, which has been full of holes.

Other street crews are busy gathering up leaves.

It took 242 years for Thanksgiving to really catch on. For it was not until 1863 that Thanksgiving was proclaimed as a truly national holiday by President Abraham Lincoln.

By the 1930's, the tradition of observing Thanksgiving on the fourth Thursday of November was so firmly fixed that President Roosevelt caused cries of anguish from the American people when he advanced the date to the third Thursday in November in 1939.

Reason for the "tradition breaking" move was that merchants complained the interval between Thanksgiving and Christmas was so short they could not make proper preparations for the Yule holiday rush.

Date Now Fixed

After two years of confusion, the date was returned to the fourth Thursday, where it will undoubtedly remain.

As a historian, President Roosevelt undoubtedly knew the date had been anything but fixed during the history of the holiday, since it had been held on at least eight different months.

Thanksgiving began as a New England holiday and for some 200 years remained largely a regional celebration, considered by the South as a possible source of religious propoganda for the Puritan clergy.

Was Three-Day Event

The first Thanksgiving, in the autumn of 1621 was not a one but a three-day holiday and waterfowl, deer, eels and probably wild turkeys were the chief foods that graced the tables at which the Pilgrims and some 90 Indians feasted.

President George Washington proclaimed the first national Thanksgiving day on Thursday, November 26, 1789.

Perhaps due to the boisterous celebration that year, he failed to issue another proclamation until six years later and then he selected March for the date.

Two Thanksgivings were proclaimed by his successor, John Adams, the first in May, 1798, and the other in April, 1799.

Object To Holiday

President Thomas Jefferson took the attitude that Thanksgiving was strictly a religious matter and took a hands-off attitude since the Constitution prohibits any connection between church and state.

For some 60 years, successors in the White House turned aside for one reason or another pleas for national Thanksgiving Day.

The idea began to gain ground by 1855, when Georgia, Texas and Virginia officially observed Thanksgiving with the Yankee states.

Incidentally, she will never be forgotten for another reason:

She was the author of "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Issues Proclamation

Chiefly as a result of her efforts, President Lincoln proclaimed the first really national Thanksgiving proclamation for November 26, 1863.

The celebration occurred on the day following the Union victory at Lookout Mountain.

Following President Roosevelt's attempt to advance the date, when 23 states refused to observe the "New Deal Thanksgiving," Congress settled the matter for good on October 6, 1941, by setting the date as the fourth Thursday of November.

This action made Thanksgiving a legal holiday for the first time, since all previous holidays had been observed at the request of presidents.

Pastor Says Crash Curbed His Actions

Rev. William J. Elliott, Sr., who has filed a $500 suit in Allegany County Circuit Court, contended that damages to his automobile prevented him from filling all of his pastoral duties at First Methodist Church.

The suit was filed for the clergyman by Attorney William H. Geppert. Defendant in the action is Morris Greenspoon of Washington, D. C.

Rev. Elliott said that his automobile and a motor vehicle driven by Greenspoon were involved in a collision on Main Street in Frederick on or about June 28, 1950. The pastor blamed the accident on Greenspoon, claiming that he had ignored a red traffic light.

Tri-Hi-Y Clubs Collect Food For The Needy

Thanksgiving Baskets Are Distributed Here

Baskets of food collected by Tri-Hi-Y Clubs of Allegany and Fort Hill High Schools spread Thanksgiving cheer to some 60 families of this city yesterday.

The food baskets or boxes, all decorated for Thanksgiving, were distributed through the Associated Charities.

Miss Jeanette Bonig, executive secretary, said workers of the Street Department delivered the food yesterday afternoon.

Scouts and individuals also aided in the annual Thanksgiving effort.

At Fort Hill High School, the Alpha Tri-Hi-Y, headed by Hazel Rinker, chairman, conducted the food and cash collection on their own time.

At Allegany High School, the Tri-Hi-Y Club, with Patricia Salitrick as chairman, conducted the drive for cash and food.

Miss Bonig said the campaigns brought in about 1,000 packages of food, mostly canned but including sacks of flour, vegetables, cakes and candy for a value of about $100.

One of the biggest values to the students, Miss Bonig said, is to "teach them to share what they have with others".

$50,000 State Goal Set For Arthritis-Rheumatism Drive

Maryland's annual drive to aid victims of arthritis and rheumatism started Tuesday evening when General George C. Kenney met at a dinner meeting with a group of Baltimore business leaders.

Gen. Kenney, who is co-chairman of the drive of the National Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, was commander of Allied Air Forces in the Pacific during the last war.

Clarence W. Miles was chairman of the committee which organized the meeting. Assisting him were Chester F. Hockley, Charles P. Crane, Walter F. Perkins, Dr. George E. Bennett, William C. Purnell and Benjamin H. Griswold.

Campaign Ends Dec. 15

A sum of $50,000 will be sought in Maryland, $30,000 of it in Baltimore. The campaign will last until December 15.

Miles, who is also president of the Maryland chapter, says, "Our greatest need in Maryland is to support a plan for the development of a state-wide chain of clinics to be held in Baltimore and the various county health centers through the cooperation of Baltimore and county health officials.

"This country is faced with providing treatment and rehabilitation for 7,500,000 victims of arthritis, a total that exceeds the combined annual toll of tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer and diabetes. Whereas the average worker loses only 13 days a year through sickness, the arthritic sufferer is out for an average of 80 days."

In addition to the main talk by Gen. Kenney, Miles spoke and also Dr. Charles W. Wainwright, associate professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, who is co-chairman with Dr. Bennett of the Medical Advisory Committee to the Maryland Chapter.

10 Marylanders To Testify In Burkett Trial

Bi-State Aspects Of Case Stressed

Clarence Edward Burkett, 31-year-old Kelly-Springfield Tire Company worker, will be tried in a Pennsylvania court for murder but it appears that a large percentage of the witnesses will be Marylanders.

Bedford County (Pa.) District Attorney Charles M. Koontz, assisted by Allegany County State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, Tuesday filed a petition and certificate in Allegany County Circuit Court to compel the attendance of 10 non-resident witnesses — all Marylanders — at the murder trial of Burkett December 3 in the Bedford County Court of Oyer and Terminer.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris subsequently signed the order of court directing the clerk to summons the 10 Marylanders.

Burkett allegedly fatally shot his wife, Mrs. Myra Grace Burkett, 23, September 12, on the truck farm of her parents about one mile south of Hyndman, Pa.

There are several reasons for the bi-state aspects of the case. One of these is that Mrs. Burkett died in Memorial Hospital here. Before her death she was treated at the hospital by Dr. W. M. Faw, who is one of the 10 Marylanders called to testify in the trial.

Because she died in Cumberland, Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, investigated. He is another of the Maryland witnesses.

After the shooting, Burkett returned across the Mason-Dixon Line to his home at Ellerslie and telephoned Allegany County Deputy Sheriff George Harris to report what had happened. Harris is another of the witnesses from this state.

Deputy Sheriff Harris notified Maryland State Police Sgt. Harry Holsinger of the call and the sergeant proceeded to Ellerslie and arrested Burkett. Holsinger is another witness from this state.

Other Marylanders summoned to appear at the trial are Mrs. Mary Newman, 132 Hanover Street; Jerome Ellenson, also of this city; Earl Harrison, Joan Ann Combs, Elza Combs and Gladys Combs, all of the Ellerslie area.

Flood Project Bids To Be Opened Dec. 18

Phase III Includes Work In Wills Creek

Bids for Phase III of the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Control Project will be opened December 18, according to Albert Donaldson, area engineer.

Donaldson could not say when work on the third phase of the project would begin. Contractors have until December 18 to file their bids.

Phase III of the project provides for dredging and paving of the bed and walls of Wills Creek. Work originally was scheduled to begin next spring and was slated for completion late in the fall of 1952. Congress has set aside $1,000,000 for this work.

Donaldson said beginning of the work would be determined by many factors, such as weather conditions and materials.

The job includes excavation and paving of the creek bed and walls from Route 40 Bridge in the Narrows to City Junction Bridge of the Western Maryland Railway at North Mechanic and North Centre Streets.

Albert S. Paye, liaison engineer, said this portion of the creek is a high-speed area of water flow.

Dredging and paving of the rest of the creek to its confluence with the Potomac River will be completed as funds become available.

Completion of the first two phases of the project, about a quarter of the huge project, will provide excellent insurance against flash floods in the city according to Corps of Engineer authorities.

Under a total cost of $15,000,000, the five-year program still has a number of major projects to be completed. They include construction of a pump house to control the storm sewer system, removal of the present Potomac River dam, and construction of a new dam.

Cinder Barrels Make Appearance

Cinder barrels have been placed on city streets in preparation for slippery winter weather.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said about 45 barrels have been placed on hilly streets, where motorists can use the cinders in emergencies.

Short handled shovels were placed in the containers.

Drivers are urged to replace the shovels after getting what cinders they need for, officials said, a lot of the shovels disappear over the winter months and must be replaced as crews refill the cinder barrels.

Street Department crews this week resurfaced hilly sections of Chestnut Street and are now patching Locust Street, which has been full of holes.
